Dear Student,

Emerson College is a specialized institution devoted to the interdisciplinary study of communication and the performing arts. The College views communication and the performing arts as fields of study integrated with the liberal arts and provides a varied curriculum that reflects this belief.

As students pursue areas of concentration, they develop oral, writing, performance, and visual skills. The College believes that the ability to communicate effectively is important to individual development as well as to the society which the individual serves. The combination of theoretical learning and practical experience is fundamental to an Emerson education. It is this distinctive approach that prepares graduates of the College for personal and intellectual growth, for professional careers in communication and related fields, and for participation as citizens in a free and open society.

Sincerely,

John C. Zacharis

John C. Zacharis
Interim President

History of the College

Founded in 1880 by Charles Wesley Emerson, noted preacher, orator and teacher, Emerson has grown into a college offering its more than 2,600 students comprehensive undergraduate and graduate curricula in the communication arts and sciences and the performing arts. From the original concentration on oratory have evolved specializations in such fields as mass communication (radio and television broadcasting, film and journalism), theatre arts, communication studies, communication disorders, American culture and communication, writing, literature and publishing.

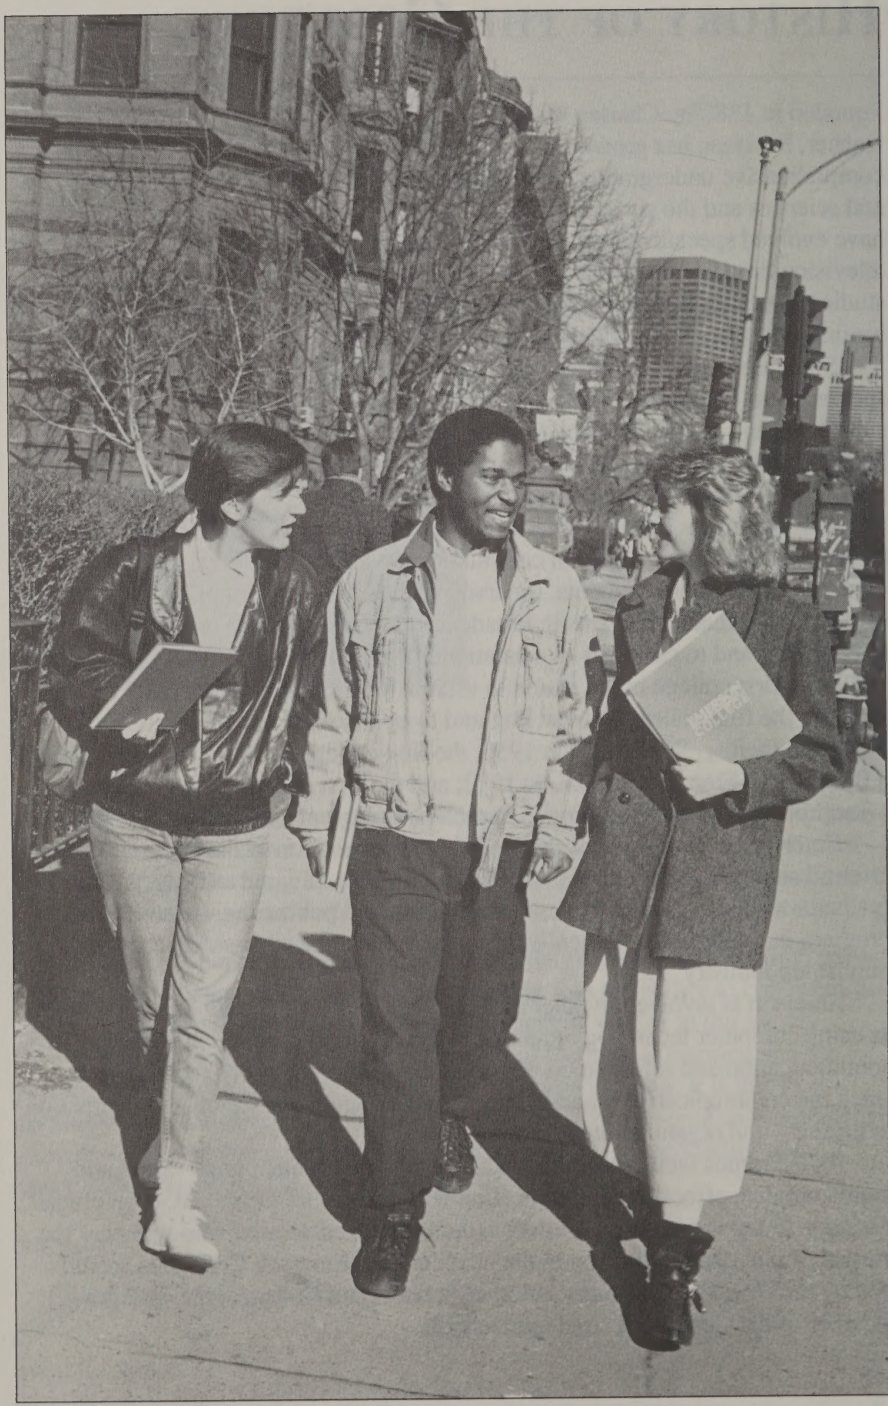
Since Emerson's founding, the elements of human communication — the spoken word, the written word, the gesture — have changed in both form and substance, and the media through which they flow have changed and multiplied. Radio, motion pictures, television, and the sciences of speech pathology and audiology all have evolved during the past century.

Throughout its history, Emerson has shown the capacity to respond to and meet the needs for education in communication and the performing arts. Among other pioneering achievements, Emerson was the first college in New England to offer undergraduate programs in broadcast journalism, in 1937; the first college in New England to establish an education FM radio station, WERS-(FM), in 1949; the first college in the nation to establish a program in children's theater, in 1919; the first college in New England to operate a closed circuit television broadcast facility, WERS-TV in 1953; the first college in New England to offer a Bachelor of Fine Arts in film, in 1972; and the first college in the nation to offer professional-level training in speech pathology and audiology, in 1935.

Emerson today continues this tradition of innovation in the communication arts and sciences. For example, in 1980 the College initiated a comprehensive, graduate-level program in professional writing and publishing — the first such program in the nation specifically designed to meet the expressed needs of the publishing industry.

Emerson is involved in other areas on the frontiers of communication, such as using computer technology to assist in research and production in the fields of communication and information distribution; developing video techniques to teach the communicatively handicapped; and expanding research and instruction in business and organizational communication.

As the issues facing business, industry and government grow larger and more complex, effective communication will grow more important, even crucial. Emerson today is preparing to educate those men and women who will bear the burden of that communication in the next century. Emerson College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc. and is a member of the Council of Graduate Schools.



ADMISSIONS

It is the policy of the College to admit those applicants whose interests and abilities are congruent with a specialty in communication or the performing arts and who, based on the evaluation of the Admissions Board, will be able to complete successfully the academic program.

The Admissions Board seeks the student who is able to accept the responsibility and challenge of active participation in the learning experience. All of the requested credentials are evaluated carefully by the Admissions Board as each application for admission is reviewed.

Students and their families are enthusiastically invited to visit Emerson and go on one of the student-guided campus tours. Tours are preceded by an in-depth information session conducted by an admissions counselor in the Admissions lounge. Visitors are encouraged to participate in discussion of all aspects of the academic programs, co-curricular activities, and campus-life. Although interviews are not required as part of the Admissions process, admissions counselors are available for individual appointments by request. Students who are unable to visit the College are encouraged to call and talk with an admissions representative over the phone. In an effort to help students learn more about the College, the Admissions office will be pleased to arrange a personal contact with an Emerson alumnus.

To obtain further information, schedule a tour, or speak to an admissions counselor, please call the Admissions office at (617) 578-8600 between 9 and 5 Monday through Friday.

Upon receipt of an application by the Office of Admissions, a counselor is assigned to assist the prospective student throughout the application process. All questions should be directed to this counselor. When all required materials have been received, a decision is made by the Admissions Board. The student is then notified of the decision by the Office of Admissions. Applications are reviewed on a rolling basis, so students are encouraged to submit their applications as early as possible.

Admission of Freshmen

Under normal circumstances, prospective freshmen applicants must:

1. Show evidence of four years of study of English and two years of mathematics, science, and college preparatory social science. Two years of a foreign language are recommended.
2. Provide an official transcript of secondary school records, including the date of graduation or expected graduation.
3. Provide letters of recommendation from a current academic teacher and a guidance counselor.
4. Submit results of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) of the College Entrance Examination Board or of the American College Testing Program (ACT). The test may be taken in either the junior or senior year of high school, but should not be taken any later than December of the senior year.
5. Submit an autobiographical essay.
6. Submit a completed application, with the $30 application fee, to the Office of Admissions, Emerson College, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116.

Admission of Transfer Students

Emerson welcomes applications for transfer admission. Acceptance to the College as a transfer student is based largely on the Admissions Board's evaluation of the student's previous academic record. It is expected that the student has maintained a minimum 2.5 grade point average at his or her previous college in order to be considered for admission. However, special factors as described by the applicant in his or her application will be taken into account. Transfer students are required to complete one full year, at least twenty (20) credits in their major field, and their final term at Emerson. Students interested in transferring to Emerson must:

1. Provide official secondary school and college transcripts.
2. Provide two letters of recommendation from faculty members.
3. Provide the results of the SAT or the ACT (not required if junior level or above).
4. Submit a catalogue from the previous college(s) attended.
5. Submit an autobiographical essay.
6. Submit a completed application, with the $30 application fee, to the Office of Admissions, Emerson College, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116.

Admission of Students to the Honors Program

Seniors with outstanding academic records, who are seeking an additional intellectual challenge at the college level, are encouraged to apply for the Honors Program. Applicants for the Honors Program must:

1. Complete the regular application procedures listed for freshmen by February 15th.
2. Submit an additional application for the Honors Program by February 15th.
3. Submit a minimum composite score of 1200 on the SAT or 52 as the cumulative score on the English and Math portions of the ACT, and a minimum grade point average of 3.3.
4. Show evidence of an outstanding record of achievement in school and/or community affairs.
5. Finalists must be interviewed by a member of the Honors faculty or an admissions representative.

Admission of International Students

The College encourages applications from international students. Applicants who are not citizens of the United States must:

1. Follow the application procedures listed for freshmen or transfer applicants, depending on their own educational background.
2. Submit all credentials with an official English translation if originally written in another language.
3. Submit a documented financial statement that indicates ability to meet College and living expenses during their United States residency. A U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service Certification of Eligibility (I-20) will be issued to accepted students upon receipt of the Declaration of Finances and a tuition deposit.
4. Submit the results of the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) if English is not the applicant's native language. A minimum score of 550 is required for consideration for admission. If English is the applicant's native language, the results of the SAT or the ACT must be submitted.
5. Submit a completed application, with the $30 application fee, to the Office of Admissions, Emerson College, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116.

(International student applications must be received and completed by June 15th for admission for the fall term and November 15th for admission for the following spring term.)

Auditions and Portfolio Reviews

The Division of Performing Arts offers programs designed to meet the varied needs, goals, and talents of those interested in the broad field of theatre and performing arts. Admission to the Division is available to all students accepted for study at Emerson College; audition/portfolio review requirements vary by degree and program.

Students interested in a Performance concentration in Acting, Dance, or Musical Theatre should be aware that admission is competitive and it requires an audition/interview. Acceptance to these concentrations is limited and at the discretion of the Performance faculty. Individuals who are not accepted into this concentration at the time of their initial audition may elect to follow the General Theatre concentration and re-audition at the end of the first year.

Students interested in the General Theatre concentration are recommended to audition, but are not required to do so. Classes in acting, movement, musical theatre, dance, design and music are available to all students who meet the specific requirements.

Students interested in the Design/Technical concentration are encouraged to schedule an interview and portfolio review. Although it is not required, an interview allows the faculty to assess the student's needs for proper course placement.

Notice of dates and procedures for auditions/interviews will be sent in late winter to those students who have been accepted into the College as freshmen and who have expressed an interest in a Performing Arts major.

Because the Performing Arts curriculum at Emerson is designed to allow students time to explore concentrations and degree options, the degree and program choice is usually not determined until the end of the sophomore year.

Early Admission

Academically qualified high school students may apply during their junior year for admission as freshmen at Emerson starting the following fall. The freshman year at the College may then be used to substitute for the senior year in high school if the student has the approval of the secondary school. The College welcomes inquiries from those who feel they are prepared scholastically and socially to undertake college work.

Following successful completion of the freshman year, the former secondary school must agree to grant a high school diploma.

Readmission

Students who have withdrawn from the College without requesting a leave of absence must reapply by submitting a Re–Admit form, with a $10 application fee, to the Office of Admissions. Students being readmitted to the College must pay a non-refundable $50 tuition deposit upon acceptance. This deposit will be applied toward the first term's billing.

Leave of Absence

A student in good academic standing may apply for a leave of absence to take advantage of a professional or educational opportunity. The granting of a leave of absence does not exempt a student from financial responsibilities as stated in the financial policies section of this catalogue. Before returning to Emerson a Re-Admit Form must be completed and submitted to the Admissions Office. Once the student has been re-admitted by the Admissions Office, has paid a $50.00 tuition deposit and received financial clearance, the student may be advised and register for classes. The tuition deposit is applied to the first billing.

Transfer Credit

Transfer credit is allowed for comparable course work at other institutions if the applicant received a grade of at least C for that course. However, no more than sixty-four (64) credits are transferable from a two-year institution. After a student is offered admission, a complete and official transcript evaluation will be made by the Office of the Registrar. The report of this evaluation provided to the student will include notification of class standing, transferable credits, and requirements completed as of that date.

International Baccalaureate

Emerson College welcomes applications from students enrolled in the International Baccalaureate (EBB) program. College credit for IB and Certificate coursework will be awarded on an individually determined basis following a transcript evaluation by the Registrar.

Advanced Placement Program

The College participates in the College Entrance Examination Board's Advanced Placement Program which is offered to high school seniors who have taken college level courses. A student achieving a score of three or above will receive credit for one course and advanced placement in that subject. Interested students must submit official test results to the Office of the Registrar.

College Level Examination Program (CLEP)

Students who have been out of school a minimum of three years may receive credit for relevant life experience equivalent to college level course work based on the examination results of the College Level Examination Program (CLEP) of the College Entrance Examination Board. No more than thirty-two credits may be granted to a student under this program. Credit will be honored only for results of tests taken after a student has been out of school for three years and prior to enrollment at Emerson. Contact the Registrar's Office for details.

Disabled Students

Students with a disability that may affect access to Emerson activities and courses should contact an Admissions counselor to explore the College's capacity to accommodate their needs.

Non-Discriminatory Policy

Emerson College admits qualified students of any race, color, national and ethnic origin, sex, age, or handicap to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the College. It does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national and ethnic origin, sex, age, or handicap in the administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, athletic, and other college programs. Applicants seeking information on these matters should call or write the Affirmative Action Office, Emerson College, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116, (617) 578-8580.

Admission Fees

First time students should expect to incur the following costs during the admissions process:

- A $30 application fee, non-refundable, due when the application is submitted.
- A $200 tuition deposit upon confirmation of acceptance of admission to the College. This deposit is refundable for freshmen candidates until May 1 for the fall term and refundable for transfer candidates up to June 1 for the fall term. Tuition deposits for mid-year are not refundable. This deposit will be applied toward the student's first term billing.
- A room deposit of $300 for students applying for on-campus housing. This deposit is refundable for freshmen candidates up to May 1 for the fall term and refundable for transfer candidates up to June 1. Dormitory deposits for students who plan to enter in the spring term are not refundable.

Student Life

Emerson provides a broad range of student development programs and services to complement the academic programs of the College. Open communication between and among students, faculty, and administrators is maintained and students are encouraged to seek support and guidance from all members of the College community.

Students are encouraged to become involved immediately in the wide variety of productions and professional experiences available through the various academic Divisions and co-curricular programs. In addition to on-campus opportunities, many students work off-campus in production companies, advertising firms, social service organizations, local and state government, and broadcasting stations. No restrictions are placed on the Emerson student with respect to working or gaining professional experience off-campus except for a limit on the number of academic credits that may be earned for internships. As a major media market, Boston provides opportunities for students interested in all aspects of communication and the performing arts. Students are encouraged to establish professional relationships outside the College, and many Emerson graduates find a place on the career ladder as a result of these experiences.

Social life at the College almost invariably includes the many activities available in greater Boston, including symphony orchestras, professional theatres, museums, ballets, parks, historical landmarks, and professional sports teams. Emerson is within walking distance of shopping, entertainment, restaurants, and most cultural events. Buses and subways provide easy access to travel in and around Boston. Winter sports areas are only a couple of hours away, and summer beaches are even closer.

Student Resources

The Office of the Dean of Students oversees the Division of Student Affairs which is responsible for assisting students with all aspects of adjustment to college life, and is committed to fostering an environment outside the classroom that encourages individual growth and development. The Student Affairs staff is involved in the development and implementation of many programs and services, including New Student Orientation, student organization consultation, and student leadership training. The Office of the Dean of Students is located in the Student Union at 96 Beacon Street.

Support services are available to assist students with problems or unanticipated crises, to plan activities, and to listen to student suggestions and complaints. Individual counseling, that assures confidentiality, is also available to help students with academic, career, and personal concerns.

New Student Orientation. Orientation is the time set aside during the first few days at Emerson to welcome freshmen and transfer students to the campus community. Academic possibilities are explored through meetings with advisors, and various activities are planned to assist new students in acclimating to their new environment. During Orientation students are also introduced to many of the co-curricular activities that strengthen the College's communication and performing arts academic programs.

Counseling Center. The Counseling Center provides assistance to students with a wide variety of personal and emotional concerns. The services offered by the Center's psychologists include individual counseling, time-limited psychotherapy, crisis intervention, and referrals to outside agencies and therapists.

Confidentiality is guaranteed to all students visiting the Counseling Center.

Health Clinic. The Emerson College Health Clinic, located adjacent to the Charlesgate residence hall, strives to meet the immediate health needs of both resident and commuter students, and provides both follow-up and educational services, including general medical care, health counseling and education, routine lab work, and referrals to other health specialists when appropriate. Confidentiality is guaranteed to all students using the Health Clinic. Dental service is not available at the Clinic, but referrals are made to dentists in the community. The Clinic is medically-staffed Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. After 5:00 p.m., and on weekends and holidays, the College has an arrangement with the New England Deaconess Hospital, where students can seek medical advice and care. A staff of registered nurses, a College physician and a gynecologist are available at the Emerson College Health Clinic.

All students are required to obtain a medical history and record of a physical examination on file in the Health Clinic prior to their first registration.

Health Insurance. All students are required to be covered by a comprehensive health insurance plan. Students must choose the group health and accident insurance plan offered through Emerson College or demonstrate that they have comparable alternative coverage.

Office of Multi-cultural Affairs. The Office of Multi-cultural Affairs coordinates programming and support services for AHANA (African, Hispanic, Asian and Native American) students. The advisor is available to discuss academic, cultural, personal, and social concerns. All students are encouraged to meet with the advisor. The Office of Multi-cultural Affairs is located in the Cultural Center, behind 132 Beacon Street.

Cultural Center. The Cultural Center, located behind 132 Beacon Street, provides educational, cultural, and social activities to support AHANA students. A library of resources related to multi-cultural issues is housed in the Center, and library cards are available. The E.B.O.N.I. (Emerson's Black Organization with Natural Interests) Office is also located in the Center.

International Student Advisor. International students are provided support by the Assistant Dean of Students. Through this office international students have their immigration forms processed, receive advice regarding I-20's and practical training, and discuss issues related to academics and adjustment to the United States. The advisor plans orientation, informational meetings, and social programs for foreign students.

Athletics and Recreation. The Athletics and Recreation Department coordinates the College's inter-collegiate, intramural, and recreational sports programs for men and women, and teaches a course in physical and health education. The department shares the philosophy stated in the modern Olympic motto: "The essential thing in life is not conquering, but fighting well; the important thing in sports is not winning, but taking part." No student has ever been denied the opportunity to compete in a varsity program because of ability.

Varsity programs include men's baseball, men's and women's basketball, coed golf, men's hockey, coed soccer, women's softball, men's and women's tennis, women's volleyball, and men's wrestling. Intramural and recreational programs include basketball, flag football, sailing, softball, volleyball, and weight lifting.

Religious Activities. The Office of Religious Activities exists to promote both a sense of community among persons of different faiths, and educational and spiritual growth on an individual basis for interested students, faculty, and staff. Members of the clergy and lay ministry from a variety of traditions are available through this office.

Student Union. The Union at 96 Beacon Street is the "living room" of the College, where all members of Emerson are invited to gather. The services and programs are designed to bring students, faculty, and administrators together to facilitate communication and build a sense of community.

Housed in the Union are an information center, vending center, ride board, student lounge, piano room, meeting and conference rooms, leadership library, graphic resources, student organization offices, the Office of Housing and Residence Life, the Office of Religious Activities, the Office of Student Life, the International Student Advisor, the Dean of Students, and the Assistant Director of Student Life/Union.

Residential Living

Emerson residence halls offer students the opportunity to live in the city of Boston, and develop responsibility and independence by taking part in planning numerous educational, cultural and social activities for their residence halls. All Emerson students may apply for on-campus residence hall accommodations.

All freshmen not commuting from home are expected to live in on-campus housing during their first year at Emerson. Those who have been out of high school for one year may request, through the Assistant Dean of Housing and Residence Life, to live off-campus.

Professional staff serve as resident directors and upperclassmen serve as resident assistants. The primary goal of the residence hall staff is to assist students in cultivating and maintaining a cooperative environment conducive to intellectual, personal, and social development.

All residence halls are within walking distance of the main campus, and are very much a part of the architecturally beautiful Back Bay. The address of our residence halls are:

Boston, MA 02116

132-134 Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02116

534 Beacon Street
Boston, MA 02115

4 Charlesgate East
Boston, MA 02115

6 Arlington Street
Boston, MA 02116

"The Fensgate" at 534 Beacon Street and "The Charlesgate" at 4 Charlesgate East are approximately one mile from the main campus. The College provides bus service to transport students between these residence halls and the main campus. The other three residence halls are located on the main campus.

The College provides breakfast, lunch, and dinner in the College Dining Commons for students living on- and off-campus. The meal plan is mandatory for all undergraduate students living in the residence halls. There are several meal plan options from which to choose.

For further details, students should contact the Housing and Residence Life Office, 96 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116.

Student Activities

Co-curricular activities, including student clubs and organizations, are an important part of life at Emerson. Emerson clubs and organizations provide students with valuable opportunities to gain practical experience in production and performance outside the classroom. Students get involved in management, leadership, and interpersonal relationships which encourage them to develop both personally and professionally.

In addition, there are various planned activities at Emerson designed to assist students in their overall development: social events give all Emerson students a chance to get to know one another; cultural events serve to teach students about people different from themselves; recreational events help students gain confidence in physical activities; and educational seminars expose students to a variety of issues and concerns both inside and outside their major fields of study or immediate areas of interest.

Student Government Association. The Student Government Association (SGA) was formed to "establish a firm government to supervise student activities, to promote general welfare, and to provide adequate channels for expression of student viewpoints in all areas of college life . . ." The SGA, in cooperation with the Student Affairs staff, plans and executes College activities, and allocates and supervises funding to student clubs and organizations. All students are responsible for paying an activities fee and are entitled to SGA benefits. Through its elected officials, the SGA serves as a liaison between students and the College administration. It is responsible for selecting student membership on various College committees dealing with College policy, physical facilities, discipline, programming, and a variety of other areas.

American Advertising Federation - Emerson College Chapter. The only national affiliation offered exclusively to advertising students. The Chapter participates in the National Student Advertising Competition developing a marketing plan, advertising campaign and media strategy for a national company. Alpha Delta Sigma Honorary Society within the framework of the Chapter program is the only national honorary society for advertising students. The Chapter hosts a speakers' program, career development sessions and networks within the local and regional professionals.

American Marketing Association - Emerson Collegiate Chapter. Membership in the AMA Collegiate Chapter offers students a practical application of marketing principles as well as a chance to network with marketing professionals. Speaker programs and meetings are geared to the needs of students and expose them to a diverse group of practitioners who might provide a winning career strategy or job opportunity.

The Berkeley Beacon. Issued every week during the academic year, this College newspaper is completely student produced and open to all students.

Broadcasting Comedy. Broadcasting Comedy offers students interested in television and theatrical production an educational experience to combine both aspects of Mass Communication.

Chorus. Annually presenting concerts and other performances, students are encouraged to audition through the Performing Arts Division.

Communication, Politics and Law Society. Started in 1985, the organization is devoted to exploring various activities integral to communication, politics and law. Students participate in speeches, debates, forums, internships and work in campaigns throughout the country. The Marderosian Forums, featuring speakers such as Senator Mark Hatfield and Mayor Tom Bradley are sponsored by CPL as is the British Debate Tour.

Communication Studies Political News Study Group. It is open to all students interested in contemporary critical analysis of political communication through various media. Involves intensive work with professors of the Division on projects examining polispots, newspapers, television and speeches.

Commuter Club. Representing off-campus students, this organization sponsors social events and provides services to meet the particular needs of commuters.

Creative Dimensions. Creative Dimensions is a student-run, in-house advertising and public relations agency that provides services for other Emerson student organizations and activities.

Developed Images. Emerson's only creative black and white photography magazine. Photographs may be submitted by anyone in the Emerson community.

E.B.O.N.I. Emerson's Black Organization with Natural Interests (E.B.O.N.I.) is dedicated to furthering the influence of its members in the academic, cultural and social activities of the College and the community.

Emerson College Catholic Organization (ECCO). ECCO provides opportunities for Catholic Students to develop their faith and to work on-campus in sponsoring religious, social, educational and service-oriented activities.

Emerson College Political Awareness Organization (EPAO). The Political Awareness Organization provides a forum for the exchange of political knowledge and ideas. The non-partisan group encourages active participation in the political process by sponsoring fundraisers, lectures, exhibits, rallies and influential persons from all fields concerned with global issues.

Emerson College Programming Council (E.C.P.C.). Provides free and/or cost efficient social, recreational, and educational programs to the Emerson community. These events include Hand–Me–Down Night, Spring Fling, dances, coffeehouses, speakers, and off-campus trips. Membership is open to all students who wish to have fun, increase their organizational skills, learn more about promoting events, and work with other students, entertainers, faculty, and administrators.

Emerson Comedy Workshop. Students of comedy writing, film making, and performance for radio, television, and the stage can perform and/or have material performed at semi-annual workshops.

Emerson Dance Company. The Emerson Dance Company is a student organization that welcomes both the accomplished and beginning dancer. The group offers opportunity and growth in the areas of performance and choreography. They also offer master classes by well-known choreographers and dancers that are open to the Emerson community.

Emerson Independent Video (EIV). Emerson Independent Video (EIV) is a student-run organization serving the Emerson community. Its goal is to allow students to apply their skills in all phases of television production in a professional atmosphere. EIV produces over four hours of programming a week. There are five half hour shows produced each week as well as three half hour newscasts each week. One of the five public affairs shows has twice aired for thirteen weeks on local station WQTV-68, and another has aired on cable throughout New England. EIV has remote equipment for on-location shoots and its own editing facility for post-production. EIV also produces the EVVY Awards, Emerson's own EMMY awards, where distinguished people from the industry give awards to Emerson's best. The EVVYs ceremony is a major event in the Emerson community.

Emerson International Student Association. Provides social, educational, and cultural programs designed to support international students and increase cultural awareness within the College community.

The Emerson Review. This award-winning literary magazine is edited by undergraduates and issued bi-annually. It includes short stories, poetry, articles and reviews by students, as well as work solicited from graduate students, faculty, and guest authors.

Emersonian. This student-produced College yearbook is a permanent chronicle of the days, people, places and events of the academic year.

Film Arts Society (FAS). FAS explores all facets of independent silent and sound filmmaking, including various forms of animation and experimental film. In addition to producing a film newsletter, the Society presents feature films to the student body and views professional films not readily available in commercial theatres.

Forensic Society. The Forensic Society is a nationally recognized competitive speech and debate organization. Novice and varsity debaters are provided the experience which has led Emerson teams to an outstanding record in national competition. The Society sponsors debate tournaments and student attendance at speech tournaments throughout the nation.

Gangsters in Concrete. The Gangsters in Concrete organization encourages experimentation, exploration, and enthusiasm in the writing and reading of poetry and prose through workshops, seminars, and readings. It is also a biannual publication of poetry and prose by students only.

Hands-On Experience. Hands-On Experience is a student-run organization to promote awareness about the deaf and to teach sign language to students in all fields of study. Students perform on-campus as well as in the community by incorporating sign language, music, movement and the dramatic arts.

Hillel. Emerson's chapter of Hillel provides social, cultural, religious and educational activities for those students wishing to learn of and participate in the traditions of Jewish life.

Hyena. Hyena, Emerson's humor magazine, founded in 1979, provides an outlet for both written and visual humor.

Musical Theatre Society (MTS). MTS provides opportunities for participation in musical productions on and off campus. The Society sponsors special guest appearances by leading musical theatre personalities, is responsible for administration of an Award of Distinction, and co-produces a major spring musical in association with the Performing Arts Division.

National Student Speech-Language-Hearing Association (NSSLHA). NSSLHA encourages professional interest in the study of normal and disordered human communication behaviors. Students are provided the opportunity to expand their knowledge of communication disorders through conferences, workshops, lectures, and other experiences.

Oral Interpretation Society. Society members promote the oral presentation of literature and represent the College at oral interpretation festivals nationwide. The Society also sponsors Emerson's Oral Interpretation Festival each spring.

Political News Study Society. A student-run research group interested in the contemporary critical analysis of political communication through various media. Members of the society work with faculty examining polispots, newspapers, television, and speeches.

Radio and Television News Directors Association (RTNDA) . The Radio and Television News Directors Association is an international organization of Mass Communication students dedicated to improving communications between students and professionals. RTNDA invites experts to criticize students' work, sponsors student-run workshops, and acquaints students with professionals through networking.

Society for the Advancement of Management (S.A.M.). S.A.M. is dedicated to increasing student awareness of management opportunities in the business community through sponsoring company tours, professional speakers, and management related workshops.

Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ). A student chapter of this prestigious national professional organization is open to students committed to a career in journalism. SPJ activities include professional programs, service activities, and social events.

Student Alumni Relations Association (SARA). SARA is a group of student leaders from each class who create ways for students on and off campus to interact with alumni. This interaction serves to highlight and further the Emerson Experience. For more information call 578-8535.

Student Ambassador Club. The Ambassador Club is a student-run public relations organization dedicated to helping recruit prospective students. In conjunction with the Admissions office, the organization conducts campus tours, hosts prospective students and participates in high school visits.

Students Offering Service (S.O.S.). Students Offering Service is Emerson's newest organization, the first to concentrate solely on service-oriented projects. S.O.S. is a campus-wide, non-academic, non-profit group that promotes active participation in causes with social impact.

Swollen Monkey Showcase. This comedy and improvisation group performs original material throughout the year at New Student Orientation, Parents' Weekend, and scheduled showcase performances on-campus and at Boston's comedy clubs. Auditions are held each semester for students interested in comedy writing and/or performing. Membership is open to those students interested in production and advertising aspects of the organization.

This is Pathetic. This is Pathetic is a comedy group that writes, produces, and stages two performances a year. Its specialty is improvisational comedy.

Varsity Club. This organization encourages men and women interested in sports on campus to provide support services to the Athletics and Recreation Department.

WECB(AM). This closed-circuit radio station (650 AM) serves the Emerson residence halls and dining facility. The station is staffed by students and operates on revenue generated through advertising. Auditions are held at the beginning of each term. Positions are available in sales, promotion, production, public relations, programming, music announcing, news reporting and sportscasting.

WERS(FM). WERS(FM) (88.9) provides the Greater Boston area with a powerful broadcast signal of approximately 3,000 watts, reaching out a radius of 100 miles. This station is recognized nationally for its excellence in programming, and was recently chosen as Boston's best radio station by Boston magazine. WERS(FM) is non-commercial, self-supporting and is operated completely by students. Auditions are held at the beginning of each term.

Fraternities and Sororities

Alpha Pi Theta. A local social fraternity with goals of brotherhood, love, and trust.

Chi Delta Chi. A social and support sorority based on trust, friendship, love, and individuality.

Epsilon Omega Psi. Epsilon Omega Psi is a multi-cultural institution reaching out to other students on campus and the greater Boston community. Epsilon Omega Psi emphasizes through oral tradition the special "something" everyone's heritage offers the collective whole.

Kappa Gamma Chi. A professional and social sorority dealing with community service in Boston and the College.

Phi Alpha Tau. The oldest communication arts fraternity in the United States. Tau provides special programs and services at Emerson, including the biannual College press conference and presentation of the Joseph E. Connor Award.

Rho Delta Omega. A social fraternity that takes pride in promoting activities that serve as healthy release from the tensions of academic life.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Emerson College's extension of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon national fraternity exists to perpetuate perfect brotherhood among its members, as well as serve the College and its community through various social and charitable functions.

Sigma Pi Theta. A social sorority dedicated to stimulating unity, growth, support, and awareness among the women at Emerson College.

Honorary Societies

Alpha Epsilon Rho. Outstanding junior and senior broadcasting students are eligible for this national honorary broadcasting fraternity.

Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha. This forensic fraternity, founded in 1906, admits debaters who have intercollegiate forensic experience and members of the faculty who have been associated with debate.

The Gold Key Honor Society. The Gold Key Honor Society is Emerson's official academic honor society. To qualify, a student must be either a junior or senior, and have achieved a 3.45 or better average with no fewer than 64 credits earned at Emerson College.

Lambda Pi Epsilon. A national honor society for students who have achieved academic distinction in communication. Open to juniors and seniors in Communication Studies; eligible students must have achieved a 3.25 in their major and a 3.0 overall.

Zeta Phi Eta. The Alpha chapter of the oldest national professional fraternity in the communication arts and sciences was founded at Emerson College in 1908. Membership is based on recommendation and scholarship in speech. Major community projects have included tutoring at the Perkins School for the Blind and touring elementary schools with Reader's Theater programs.

Dramatic, Dance and Musical Production Activities

Student participation in dramatic productions at the College is almost unlimited. Students can be active in dance, drama, musical theatre, children's theatre, puppet theatre, and comedy. The Division of Performing Arts encourages all students to participate in both on and off-campus productions.

Emerson Stage. Emerson Stage, the Division of Performing Arts Production Program, presents many events annually, from every major theatrical genre. Students are exposed to a wide range of performance and production opportunities, such as:

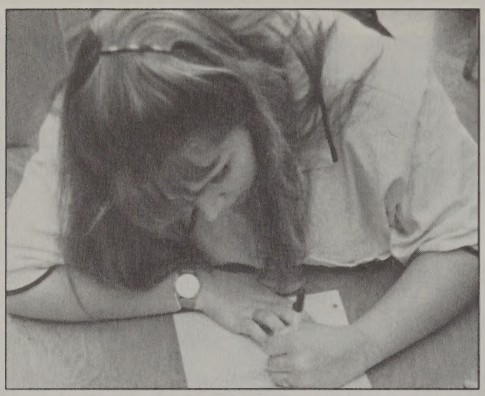
Mainstage and Studio Shows. Students may audition for a variety of individual productions in one of the performance spaces: The Mainstage at the Emerson Majestic Theatre or the Studio at the Brimmer Street facility.

Class Projects. Actor Training Projects, Mini-Musicals, BFA Dance Concerts; all feature the work of students as directors and performers.

Loft Program. The Loft Season utilizes the skills of advanced student directors and designers.

Circle Program. Coordinated by undergraduate students, the Circle Studio series gives ample opportunity to work experimentally in drama and dance.

For a more extensive list and expanded description of student clubs and organizations, consult the Student Handbook. Copies are available in the Dean of Students Office, in the Student Union at 96 Beacon Street.



Financial Assistance

Emerson College's Financial Assistance Program helps qualified students and families finance their education. Sources of assistance include scholarships, grants, employment, loans, or a combination of these. Institutional funds at Emerson College are awarded on the basis of both financial eligibility and academic merit. All federal funds are awarded on the basis of financial eligibility. The responsibility for financing a college education initially rests with the student and his or her family, and assistance is provided by the College as a supplement to the family's effort.

Anyone wishing to apply for financial assistance should request a copy of the current edition of Emerson's Guide to Financial Assistance brochure from the Emerson Office of Financial Assistance, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116.

College Costs and Student Expense Budgets

The total cost of attending an institution is an important factor in family financial planning. The tuition, room and board and other fees and charges compose the majority of an Emerson student's expenses. However, books and supplies, personal needs and transportation must also be included. Students and parents should allow for inflation when considering financing four years of attendance at Emerson. The College estimates that the typical residence hall student should be prepared for costs of approximately $20,000 for the nine months of the 1990-91 school year, with commuting students spending perhaps $16,000.

All of the items listed above are used to determine the student's college budget. When the Office of Financial Assistance reviews an application to determine a student's financial eligibility, this entire college budget is used as a base, rather than merely the amount of the tuition and room/board bill.

A commuter is defined as a student living at home with his or her parents or other relative. If a student's living arrangements change after submitting the Financial Aid Form, he or she should contact the Office of Financial Assistance. This action may result in a change in the financial assistance offered.

Applications are processed with separate college budgets for married students and single parents.

Determining Independent Student Classification

The Office of Financial Assistance must determine who provides the major support of the student's education. When the parent(s) provide this support, the student is classified as a dependent student, and the award is based upon an analysis of the financial position of the parent(s) and student.

The responsibility for financing a college education rests with students and their families. In the distribution of institutional funds, Emerson College reserves the right to determine dependency status for each student.

An independent student is an individual who meets one of the following criteria:

1. An individual at least 24 years old by December 31 of the award year.
2. An orphan or ward of the court.
3. A veteran of the Armed Forces of the United States.
4. An individual with legal dependents other than a spouse.
5. A graduate or professional student who will not be claimed as an income tax exemption by his or her parents for the first calendar year of the award year (e.g., calendar year 1990 for award year 1990-91.)
6. A married person who will not be claimed as an income tax exemption by his or her parents for the first calendar year of the award year.
7. A single person with no dependents who was not claimed as a dependent by his or her parents for the two calendar years preceding the award year and demonstrates self-sufficiency for those two years as evidenced by an annual total income of at least $4,000 in each of those years.

Independent students should see the instructions on the Financial Aid Form (FAF) when applying for assistance. All independent students will be required to submit copies of their parents' previous year's federal income tax return to the Office of Financial Assistance.

Application Procedures

To be considered for financial assistance at Emerson College, a student must be accepted for admission into a degree granting program and plan to attend college on at least a half-time basis (eight or more credits). The procedures that should be completed when applying for assistance are described below:

Step 1: Complete the Financial Aid Form
The Financial Aid Form (FAF) assists the College in determining the applicant's financial eligibility. The FAF asks for information regarding the family's income, assets, debts, family size, and any extraordinary expenses, such as high medical bills. The FAF is sent to the College Scholarship Service which calculates the expected family contribution using formulas set down by the United States Office of Education. Parents' information must be provided for all dependent and independent students. The code number for Emerson College is 3367.

To receive priority consideration for financial assistance, the FAF and all supporting documentation must be received by Emerson College by March 1, 1990. The student's application for admission must also be complete by this date.

Students whose files are completed between March 1 and June 1 will receive secondary consideration for assistance. Emerson College will make every effort to reserve institutional and federal funds for students who apply during this period. If, however, the demands on funds by students are greater than projected, it may not be possible to offer certain types of assistance to students whose files are completed during this time. Applications completed after June 1, 1990 will be considered on an availability of funds basis.

Step 2: Apply for a Pell Grant
All undergraduate students must file for a Pell Grant by completing the appropriate sections of the FAF.

Step 3: Apply for State Grants and Scholarships
All students must apply for any type of state grant or scholarship for which they qualify. Massachusetts and several adjoining states have grants and scholarships which can be used to attend Emerson College. In most cases, students can apply for these funds by completing their state's FAF. It is not necessary to file a national FAF if you have filed a state-specific FAF.

Step 4: Supply all Required Documentation
All dependent and selected independent students applying for assistance at Emerson College must submit a signed, complete (including all schedules and forms) copy of their parents' and their own federal tax return for the 1989 year directly to the Office of Financial Assistance. Awards are not final until validated by all requested verification data. If tax returns are not filed, other documentation of income must be provided. Examples of alternative documentation include W-2 Forms or Social Security benefits statements.

Step 5: Submit a Financial Aid Transcript
All transfer students must obtain a Financial Aid Transcript from the Emerson College Office of Financial Assistance and send it to any post-secondary institution(s) previously attended (whether assistance was received or not.) The institution to which the form is sent will verify the amount of assistance previously received, and return the Financial Aid Transcript to Emerson College. No awards will be made without the return of this document.

Important Financial Assistance Dates

Fall Semester

January 15 All Students: FAF should be sent to the College Scholarship Service.

March 1 Freshmen: FAF and supporting documentation must be on file for priority consideration. Students who complete their applications by this date will receive an award letter by April 15.

April 15 Freshmen: Priority students will be notified of their financial assistance awards.

June 15 Upperclassmen: FAF and supporting documentation must be on file for priority consideration for financial assistance. Students will be notified of their financial assistance awards.

Spring Semester

December 1 Freshmen and Transfers: FAF and supporting documentation must be on file for priority consideration. Students who complete their application by this date will receive an award letter by December 10.

Award Procedures

Evaluation and Notification

Upon receipt of the Financial Aid Form, the College Scholarship Service analyzes the data. This information is then sent to the College, where a Financial Assistance officer reviews the information, taking into consideration any personal comments or unusual circumstances. The expected family contribution is then subtracted from the "college budget" to establish the student's level of financial eligibility. This amount is the maximum amount of financial assistance which a student is eligible to receive.

The Financial Assistance Committee approves all awards and offers this assistance to the student through a financial assistance notice. The student must accept the offer by signing and returning the College's copy of the letter. No assistance will be available to the student until this letter is returned.

Students who do not show financial eligibility are notified of their status by means of a letter. These students may apply for assistance through private scholarships or various types of alternative education loans.

Academic Eligibility Standards and Appeals Procedures
The Federal Higher Education Amendments of 1976 require the College to define and enforce standards for satisfactory academic progress. Students receiving financial assistance from federal, state, or institutional sources must conform to the College's definition of satisfactory progress.

To be eligible for financial assistance, a full-time student must successfully complete a minimum of 12 credits per semester. A part-time student must successfully complete 75% of his or her credits per semester. Students earning fewer than eight credits per semester are not eligible for financial assistance. NOTE: Grades or recorded symbols of F, WF, WP, I, AUD, and DEF are not considered as successfully completing a course.)

For academic eligibility, students must maintain a minimum cumulative average for freshmen (33 credits or less) of 1.7 and for upperclassmen (32 credits or more) of 2.0. The Registrar's Office will report grades to the Financial Assistance Office within two weeks of the receipt of grades each term. The student who falls below the minimum cumulative average, will lose his or her financial assistance for the following semester. A student also may lose financial assistance if he or she completes two consecutive semesters with a semester grade point average under 2.0 regardless of that student's cumulative average.

The Financial Assistance Office will notify by letter any student receiving financial assistance who does not meet minimum satisfactory progress standards and is being terminated from assistance. The notice will be addressed to the student's current permanent address on file in the Registrar's Office. Students may appeal the loss of assistance to the Financial Assistance Appeals Board.

Financial Assistance Disbursement
Financial assistance awards are distributed at the beginning of each term. Students receiving assistance must sign loan checks and any promissory notes prior to registration. Any unsigned checks are subject to cancellation. Pell Grants, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Emerson College Grants, and Perkins Loan funds will be credited directly to the student's account. By signing the financial assistance notice, students give the College permission to credit their account for the amount of the award listed per term. All notices must be signed before funds will be credited to the student's account.

Refunds will be extended to those who have completed the necessary documentation, and have been authorized by the Student Accounts Office. No refunds will be extended to students awaiting the receipt of a Stafford Loan or to students anticipating earnings from student employment. Students who reduce the number of course credit hours for which they are registered will be subject to having to repay the appropriate Financial Assistance Programs. Students working in the College Work-Study program will be subject to termination of employment if their course credit load places them below half-time status.

Students withdrawing from the College before funds are disbursed will not obtain assistance. Any money due to the College must be paid by the student. If a student withdraws after funds have been disbursed, the refunds from unused portions of fees, room, rent, or meals will be applied to the Financial Assistance obtained by the student.

Scholarships and Grants

These programs are monetary awards not requiring repayment or service by the student. Grants are awarded to students demonstrating financial eligibility. Such students are eligible for grants as long as their academic record is above the minimum required to maintain good standing with the College. A scholarship is based upon academic achievement and financial eligibility.

Emerson Scholarship. Emerson Scholarships are used to help recognize academic excellence and are awarded on the basis of both eligibility and academic achievement. Students must be enrolled full-time and meet the academic requirements set forth by the institution. Students must apply for this scholarship each year.

Emerson Grant. Emerson Grants are awarded to students solely on financial eligibility determined by the Financial Assistance Office from information provided by the students and family. This award has the same enrollment and application requirements as Emerson Scholarships.

Pell Grant. This grant is a federal program established to provide eligible students with financial assistance. Pell Grant funds are available to students enrolled half-time (eight credits) or more per semester who have not earned a first bachelor's degree. Eligibility is determined on financial need. Awards are determined by a federal formula applied to all applicants.

Students apply by completing the Financial Aid Form after January 1, or by completing a separate Federal Aid Application. Pell Grants are awarded directly by the federal government and are disbursed by the College.

Massachusetts State Scholarship. To be eligible, a student must be a resident of Massachusetts for one year prior to the start of the academic year and be enrolled as a full-time undergraduate student. To apply, students must complete a Massachusetts Financial Aid Form before the appropriate deadline date.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (SEOG). The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant is a federal program to assist in making the benefits of post-secondary education available to students. SEOG awards range from a minimum of $100 to a maximum of $4,000 per year.

To be eligible, students must be enrolled at least half-time in an undergraduate course of study and show financial eligibility. Recipients and the amount of the award are determined by the College.

Students filing the FAF will automatically be considered for this grant.

Other State Scholarship Programs. Several other states have educational grants which can be used to attend Emerson College. Currently, these states include Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Washington, D.C. Eligibility requirements, grant amounts, and deadline dates vary for each state.

Restricted Scholarships

Emerson College has a number of restricted scholarships. These are awarded to students who meet the eligibility requirements set forth by the respective donor. All awards are made by the Financial Assistance Committee. If the award is designated for a student(s) in a particular academic Division, that Division is consulted.

Eckardt and Barbara Horowitz Beck Achievement Scholarships. Established by a gift from Eckardt C. '68 and Barbara H. '69 Beck. Awarded on the basis of excellence in communication to students with freshman, sophmore or junior standing who demonstrate financial need. The scholarships are to be credited toward tuition for the following year.

Lou Marcel Scholarship. Named in honor of Lou Marcel, who was a radio personality for many years with WCCM in Lawrence, MA, this scholarship is awarded annually to a sophomore, junior, or senior majoring in radio/TV journalism. The student must exhibit good scholarship, demonstrate financial need, and reside in the Greater Lawrence area.

Arch Macdonald Scholarship. Named in honor of Arch Macdonald, Boston's first anchor man and a distinguished broadcast journalist for many years, this scholarship is awarded annually to a junior or senior majoring in broadcast journalism. The student must demonstrate academic achievement, financial need, and potential for success as a professional.

Phyllis Adams McCullough Scholarship. Awarded to a Performing Arts student who demonstrates financial need.

Joy McKinley Scholarship. Awarded each year to a student majoring in Communication Disorders. Award recipients are recommended by the Chair of the Communication Disorders Division.

Gertrude Morrison Scholarship. Established under the will of Gertrude Morrison '15, H'62, for a talented and worthy student.

New England Theatre Conference Scholarship. Awarded each year to an outstanding high school student interested in studying drama and theatre. Recipients are chosen by members of the Performing Arts Division, based upon their performance in auditions held at the annual New England Theatre Conference.

Joseph Noe Scholarship. Awarded to students on the basis of academic achievement and financial need.

Leo and Regina Posnansky Scholarship. Established by a gift from Daniel Posnansky in honor of his parents, this scholarship is awarded annually on the basis of financial need and academic achievement.

Mabel A. Putnam Scholarship. Established by Mabel A. Putnam to be awarded to a student demonstrating high academic achievement and financial need.

Ellen A. Reich Scholarship. Awarded to a student who demonstrates financial need and superior academic achievement.

Dean Harry Seymour Ross Scholarship. Established by a gift from Zarie Noorjanian '30 in honor of former Emerson College President Harry Seymour Ross, this scholarship is awarded annually to a student in the Communication Studies Division on the basis of high academic standing and financial need.

Bertha Clogston Reynolds Scholarship. Awarded on the basis of high academic performance and financial need.

Leonard J. Riendeau Scholarship. Awarded to a junior or senior student with a concentration in theatre education who shows financial need and who has maintained at least a 3.2 grade point average by the end of Term I of the sophomore year. Applicants are requested to complete an essay stating reasons for their interest in theatre education.

RKO General, Inc. Endowed Minority Scholarship The RKO General, Inc. Endowed Minority Scholarship Fund was established in 1982-83 by RKO General through grants of $233,000. Awarded to minority residents of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts majoring in one or more areas of communication to the public (radio/television, film or print/broadcast journalism). Scholarships are awarded to students who demonstrate academic achievement, with preference to those students who show financial need.

Saga Marriott Corporation Scholarship. Awarded to students on the basis of financial need and academic achievement.

Sadie A. O'Connell Scholarship. Established by a gift from Zarie Noorjanian '30 in honor of her former Milford High School English teacher Sadie A. O'Connell '21. This scholarship is awarded annually to a student in the Division of Writing, Literature and Publishing on the basis of high academic standing and financial need.

Isabel Sanford Scholarship. The Isabel Sanford Scholarship is given each year to a qualified Black student whose studies are in the areas of performance or writing for the theatre, television, or film. This scholarship is awarded to a junior student at the conclusion of the junior year, for use toward his or her senior year education.

Maurice and Anna Saval Scholarships. Awarded to juniors and seniors based upon academic achievement and financial need.

Rena Shapiro Scholarship Fund. Named in honor of Rena Shapiro '81, this scholarship is awarded annually to a Theatre Education major who demonstrates financial need and who intends a career teaching children. The recipient will be selected by the faculty of the Performing Arts Division in concert with the Financial Assistance office.

Toba Berman Smokler Scholarship. Established by a gift from Toba Berman Smokler '38, this scholarship is awarded annually to a student from the Midwest who demonstrates academic excellence and financial need.

WCVB-TV Scholarship. The WCVB-TV Scholarship provides funds for tuition, fees, and books to a student in broadcast communication who is considered disadvantaged. Preference is given to Black, Hispanic, Oriental, or American Indian students. The scholarship is awarded to a student enrolled in either the junior or senior year, or in a graduate program. The recipient must be an American citizen or satisfactorily demonstrate that he or she plans to remain in the United States for his or her life work. Emerson College has sole responsibility to select the recipient.

WCRB Scholarship. The WCRB scholarship is awarded to a student of academic merit and financial need entering the radio broadcasting field. Priority is given to minority women students.

Janet Smith Yorston Scholarship. Established by bequest of Janet Smith Yorston '37, H'58 to provide scholarship assistance on the basis of financial need and academic achievement.

Loan Programs

Recipients of loans have an obligation to repay the lender (whether the federal government or a private agency such as a bank), generally after graduation or leaving school. Under certain conditions, a loan may be at lower than market rate interest or may be forgiven if the recipient enters certain professions.

Perkins Loans (formerly the NDSL Program). The Perkins Loan is available to students who demonstrate financial eligibility and are attending an accredited institution on at least a half-time basis. Students may borrow up to $4,500 during their first two years of school; a cumulative total of $9,000 during their undergraduate career. Borrowers must sign a promissory note and complete an entrance interview prior to the loan disbursement. Repayment at 5% interest begins nine months after the borrower graduates or leaves school. Billing for repayment of the loan usually is done quarterly, with a minimum monthly payment of $30, and a maximum repayment period of ten years. There are a variety of deferment and cancellation provisions for new borrowers. The promissory note contains information about these privileges. Perkins loans are awarded and distributed by the College.

Stafford Loan (formerly the GSL Program). Stafford Loans are low interest, long-term loans available to students with a demonstrated financial eligibility to help meet their educational expenses. A student who is enrolled on at least a half-time basis at a participating school is eligible to borrow $2,625 per year during the first two years of undergraduate study, and up to $4,000 per year for the third and fourth years of education. Students may borrow up to $17,250 during their undergraduate program.

Applications for this program are available from private lending institutions (banks or savings and loan associations) in the state where the student is a permanent resident. The interest is eight percent per year for the first four (4) years of repayment and 10% for years five (5) through ten (10). No interest will be charged on the loan while the student is enrolled on at least a half-time basis. Repayment of the principal amount, with interest, will begin six months after graduation or after the borrower ceases to be enrolled at least half-time. The minimum monthly payment is $50, with a maximum repayment period of ten years.

Employment

College Work-Study Program (CWS). The primary purpose of the College Work-Study Program is to promote the part-time employment of eligible students. To apply, students must be enrolled at least half-time, demonstrate financial need, and show a willingness to work to finance their educational expenses. Students may be employed as typists, library assistants, lab assistants, and so forth.

For further information on Student Employment Programs, please refer to the Emerson Student Employment Guide brochure, which is available from the Office of Financial Assistance. College Work-Study money is awarded and disbursed through the College in the form of wages.

Emerson Employment. The Emerson Employment Program follows essentially the same policies and procedures as the federal College Work-Study Program. However, there are several major differences. Emerson Employment positions are not awarded as part of a financial package. Students do not have to be eligible for financial assistance to apply for an Emerson Employment position.

Job Location and Development Program (JLD). Students desiring off-campus employment during the academic year or summer may choose to participate in the Job Location and Development Program. The JLD program is a job location and referral service designed to encourage and develop part-time employment for all enrolled students regardless of their financial situation.

Job openings (regular employment situations) are located and posted in the Financial Assistance Office. Interested students register with the program and may pursue the employment opportunities listings that match their skills and qualifications. Please note that students are not directly placed into these jobs through this program. The student has the responsibility of obtaining the job through a successful interview with the employer. All wages are paid by the employer. For more information regarding the Job Location and Development Program, contact the program directly at 578-8659.

Alternative Financing Options

Parent Loan Program (PLUS). Parent Loans for Undergraduate Students are insured loans that provide funds to parents of dependent students for the educational expenses. A parent may be eligible to borrow up to $4,000 on a student's behalf per year, for a combined total of $20,000. The PLUS loan may be used to meet all or part of the expected family contribution as calculated from the Financial Aid Form.

Repayment of this loan begins within 60 days after receipt of the loan. However, interest will accrue and must be paid by the parents. For loans made after July 1, 1987, a variable interest rate will be calculated based on a federal formula. A new rate will be set each calendar year, but cannot exceed 12%. Applications are obtained directly from the lender.

Supplemental Loans for Students (SLS). Supplemental Loans for Students are insured loans that provide funds to independent students for educational expenses.

A student may be eligible to borrow up to $4,000 per year for a cumulative total of $20,000. These limits do not include amounts borrowed under the Stafford Loan program.

The first payment will be due within 60 days after the receipt of the loan. Payment of loan principal and interest may be deferred during in-school status. A student may also defer payment of interest during in-school status. The deferred interest is capitalized, that is, added to the principal balance to be repaid after graduation.

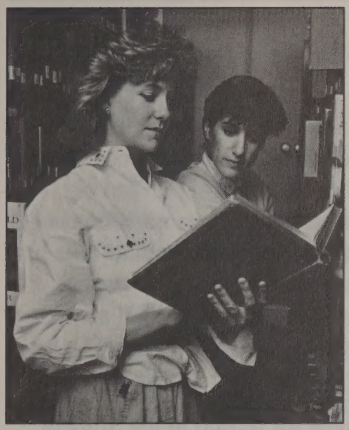
For periods of enrollment starting on or after July 1, 1987, a variable interest rate will be calculated annually based on a federal formula. A new rate will begin each calendar year but cannot exceed 12%. An SLS application is obtained from the lender of choice.

Family Education Loan (FEL) and Teri Loan Programs. The Family Education Loan and the Teri Loan Programs are two low interest loans designed specifically to help middle-income families finance the cost of attending Emerson College. For more information on the alternative financing programs, please contact the Emerson College Financial Assistance Office.

Final Notes and Reminders

- All financial assistance information is strictly confidential.
- Students must apply for financial assistance each year.
- All students who wish to be considered for any type of financial assistance must file an FAF. This now includes students applying for Stafford and SLS loans.
- All Financial Assistance awards are based upon financial need and academic standards set by the College. Awards are made for the entire academic year (September through June).
- Any financial assistance received by a student must be used solely for expenses related to attendance at Emerson College.
- Emerson College normally has no scholarships, grants, campus employment, loans, or other kinds of assistance available for undergraduate students from countries other than the United States. Foreign students should evaluate the cost of studying at Emerson and be prepared to finance it totally.
- All awards are based on estimates of the amount of money Emerson College will receive from the federal government and elsewhere and the estimated number of applications. Therefore, all awards are subject to reduction or cancellation at any time during the summer or academic year if actual funds received do not meet estimates. Should any change in the award be necessary, students will be notified on the earliest possible date.
- Students must notify the Office of Financial Assistance when there is any change of address, marital status, or academic, financial, or enrollment data. Changes may result in a revision of a student's Financial Assistance package.

For more and detailed information on financial assistance, students should refer to the Emerson College Guide to Financial Assistance brochure available from Emerson's Office of Financial Assistance, 100 Beacon Street, Boston MA 02116.



Financial Policies

It is the policy of Emerson College to provide educational programs, room and board, and social opportunities for students at a cost reflecting economic efficiency that is compatible with high quality. Every effort will be made to make charges clear and well known. Students are responsible for knowing and understanding charges and fees and for meeting financial obligations on time.

Financial obligations of enrolled students are indicated in the following section of this catalogue. Failure to meet payment deadlines through direct payment to the College's Student Account Office or by written evidence of grants or loan awards will result in an interest charge of 1.5% per month after the first two weeks of delinquency. Nonpayment four weeks after the due date will result in cancellation of enrollment, denial of registration for classes, denial of occupancy of dormitory space, and denial of use of the College dining room, library and all other facilities.

Students will be charged in full for willful or careless damage, breakage or loss of College property, including library materials. Notice of such charges, with substantiating evidence, will be issued by the College.

Billing and Payment

Tuition, fees, and all other charges are to be paid in full prior to the first day of classes each term, in order for students to be officially registered. Bills will be mailed to the permanent address the College has on record. The College accepts Master Card and Visa cards for payment of tuition and fees.

The Trustees of the College reserve the right to change tuition rates or fees, at their discretion, whenever it is determined advisable.

Deferred Payment Plans

Student accounts are payable to the College prior to the beginning of each semester, as billed. Students wishing to pay their accounts in monthly installments may do so by participating in the Academic Management Services (AMS) program or by borrowing through such plans as the Richard Knight Plan or others that are available. All deferred payment plan arrangements must be made directly between the student and the outside financial institution, and all bills must be paid, in full, to the College prior to registration.

Refund Policy

Tuition refunds are available only to students who file a written withdrawal notice in the Registrar's Office, and a written request for refund in the Student Accounts Office. Withdrawal is effective no sooner than five days after the filing of the notice, which must be signed by the person responsible for the payment of bills and by the Dean of Students. No refunds are made when withdrawal of a student is required by the College authorities. Tuition refunds to students who have withdrawn officially are made as follows: When withdrawal is filed:

During the first two weeks of classes	— 80% refund of tuition
During the third week	— 60% refund of tuition
During the fourth week	— 40% refund of tuition
During the fifth week	— 20% refund of tuition
After the fifth week	— No refund is made.

Refunds will be processed usually within three to four weeks.

Tuition and Fees

For full-time students, those registered for between 12 and 16 credits a term, one-half of the academic year's tuition is charged for the fall term and one-half for the spring term. Special and part-time students, and those enrolled for more than 16 credits, will be billed on a per-credit basis.

Tuition and Fees 1990-1991

	TERM I (Fall)	TERM II (Spring)	Total
Tuition	$6,048	$6,048	$12,096
Room	2,179	2,179	4,358
Board (average rate)	1,237	1,237	2,474
Activities Fee	130	-	130
Residence Hall Activities Fee (residents only)	22	-	22
Health Service	160	-	160
Orientation Fee (new students only)	65	-	65
Insurance (optional)	170*	-	170*
Commencement Fee (graduating students only)	-	50	50

Miscellaneous fees as listed below

*The Health Insurance Fee is subject to change based on outside insurance carrier's rate increase.

Tuition on a per-credit (part-time or overload) basis is $378 per credit hour.

Room and Board

One-half of the academic year's room and board charge is billed for the fall term and one-half is billed for the spring term.

Selection of a meal plan is mandatory for all students living in Emerson residence halls; it also is available to off-campus students. There are several meal plans from which to choose, and information on them is available from the Office of Housing and Residence Life.

All incoming and continuing students who request College housing must pay a $300 room deposit, which is applied to the first term's bill. This deposit is refundable upon request for incoming freshmen and transfers only, up to May 1 and June 1, respectively.

Application Fee

Thirty dollars must accompany an application for admission. This fee is not refundable.

Tuition Deposit

Three hundred dollars is payable at the time of the student's confirmation of admission to the College. It will be credited against the fall term tuition charge. For students entering in the fall term, this deposit is not refundable after May 1. For students entering in the spring term, this deposit is not refundable but will be credited against the tuition charge for that term.

Activities Fee

An activities fee of $130 is charged to each student to cover class dues, student government activities, athletic association dues, and publication of the College newspaper. Full-time students entering in Term II will be billed $65; students enrolled for eight credits or fewer will be billed $32.50 per term.

Orientation Fee

This is a one-time charge to all newly entering students.

Health Service Fee

This fee is mandatory and nonrefundable, and is billed annually. Fifty percent of it is billed to students entering in the spring term. It will not be prorated for part-time, matriculating students.

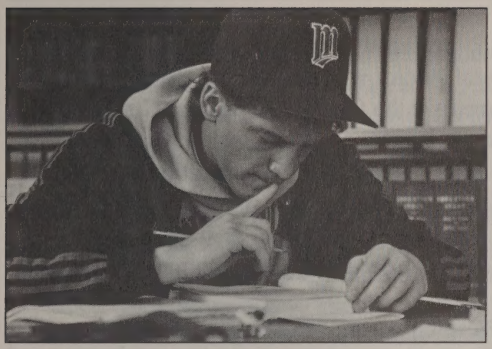
Health Insurance Fee

All students are required to be covered by medical insurance. Emerson College's Student Health Insurance Plan costs are billed annually to students enrolling in the fall term. This insurance is in force for the calendar year starting September 1. This fee will be prorated and billed according to the number of months it will be in force for students first entering in the spring term. It will not be prorated for part-time, matriculating students. Students covered through outside sources must provide proof of insurance coverage 30 days prior to first enrollment each year to be exempted from the Emerson College insurance fee. The Student Health Insurance Plan will be considered in force unless proper proof of alternate insurance is provided to the College in advance.

Other Charges

Miscellaneous fees, such as those on the following list, will be billed as appropriate. Changes to this list are at the College's discretion.

Late Registration	$35
Late Change of Course	5
Audit Fee (per credit)	25
Processing of Late Grade	10
Official Transcript of Record	2
Laboratory Fee	(varies by course)



Academic Regulations

Emerson College is the only institution of higher education in America to solely concentrate on offering undergraduate and graduate degree programs for students interested in pursuing careers in communication and the performing arts. Unlike most institutions of higher education, Emerson does not simply treat communication as one among many departments. Instead, all of the College's major programs focus on some aspect of communication.

The object of the General Education Curriculum and each major program is to create an environment sufficient to challenge and support students as they develop the ability to speak and write effectively, to think analytically, to understand the present as it relates to the past, to reflect on fundamental beliefs, and to master the necessary skills to achieve career objectives.

While some students enter Emerson College with well-defined career plans, many see this four-year experience as a chance to explore a wide range of opportunities within the communication and performing arts. The available programs of study may take a student through one or a combination of communication fields such as creative writing, mass communication, business communication, theatre, American culture, communication disorders, film, television, and many other possibilities.

These programs lead to one of the following undergraduate degrees: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Speech, Bachelor of Literary Interpretation, and Bachelor of Music (offered in association with the Longy School of Music in Cambridge).

General Education Curriculum

The faculty of Emerson College has an ongoing concern that students educated for careers in one or more fields of communication need to have the requisite analytical, historical, philosophical, and social perspectives to assume responsible positions of leadership. In 1985, the faculty began a systematic revision of the curriculum to strengthen the liberal studies while continuing to recognize the unique aspects of the College. The result is the General Education Curriculum, a series of core courses which provide the Emerson student with an intellectual foundation that is both broader and more durable than the education provided in the major field.

Some of the special aspects of the General Education Curriculum are:

The Freshman Symposium. The Freshman Symposium aims to introduce Emerson students to interdisciplinary thinking, writing, and research; to challenge them to higher levels of intellectual synthesis; to encourage them to explore and articulate ideas freely in a small-group setting; to foster their writing skills; and to familiarize them with the discourse and research methodologies of a range of academic disciplines. Through their readings and research papers, students in the seminar will be introduced to, and required to reflect critically upon, the methods and assumptions of the various academic disciplines represented at the College. In addition to a multidisciplinary approach, the Symposium also aims to provide, wherever possible, a cross-cultural perspective.

The Symposium topic for 1990-1991 is Creation. Creation — whether of the universe, of life on our planet, of human consciousness, or of a work of art — remains largely a mystery, though it has invited endless explanation and speculation. The seminar will explore various aspects of our culture and scientific understanding of creation, ranging from creation myths and cosmology, to bio–engineering and artificial intelligence, to the experience of creativity in the arts. The materials will be drawn from a wide range of intellectual disciplines and the arts, including fiction, film, theatre, music and painting. As the course explores the question of origins, there will also be a look toward the future, examining the ethical and political questions inherent in humankind's new technological power to create.

Oral Communication. Since the inception of the institution in 1880, the mission of the College has been to emphasize the oral communication arts. The faculty are committed to developing in their graduates an ability to organize an idea, explain, support and adapt it to an audience; an understanding of fallacious reasoning and the ability to construct and to support argument; the ability to listen effectively; the use of appropriate and effective language; the ability to use vocal and physical animation based on a critical analysis of text; and the ability to produce good vocal quality and enunciation.

Writing. The faculty of the College are committed to assisting Emerson students to write effectively and to learn to use writing as a way of learning. Every student will take a two-course expository writing sequence in the Freshman year followed by upper-level writing-enhanced courses in all Divisions.

Beginning with the Class of 1993, students who experience writing difficulty must enroll in WP100 Introduction to Expository Writing. The course is offered on a pass/fail basis and is designed to assist students in developing strategies of expository writing, improving grammar, and increasing study skills.

Cultural Diversity. The faculty of the College believe that Emerson students must be prepared to look beyond the concerns of mainstream Western culture to understand problems and experiences of nations, people, and cultures normally excluded from our purview. The value of diversity itself will be examined as a particularly democratic and intellectual strength. Courses in Non-Western Civilizations and Cultures will broaden students' cultural awareness, which is necessary for the accelerating emphasis on global communication and in the world of international affairs.

Baccalaureate Degree Requirements

Baccalaureate degree requirements are established by the faculty through the Academic Policy Committee and the Faculty Assembly. Upon completion of the requirements, students are recommended for graduation by the faculty to the Board of Trustees. Degrees are awarded in August, December and at Commencement in May.

The curriculum is flexible within certain requirements and guidelines. Students are advised to keep in close contact with their faculty advisor and Division Chair regarding program requirements.

1. Baccalaureate degree candidates must satisfactorily complete the General Education Curriculum, as well as specific requirements for a major.

2. All students must complete a minimum of 128 semester credit hours with a minimum grade point average of 2.0.

3. Students in the Class of 1991 and 1992 must complete a minimum of ten full courses in their major program. Students in the Class of 1993 who seek a BA, BS or BS in Speech degree must complete nine to eleven full courses in their major as determined by the faculty of the Division. Also, beginning with the Class of 1993, students seeking a BFA degree must complete between fourteen and sixteen full courses.

4. For transfer students a minimum of five full courses in their major must be completed at Emerson College. A "full course" is defined as a four-credit course, or two two-credit courses. Transfer students may use one three semester hours course to fulfill a full course requirement, though they only receive three credits toward the 128 needed for graduation.

5. Students must satisfactorily complete a minimum of one full year (32 credits) at Emerson College.

6. Students must complete their final semester (registered for a minimum of 16 credits) at Emerson College.

7. It is the responsibility of the student to insure that all degree requirements are met as specified in this catalogue. Failure to be aware of a provision does not excuse a student from adhering to policy. While each student has a faculty advisor, that person only provides advice, and it is up to the student to make decisions with respect to his or her program using that advice, this catalogue, and advising materials distributed by each academic Division. All academic and financial requirements must be met before a degree candidate may participate in the College's annual Commencement exercises held each May.

The student's major program determines which alternatives among the General Education Curriculum the student must fulfill. Students should review the specific requirements for each major detailed in the Courses of Study. Students must fulfill the degree requirements in effect at the time they matriculate (enroll for their first course), or any complete set of requirements adopted by the institution and published in a subsequent catalogue (picking and choosing among elements of various catalogues is not permitted). However, students who take more than seven years to complete their degree requirements must fulfill the requirements in effect at the time they graduate rather than the requirements in effect when they matriculated.

By agreement of the major Divisions, students in the Class of 1991 and 1992 may count eight credits from the General Education Curriculum toward their major in all degree programs except the Bachelor of Fine Arts.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN SPEECH DEGREE
Students pursuing the Bachelor of Science in Speech degree must complete the General Education Curriculum and two additional courses in the Communication area, for a total of four courses.

BACHELOR OF ARTS DEGREE
Students pursuing the Bachelor of Arts degree must complete the General Education Curriculum and 16 credits of one foreign language, or eight credits of one foreign language on the intermediate level or above.

BACHELOR OF FINE ARTS DEGREE
Students pursuing the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree must complete the General Education Curriculum with the following changes:

Literature and the Arts. Two full courses (rather than three as in the BS requirement) in Literature, to consist of any LI course numbered below 400. Courses in fine arts or music often are part of the major.

Social and Behavioral Sciences. One full course (rather than three as in the BS requirements) in Psychology or Social Science, to consist of any PS or SO course.

Mathematics and Sciences. One full course (rather than two as in the BS requirements) in Mathematics, Computer Applications or Science, to consist of any CP, MA, or SC course, or MC 231.

BACHELOR OF MUSIC DEGREE

The Bachelor of Music degree is offered in conjunction with the Longy School of Music in Cambridge. Major programs are offered in piano-organ, orchestral instrumentation and voice. Formal acceptance by both Emerson College and the Longy School of Music is required.

Bachelor of Music degree candidates will take approximately 100 credits of music at Longy, and 38 credits in Liberal Arts at Emerson. Emerson College will accept up to 15 transfer credits in liberal arts from accredited institutions attended prior to beginning the Bachelor of Music program at Longy and Emerson.

Students interested in the Bachelor of Music program should contact the Longy School of Music for complete information about major program requirements at: One Follen Street, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02138, telephone (617) 876-0956.

General Education Curriculum: Class of 1993

The following General Education Curriculum is required of all students pursuing the following degrees: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Speech, Bachelor of Literary Interpretation, and Bachelor of Music (offered in association with the Longy School of Music in Cambridge). The General Education Curriculum consists of 20 credits in the Communication Core and 32 credits in Liberal Studies for a total of 52 credits. Specific courses are described in the Course of Study sections of the catalogue.

COMMUNICATION CORE

Communication 12 credits

This series of courses promotes the student's ability to speak at levels of distinction. All students will enroll in CS 104 Voice and Articulation and two additional courses elected from the following four options:

- CS 108 Public Speaking
- CS 201 Fundamentals of Oral Interpretation
- CS 220 Methods of Advocacy and Argument
- CS 260 Interpersonal Communication

Writing 8 credits

This two-course expository writing sequence is designed to enable students to write competently and effectively. In the Freshman year, the student will enroll in the following:

- WP 101 Expository Writing
- WP 121 Expository Writing: Introduction to the Essay

Qualified students may enroll in WP 151 Honors English I and WP 152 Honors English II.

Freshman Symposium (WP 120)
The Freshman Symposium is designed to introduce students to interdisciplinary thinking, writing, and research. This course serves as an alternative to the first course in the expository writing sequence.

LIBERAL STUDIES

An Introduction to Western Civilization and Culture 4 credits
This course introduces students to historical methods, periodization, the tools of critical analysis, and an examination of the historical process.

History 4 credits
Students may select one of several courses that will enable them to examine a specific region or period in greater detail as a means of discovering what history entails at a more specialized level.

Ethics and Values 4 credits
Students may elect one of several courses which emphasize a critical appreciation of ethical theories; the historical role of significant individuals in the development of ethics and values; the relation of ethical theories to historical and human problems; and the application of ethical theories to contemporary issues.

Literature 4 credits
The literature course will promote a critical appreciation of all the major forms of literature through an examination of a number of major writers in poetry, drama, and fiction.

Arts 4 credits
Courses in this area are designed to emphasize that a specific form of art is the product of a particular kind of inquiry that integrates objectivity and analysis with intuitive responses to materials; that a work of art is the expression of an idea, formed with human skills through the use of a medium; and that the work of the artist is an ordering of reality that is so distinct as to justify itself.

Mathematics 4 credits
The goal of the mathematics curriculum is to ensure that all students develop quantitative skills and reasoning abilities at the college level. All students are required to demonstrate proficiency in basic math skills prior to enrollment in a college level math course. Proficiency will be determined by performance on a standardized examination administered during Orientation Week. Students who score below the proficiency level may work toward passing the examination by enrolling in a two credit pass/fail tutorial course designed for students needing assistance in this area.

Science 4 credits
The major objective of the science courses is to acquaint students with the reasoning process of the scientist, the philosophy of science, and the principles that underlie scientific inquiry.

Social Science 4 credits
Students will enroll in an introductory course that provides the methods, terminology, and core concepts of psychology and sociology necessary for further study in the field.

Cultural Diversity: Minority Studies
Cultural Diversity: Non-Western Civilizations and Culture
The Cultural Diversity curriculum is designed to introduce students to the experiences and achievements of other cultures. One of these courses must be taken within the General Education Curriculum and the other within the student's major division. Only courses that fulfill Cultural Diversity may be counted simultaneously toward both the General Education and major requirements.

Students pursuing the Bachelor of Arts degree are required to take an additional 16 credits in Foreign Language and Literature. Students pursuing the Bachelor of Science or the Bachelor of Science in Speech degree are required to take an additional 12 credits in Social and Behavioral Sciences. Students pursuing the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree are required to take additional credits within the major field. Specific descriptions of requirements for the BFA may be found under the Divisions that award the degree.

Honorary Degrees and Awards

Emerson College awards the following honorary degrees: Doctor of Laws, Doctor of Humane Letters, Doctor of Literature, and Master of Arts. In addition to honorary degrees awarded through the College, the Musical Theatre Society confers an annual Award of Distinction to an individual or individuals who have distinguished themselves in the field of the American musical theatre. Phi Alpha Tau, the oldest communication arts honorary fraternity in the country, presents the Joseph E. Connor Award to an individual or individuals who have distinguished themselves in the field of communication.

Fields of Study

Divisional Majors. A major allows the student to gain in–depth knowledge of one of the fields of communication or the performing arts. The academic Divisions specify the major courses which constitute the student's college work. A major that results in a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Science, or a Bachelor of Science in Speech degree may consist of 36 to 44 credit hours. A major that results in a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree may consist of 56 to 64 credit hours. Students should consult the Divisional programs section of this catalogue for complete information on specific major requirements.

Individually Designed Interdisciplinary Majors. An individually designed interdisciplinary major consists of a combination of courses from more than one Division taken in a well-defined area of interest. Students design an interdisciplinary major program in consultation with a faculty member in each of the selected Divisions. The student must submit a proposal for approval to the Academic Dean that contains a detailed program of study, with courses drawn from at least two Divisions, and the signatures of the faculty advisors and appropriate Division Chairs. Proposals are acted on in mid-November and mid-March.

Double Majors. Students may elect to have a double major by fulfilling all the requirements for major programs in two different Divisions. Students with a double major must select major programs that offer a common degree and may not use the same course to fulfill a requirement in both majors.

Minor Programs. Students are encouraged to undertake a minor. Minors give students the opportunity to explore an area outside their major field of study. A minor consists of 16 credits of related course work. Minors which have been approved by the faculty Academic Policy Committee are described in the Division sections of this catalogue.

Honors Program. A four–year College Honors Program will be available to a small number of students with outstanding ability. Honors work will include special projects in conjunction with regular courses, interdisciplinary honors seminars, independent study supervised by faculty members, research, and student–organized group projects. Students interested in applying for the Honors Program should contact the Admissions Office.

Accreditation

Emerson College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc., a non-governmental, nationally recognized organization whose affiliated institutions include elementary schools through collegiate institutions offering postgraduate instruction. Accreditation of an institution by the New England Association indicates that it meets or exceeds criteria for the assessment of institutional quality periodically applied through a peer group review process. An accredited school or college is one which has available the necessary resources to achieve its stated purposes through appropriate educational programs, is substantially doing so, and gives reasonable evidence that it will continue to do so in the foreseeable future. Institutional integrity is also addressed through accreditation. Accreditation by the New England Association is not partial but applies to the institution as a whole. As such, it is not a guarantee of the quality of every course or program offered, or the competence of individual graduates. Rather, it provides reasonable assurance about the quality of opportunities available to students who attend the institution. Inquires regarding the status of an institution's accreditation by the New England Association should be directed to the administrative staff of the school or college. Individuals may also contact the Association: New England Association of Schools and Colleges, The Sanborn House, 15 High Street, Winchester, Massachusetts 01890, (617) 729-6762.

Institutional Affiliations

Longy School of Music. Emerson College offers the Bachelor of Music degree through a special program with the Longy School of Music in Cambridge. This degree is offered with major programs in piano-organ, orchestral instrumentation, and voice. Students must apply, audition, and be accepted at the Longy School of Music prior to applying to Emerson College. Formal acceptance by both Emerson College and the Longy School of Music is required.

Suffolk University. Emerson College and Suffolk University offer a cooperative program for the exchange of instructional services which makes available to students of both institutions a wider selection of courses. Cross-registration forms must be obtained at the Emerson College Registrar's Office and require the approval of the Registrar at both institutions. Emerson students may not register for courses at Suffolk which are offered the same semester at Emerson College. Students will pay tuition at their home institution at the home institution's tuition rate. Credit hours, grades, and honor points are transferred.

The Professional Arts Consortium. In 1981 Emerson College joined a consortium of colleges and schools that includes the Boston Architectural Center, the Boston Conservatory, Massachusetts College of Art, and the Museum School of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Students in the consortium schools are permitted to cross-register on a limited basis at the participating schools and to share residence hall facilities on a space available basis. The Consortium sponsors various activities to foster student and faculty exchange. Emerson students may not register for courses at Consortium schools which are offered concurrently at Emerson College. Cross-registration forms must be obtained at the Emerson College Registrar's Office and require the approval of the Registrar at both institutions. Students will pay tuition at their home institution at the home institution's tuition rate. Credit hours, grades, and honor points are transferred.

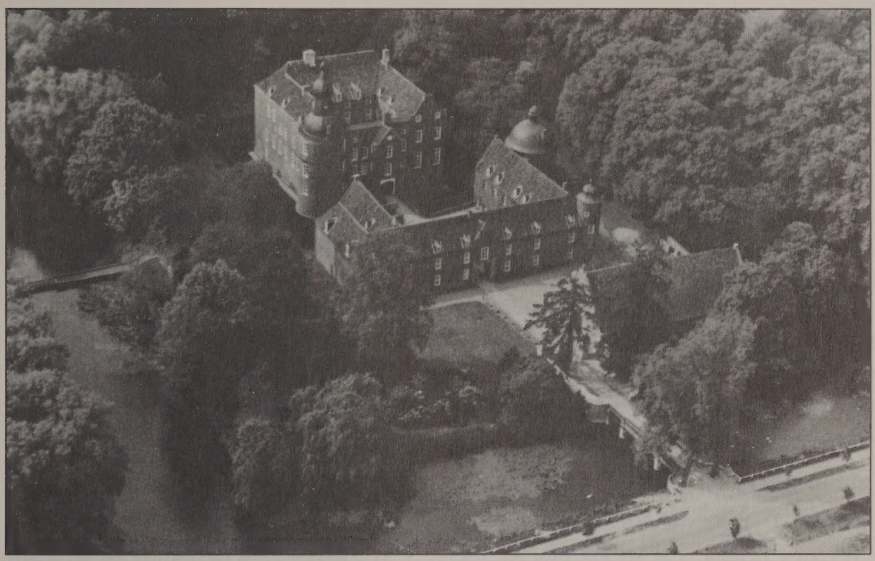
Transfer Agreements. Emerson College and Mount Ida College, Fisher Junior College, Endicott College, and Keystone Junior College have signed various cooperative and transfer agreements. For further information, contact the Office of Admissions.

Off-Campus Study Programs

Internships. The College encourages qualified students to participate in internships to gain practical experience and develop professional contacts. Internships involve work done in an appropriate position in the film and television industry, a business, school, government office, hospital or elsewhere for which academic credit may be given. The student must make arrangements in advance both with the outside organization and with the academic division most closely identified with the field or area involved. Application forms for internships are available through the Career Services Office in the Ames Building at 355 Commonwealth Avenue and at the Division offices. No more than eight credits, with the exception of student teaching, may be applied to the major field requirements; no more than 12 credits in a combination of internships and directed studies may be applied to the major field. Students who entered before the fall of 1987 should see the catalogue in effect at the time of their matriculation.

Semester Abroad. Students who participate in the semester abroad program enroll in courses that take advantage of the European experience. Many of the courses offered are included in the General Education Curriculum. Study is combined with extensive travel exploring the cultural and historical offerings in several major cities of Europe.

The location for the Emerson College Semester Abroad Program is Well,



The Kasteel (castle) in Well, Holland.

Holland. The Kasteel (castle) in Well is a national, historical monument dating from the twelfth century. The Castle Well provides living and dining accommodations, classrooms, a student center and pub, offices, and a performance area for students, faculty and staff. The surrounding grounds offer opportunities for boating, fishing, and intramural sports. Well is located in eastern Holland on the border of Germany. It is less than two hours to Dusseldorf, Amsterdam, and Brussels, and five hours to Paris by easily accessible mass transit.

To study in the Castle a student must have an overall 2.0 cumulative average at the time of application for study abroad. A student may become ineligible if this average drops below 2.0 at any point in the application process. The student must also consult with his or her academic advisor to assure that degree requirements are being met.

The student who participates in the Castle program is fully registered in the College and is eligible for College scholarships and grants.

Costs are comparable to a semester at the Boston campus (not including transportation). Consult the Division of Continuing Education for further information.

Los Angeles Study and Internship Program. During the academic year qualified juniors and seniors may enroll for a semester of study at the Emerson College Los Angeles Center. The program consists of the internship experience in conjunction with courses focusing on the communication and entertainment industries. Students in the program have the opportunity to network with Emerson College alumni and friends working professionally in the southern California area.

The Center provides housing accommodations and instructional and recreational facilities.

Hollywood Seminar. This unique four credit seminar introduces students to the inner workings of the American television and film industries. It takes place between the fall and spring semesters in early January. Students tour production facilities, meet producers, directors, and writers working in the industry. This seminar is offered through the cooperation and utilization of a large number of Emerson College alumni who are successful professionals in television and film. The Hollywood Seminar is open only to students in the Divisions of Mass Communication, Performing Arts, and Writing, Literature and Publishing.

Academic Policies

Declaring a Major. Students select a major at the time they apply for admission to Emerson College by designating their preference on their application for admission. Students who were undecided about their major at the time they applied for admission must declare a major before entering their junior year at Emerson (that is, before earning more than 64 credits toward graduation). Students who want to change their declared major or concentration must complete a Change of Major Form available at the Advising Center.

Faculty Advisors. Freshmen are assigned an academic advisor who holds conferences with students during registration periods and meets on an informal basis whenever students seek advice about the curriculum, course selection, or other academic concerns. Students who want to change their faculty advisor for any reason must make an appointment at the Advising Center to discuss changing their advisor. Students may not register for courses until they have been counseled by their advisor, although the student bears the ultimate responsibility for selecting his or her degree program and its components. Students must present a registration card that has been signed by their advisor when they register.

Registration. Matriculated students have priority for course selection according to class standing at the time of pre-registration. Pre-registration for the spring semester is held at the end of November; for the fall semester, pre-registration is held in April. Students must be financially cleared by the Student Accounts Office in order to register. Registration dates are listed on the academic calendar and on the registration information sheet that accompanies each term's course schedule. Course schedules and registration information sheets are available at the Registrar's Office approximately three weeks prior to registration. Students are responsible for following the registration instructions that accompany all course schedules. There is a $35.00 late registration fee assessed students who do not register by the deadlines listed on the academic calendar and registration information sheet. A student's registration may be cancelled if he or she does not make financial arrangements by the deadline for payment set by the Student Accounts Office.

Prerequisites. A prerequisite course may be required prior to taking an advanced course. Waiver of a prerequisite course is not routine and may be obtained only from the course instructor and the Chair of the Division in which the course is offered. Credit will not be given for a prerequisite course which is taken after the advanced course has been completed satisfactorily.

Waiver Examinations. To place students in courses commensurate with their abilities and to recognize superior achievement, the College offers waiver by examination in the following courses:
HI 102 An Introduction to Western Civilization and Cultures
PS 101 Introduction to Psychology
SO 150 Principles of Sociology
The examinations are open only to freshmen or first-year transfer students. Petitions for the waiver examinations are available at the Registrar's Office and must be submitted to the Division of Humanities and Social Sciences at least 30 days prior to New Student Orientation. Students who pass a waiver examination must take a more advanced course in that subject area to fulfill the course requirement.

Course Number Guide

Freshman level courses	100 numbers
Sophomore level courses	200 numbers; open to freshmen
Junior level courses	300 numbers; courses in major Divisions not open to freshmen
Senior level courses	400 numbers; not open to freshmen; sophmores need written permission of the Division Chair or instructor
<G> courses	400 numbers; open to seniors and graduate students only;
Graduate level courses	500 numbers; open only to graduate students

Auditing a Course. Students who wish to attend a class without working for, or expecting to receive, formal credit may register to audit the course. Students who audit a course may not participate in class, do not take examinations, and do not submit papers. Students may only audit lecture-type courses; students may not audit dance classes or voice lessons. Students must gain permission to audit a course from the course instructor and may not register to audit a course until the first day of classes in order to give priority to students needing to take a course for credit. Students may not attend any course without registering for either credit or audit. Students may not change an audit class to credit after the second week of classes. Consult the Financial Policies section of this catalogue regarding the cost of auditing a course.

Course Load. Full-time undergraduates carry 16 credits per term during the fall and spring semesters. During the summer sessions the normal full-time load is eight credits. To graduate in eight semesters, a student must average 16 credits per term. Full tuition must be paid by students who are registered for 12 through 16 credits during the fall and spring semesters; undergraduates who are registered for less than 12 credits during the fall and spring semesters are considered part-time students and are billed on a per-credit rate. Because a student's enrollment status affects financial aid awards, the student should consult the Financial Aid Office to determine how a change in enrollment status would affect eligibility for financial aid.

Credit Overload. Students desiring to take more than 16 tuition credits during a semester must file, in advance, a petition to do so at the Registrar's Office. Those below senior standing must have a cumulative average of 2.70 or higher to be academically cleared to overload. First semester freshmen may not overload, with the exception of voice, dance and non-tuition courses. Overload courses are billed on a per-credit basis and require financial clearance from the Office of Student Accounts prior to registration.

Directed Study. In a directed study students work closely with a faculty supervisor in designing and carrying out a project for credit. Students must obtain written permission from a faculty supervisor and the Division Chair in order to enroll in a directed study. A student may not count more than 12 credits of a combination of Directed Study and Internship toward graduation requirements in the major field.

Practica. Practica provide students with the opportunity to gain theoretical and practical experience in a specialized area. Practica are designed by the faculty and vary on an annual basis. For further information about a practicum, students should consult their advisor.

Non-Tuition Credits. The College offers a number of one-credit non-tuition courses that may be repeated for credit. However, only four non-tuition credits may be applied toward the 128-credit minimum needed for graduation.

Courses at Other Institutions. During a degree program at Emerson College, students may take courses at non-affiliated institutions and receive a maximum of 64 credits in transfer. These courses must be taken at a regionally accredited institution of higher learning. Course work taken in a foreign institution will require special clearance. Students who have achieved at least junior standing

Approval of course work for transfer, particularly in the major, is not automatic and the student should have a Request for Transfer of Credits to Emerson College form approved by the Register before registering at another institution. Students must achieve a minimum grade of C in each course requested for transfer. It is the student's responsibility to have an official transcript of courses taken mailed directly from the other institution to the Emerson College Registrar's Office. Quarter hours and trimester hours will be converted to semester hour credits. Grades earned in courses accepted for transfer are not computed when determining the student's grade-point average except for the purpose of honors graduation.

Dropping and Adding Courses. Any schedule change made after a student has registered must be made in the Registrar's Office. Drop/adds completed through the first week of classes are assessed a fee of $1.00 per drop/add. Schedule changes made during the second week of classes require written permission from the instructor to enter a course and are assessed a $5.00 fee. Drop/adds may not be made after the second week of classes except by an approved petition to do so; drop/adds approved by petition are assessed a $35.00 late registration fee. The deadline for completing drop/adds during a summer session is the end of the first week of classes.

Withdrawing from a Course. Students may withdraw from a course before the last two weeks of classes (or before the sixth week of classes during a summer session). Courses dropped after the second week of classes will appear on the student's record except by approved petition. Students who wish to withdraw from a course must obtain a Course Withdrawal Form at the Registrar's Office. The course instructor must sign the form and check one of two grades: WP or WF. The signed form must be returned by the student to the Registrar's Office before the start of the last two weeks of classes. No refund is given to students who withdraw from a course.

Repeating a Course. Students who fail a course may repeat the course in an attempt to receive a passing grade. Both courses, and the grades received, will be part of the student's permanent record and will affect the student's cumulative grade point average. Students will only receive credit once for a given course.

Attendance. Students are expected to attend classes regularly and promptly and are responsible for all work done in their classes while they are absent. Individual instructors determine the number of absences or tardinesses allowed before a grade is lowered. In classes where attendance is required, students are responsible for notifying the instructor in advance of unavoidable absences. Students must adhere to individual instructors' attendance policies. Attending an out-of-class activity or event for another course may not be used as an excuse to disregard a given class's attendance policy. A faculty member may not require a student to attend specified out-of-class activities that conflict with the student's scheduled hours for another class.

In addition, Massachusetts state law requires that any student who is unable, because of religious beliefs, to attend classes or to participate in any examination, study, or work requirement on a particular day shall be excused from any such requirement. The student will receive an opportunity to make up the examination, study, or work requirement which may have been missed because of such absence on any particular day provided, however, that such make-up examination or work does create an unreasonable burden upon the College. No fees of any kind shall be charged by the institution for making available this opportunity to the student. No adverse or prejudicial effects shall result to any student who takes advantage of these provisions.

Class Enrollment Policy in the Division of Mass Communication. Any student who is enrolled for a course in the Division of Mass Communication and does not attend class during the first five class days of a semester — or who has not made prior arrangements with the instructor — may be dropped from the class to make room for students on the waiting list for that course.

This action can take place, at the instructor's discretion, regardless of any prior registration of the student for the course in question. Students dropped from a course for this reason will be re-admitted only with the approval of the course instructor, if there is still room for an additional student in the class.

Prolonged Absences. In any case of prolonged absence due to accident or illness, the student should immediately notify both the Dean of Students and his or her instructors. Under these circumstances the College will make every effort to permit the student to complete course work.

Medical Leave of Absence. A leave of absence for medical or psychological reasons entitles a student to a tuition credit equal to tuition paid for the term not completed. This credit will be held in escrow for a period not to exceed two years and will be applied to the student's tuition charges upon readmittance to the College. Students granted a medical leave of absence will receive a W (Withdrawn) grade in each course. A W grade does not affect the student's grade point average. A statement of cause and the written support of a treating physician, psychiatrist or licensed psychologist is required and should accompany the Medical Leave of Absence Form.

This form is available at the Office of the Dean of Students. A reenrollment application completed by the student and a reenrollment questionnaire completed by the treating physician, psychiatrist or licensed psychologist must be submitted in order for the student to be readmitted to the College.

Withdrawal from the College. A student's permanent withdrawal from the College may occur due to personal reasons, accident, or illness. Under these circumstances an official Withdrawal Form must be obtained from the Dean of Students Office and signed by all designated parties, including the person responsible for payment of the student's bill. This form, which includes the reason for the withdrawal, must then be submitted to the Registrar's Office. Withdrawal becomes effective five days from the date that the completed form is filed with the Registrar.

Class Standing. The Registrar determines students' class standing for the academic year in September. Freshmen have completed fewer than 32 credits, sophomores from 32-63 credits, juniors from 64-95 credits, and seniors more than 96 credits. Credits completed do not include outstanding Incomplete grades. For the purpose of loan applications, students may be considered a member of a class if they are within 8 credits of the minimum number of credits required for that class.

Credit Evaluation for Graduation. Every student must file an Application for Graduation with the Registrar and make an appointment at the Registrar's Office for a credit evaluation before his or her last semester of attendance to insure that the student will be academically clear to graduate by the planned date of graduation. It is the sole responsibility of the student to insure that all degree requirements are met as specified in this catalogue. Failure to be aware of a provision does not excuse a student from adhering to it. All students will be billed a Commencement Fee at the time of billing for their last semester of attendance, and must pay this fee regardless of whether or not they participate in the Commencement exercises.

Change of Address. The Registrar's Office maintains two addresses for each student. The first is a billing address and telephone number that includes the name of the bill payer, usually the student's parent(s). Grade reports and bills are sent to the bill payer at the billing address. The other is the student's local address and telephone number while attending Emerson. Address changes and changes of a bill payer's name should be reported promptly to the Registrar's Office.

Grading Policies

Grading System. The College uses a system of letter grades and quality points to evaluate student performance. Grade point averages are computed on a scale where A = 4.0 (93-100), A- = 3.7 (90-92), B+ = 3.3 (87-89), B = 3.0 (83-86), B- = 2.7 (80-82), C+ = 2.3 (77-79), C = 2.0 (73-76), C- = 1.7 (70-72), D = 1.0 (60-69), F = 0 (failing).

W A W (Withdrawn) grade is given to students who take a leave of absence or withdraw from the College before the last two weeks of the semester.

WP A WP (Withdrawn Passing) grade means the student was passing the course at the time of withdrawal. This grade does not affect the grade point average.

WF A WF (Withdrawn Failing) grade means the student was failing the course at the time of withdrawal. This grade is computed as an F grade in the grade point average.

I An I (Incomplete) grade is assigned when, for documented medical reasons acceptable to the instructor, students engaged in passing work are unable to complete all class assignments. An I grade must be removed the next term in which the student is registered or it automatically becomes an F grade. Incomplete grades not changed within the first 30 days of the next semester will result in a $10.00 Late Grade Change Fee for the student.

P A P (Passing) grade indicates performance in a course for which specific grades are not given. A P is equivalent to a grade of C or better and may be used in designated pass/fail courses only.

AUD An AUD (Audit) designates registration for a course as an auditor.

DEF A DEF (Deferred) grade is used for certain designated graduate courses.

NG An NG (No Grade) is used only when an instructor has not submitted a final grade to the Registrar.

YC A YC (Year Course) means that a grade will be given for a course at completion of the succeeding term.

S/U An S (Satisfactory) or U (Unsatisfactory) is used for non-credit courses only.

Grade Changes. No grade changes will be accepted or entered on a student's permanent record after the end of the third week of the semester following the one in which the course was taken, except for Incompletes as discussed above. Any change, other than from an Incomplete to a letter grade during the first term following the semester in which the course was registered, and those due to clerical error, must be proposed and justified by the course instructor and approved by the Division Chairs.

Grade Reports. Grade reports are issued at the close of each term to all students. Grades are mailed to the bill payer of record at the billing address.

Mid–Semester Evaluations. As part of the College advising program, mid-semester grade reports are sent each semester to undergraduate students whose grades fall below a C in any subject. Course warnings do not become part of a student's permanent record, and are intended to encourage students to remedy academic deficiencies at a point in the semester where special attention or tutoring may have a positive effect on final course performance. Students who receive such warnings should meet with their instructor, consult their advisors and, if appropriate, seek help from the Learning Assistance Center. The College is not responsible for informing parents of mid-semester grade reports.

Academic Transcripts. A certified, official transcript of a student's academic record may be obtained through the Registrar's Office. Individual official transcripts are $2.00 per copy; orders for multiple official copies made at the same time by currently enrolled students cost $2.00 for the first copy and $.50 for each additional copy. An unofficial copy for a currently enrolled student costs $.25; an unofficial copy for a student not currently enrolled costs $2.00. Seven working days should be allowed for processing official transcript requests. Transcripts will be released only for students who have no transcript hold and who make their request in writing with their signature. Under no circumstances will telephone requests for transcripts be honored.

Right to Privacy. The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, also known as the Buckley Amendment, gives currently enrolled students and alumni the right to privacy of records, files, and data held about them by the College on an official basis. The Act gives students the right to inspect and review their educational records and to challenge any contents which they feel are inaccurate, misleading or otherwise in violation of their privacy and other rights. Students who want to challenge information held in their records should file a petition, in writing, with the Dean of Students.

Academic Grievances. Students who wish to make a complaint or grievance regarding any College academic policy should file a petition with the Academic Policy Committee through the Registrar's Office. Grievances regarding a grade or other matter in a course should be discussed first with the course instructor; if the student is not satisfied after discussing the matter with the instructor, the student should speak with the instructor's Division Chair. If the Division Chair cannot resolve the conflict with the student and instructor, the student should file a petition with the Academic Policy Committee through the Registrar's Office or, if the Division Chair believes it appropriate, the matter should be taken to the Office of the Academic Dean.

Academic Standards

The College requires students to achieve a 2.0 cumulative average to earn a baccalaureate degree. This is a minimum requirement. Each Division has the prerogative to require a higher cumulative average in any major field of study.

Academic Probation. Academic probation is the official notice to a student that his or her cumulative average is below the minimum standard. If a student remains on academic probation for two successive terms, he or she may be subject to academic suspension from the College.

Freshmen earning below a 1.7 cumulative average will be placed on academic probation. All upperclass students achieving a cumulative average or semester grade point average below 2.0 will be placed on academic probation. Students on academic probation are not eligible to receive financial aid or to run for Student Government Association office. They may be prohibited from participating in extra- and co-curricular activities (e.g. WERS, athletics, EIV, theatre productions, forensics and non-tuition courses) by the Academic Probation and Suspension Board, the Office of the Dean of Students, or the Chair of the academic Division in which they are majoring.

Academic Suspension. A student who remains on academic probation for two successive semesters may be subject to academic suspension from the College for not less than one academic year. Students who have been academically suspended may appeal their suspension through the Dean of Students Office. After a year of suspension, the student may apply for re-admittance to the College.

Academic Dismissal. If, after a thorough review of a student's academic record, the Academic Probation and Suspension Board determines that a student's academic success at Emerson College is not feasible, that student will be dismissed. A second suspension results in automatic dismissal. An undergraduate who is dismissed may not be granted re-admittance to Emerson College.

Academic Ethics. A student who fails to meet minimum academic ethical standards by cheating, plagiarism or vandalism related to library or laboratory materials or equipment, or similar acts, shall be subject to disciplinary proceedings that may result in suspension or dismissal. If there is any question about the appropriateness of an act, the student is urged to consult with a faculty advisor, another instructor, a Division Chair or the Academic Dean.

Academic Distinction

Dean's Honor List. Students achieving a 3.45 or higher grade point average for the preceding semester will placed on the Dean's Honor List. A grade below C- automatically disqualifies a student for the Dean's Honor List for that semester, regardless of the grade point average.

Academic Prizes. Each spring, a number of prizes for outstanding student academic work are awarded by the Academic Dean. Most of these prizes carry a monetary stipend, and are announced at the time of Commencement. Students are encouraged to submit research papers, scripts, and other entries to this competition. Details are available from the Office of the Academic Dean.

Honors Graduation. Honors graduation at Emerson College is based on a student's entire undergraduate academic record, including all course work at other post–secondary institutions. For a student to graduate with Latin honors, the student must have: a minimum grade point average of 3.45 for a minimum of 64 credits at Emerson College; a minimum grade point average of 3.45 for all credits taken on the college level, including all courses taken at other institutions regardless of whether the coursework was accepted in transfer; and at least 75% of his or her college level work done in letter-graded courses (not pass/fail courses).

Courses taken at other institutions may not raise the grade point average of all courses taken higher than the student's Emerson grade point average, though they may lower it. Only the student's Emerson grade point average will appear on the student's transcript; the combined grade point average of both Emerson and non–Emerson coursework is used only to determine honors graduation.

Students who meet all the above criteria will graduate cum laude if their grade point average for all college level work is between 3.45 and 3.64; magna cum laude if their grade point average for all college level work is between 3.65 and 3.84; and summa cum laude if their grade point average for all college level work is 3.85 or higher. Beginning with the class of 1993, only courses accepted for transfer will be included in the grade point average.

Academic Resources

Library and Media Services

The Emerson College Library, located at 150 Beacon Street, serves the College as an information resource center. The collection of over 130,000 print and non-print items focuses on the communication and performing arts, with major concentrations in mass communications, theatre, speech, and communication disorders. Library services include reference assistance, bibliographic instruction for classes, interlibrary loan, and computer-assisted reference searches to support student and faculty research. The latter provides access to numerous bibliographic databases through Dialogue, BRS, and other online services. In addition the Library provides workstations for direct user access to a number of relevant CD–ROM databases.

The Media Center, located on the lower level of the Library, circulates audiovisual equipment for individual instruction and class use, offers instruction in media utilization, and acquires non-print materials and equipment to support curricular needs. The collection includes 13,000 films, videotapes, phonodiscs, compact disks, and phonotapes. Facilities for graphic production, video dubbing, editing, and previewing are located in the Media Center.

The College Archives, located on the first floor of the Library, houses materials on the history and development of the College as well as special collections related to theatre, radio, and television.

The Library is a member of the Fenway Library Online (FLO), an automated resource sharing network which provides online access to Emerson's library materials as as to those of the Massachusetts College of Art, Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences, Museum of Fine Arts, New England Conservatory, Wheelock College and Wentworth Institute of Technology. Online terminals are located throughout the library and all circulation desk operations are fully automated.

The Library is also a member of the Fenway Library Consortium (FLC), which includes the seven FLO libraries as well as the Brookline Public Library and libraries at Emmanuel College, Hebrew College, Simmons College, Suffolk University and the University of Massachusetts (Harbor Campus). Emerson students may use their identification cards to check out materials from all FLO and FLC libraries.

In addition, the Library uses the Online Computer Library Center (OCLC) and the New England Union List of Serials (NEULS) for interlibrary loan and research support.

Details concerning Library hours and services are available in the Student Handbook and in the student guide to the Emerson Library.

Academic Computer Center

The Emerson Academic Computer Center continues to expand in response to user needs by providing services in support of student and faculty teaching and research. The Center is located in 100 Beacon Street and is open seven days a week to all students with the requisite skills to operate the available systems.

The Center contains a variety of computer systems and software, including Apple IIe and Macintosh microcomputers and the IBM PS/2 Model 25's. Word processing, database and spreadsheet packages are available. Two NEC APC III microcomputer systems are configured as graphics workstations with AUTO-CAD software. The Center has recently acquired a MicroVAX 3400, time-sharing microcomputer. The system is linked to 12 terminals, with access to the SPSS-X and Minitab Statistical Packages. Modem access to the MicroVAX is available on a limited basis.

Advising Center

The Advising Center, located on the courtyard level of One Arlington Street, coordinates various aspects of the advising process in support of the academic advising provided by the Divisions. It is responsible for the administration of the Freshman Advising Program, the assignment of individual faculty advisors to all undergraduates, and the production of The Advising Program Handbook. Staff members of the Center view traditional advising issues such as the selection of appropriate majors and courses within the larger context of human development. Issues of career preference and personal values receive full consideration. The services of the Center are available to all members of the Emerson community.

Learning Assistance Center

The Learning Assistance Center is located on the courtyard level of One Arlington Street. The major goal of the Center is to assist students to become more independent, self-confident and efficient learners who are better able to meet the College's academic standards and attain their own educational goals.

The Center offers students a variety of academic services and teaches skills that are applicable to all courses at Emerson. These skills include coping with textbook material, taking notes in the classroom, time management, writing and proofreading papers, studying for exams, and improving critical thinking skills. Assistance is also provided to students preparing for the Graduate Record Exam.

The Center provides assistance to any interested Emerson student. Special attention is given to those students who are provisionally accepted, on academic probation, referred through the system of Early Alert, or considered to be non-traditional.

The Learning Assistance Center also offers a Peer Tutoring Program. Through this program students receive free tutoring in specific courses from fellow students. Students serving as tutors are paid for providing this service. For students with special physical or other needs, the Center can arrange for untimed or oral administration of exams and can make alternative arrangements for students who are unable to take their own class notes.

Career Services

The Office of Career Services provides assistance to Emerson students and alumni. Counselors help students assess their interests, values, skills and goals as the basis for determining career possibilities. The staff assists students with the selection of and application to professional and graduate schools, as well as job-search strategies, resume writing, and interviewing techniques.

Students are encouraged to keep their credentials on file in the Career Service Office. Records are maintained and may include references from faculty members and past employers, a resume, and an unofficial transcript. These files are sent out upon written request to graduate and professional schools, prospective employers, and other organizations.

A Career Resource Library provides full-time, part-time and summer job listings and internship opportunities. Annual Reports, directories, and professional journals are available for specified company information. Panels are held throughout the year to give students an opportunity to speak with professionals about preparing and marketing themselves for future positions. The Job Notification Program provides a weekly listing of available jobs to alumni subscribers.

Internships. Internships are an integral part of the Emerson experience. They allow students an opportunity to combine knowledge gained in the classroom with supervised professional experience. Currently more than 800 internship opportunities are available with businesses such as WCVB-TV; Cable News Network; the American Broadcasting Company; Boston magazine; the Digital Equipment Corporation; John Hancock Insurance company; Disney Productions; and Hill, Holiday, Connors, Cosmopolous, Inc. These opportunities offer on-site experience under the supervision of talented professionals in the fields of communication and performing arts. Credit for internships is arranged through the faculty internship coordinator of each Division.

Emerson Connection. The Emerson Connection is an informational tool for Emersonians who are in the process of career exploration. The network consists of over 250 alumni, parents and friends of the College who live in various geographical areas and work in fields related to Emerson's majors. They have volunteered to speak with students and alumni about their work, geographical locale, career development, and job search strategies.

Division of Continuing Education

Academic Programs. Continuing Education at Emerson is based on a philosophy that learning is a lifelong pursuit, whether for personal growth, career advancement, or career change. Consonant with this philosophy, the Division has implemented a degree program for part-time students as well as a schedule of continuing education courses offered each semester.

Part-time Degrees. Baccalaureate degrees can be earned on a part-time basis in: Advertising and Public Relations, Business and Organizational Communication, Communication Studies Generalist, Mass Communication Generalist, and Writing, Literature and Publishing (Creative or Professional Writing). Part-time degree students take a maximum of 11 credits per semester.

Admission to the Part-time Degree Program. Courses, admissions, and academic standards are the same as those for full-time students. To matriculate as a part-time degree student, a candidate must submit a completed application for admission with the $30 application fee, an official secondary school transcript showing date of graduation, an official transcript and catalogue from each college previously attended, and a letter of recommendation from a former instructor.

Students are eligible to take 24 credit hours through the Division of Continuing Education before they must matriculate. Financial aid is available for eligible part-time degree candidates.

Continuing Education Courses. Undergraduate students who are interested in the field of communication may take 24 credit hours through the Division before deciding to matriculate. Graduate students who are interested in the field of communication may take 12 credits before deciding to matriculate.

A high school diploma or its equivalent is required to take courses open for undergraduate credit. Evidence of an undergraduate degree is required for graduate courses.

The Division's offerings may be used, within limitations, by full-time students to obtain greater scheduling flexibility in their programs.

Summer Session. The Division offers two six week and a 12-week summer session. Part-time, full-time, and continuing education students may take courses during these sessions to accelerate academic progress, to complete graduation requirements, and to enhance their academic credentials.

Registration. Registration for part-time degree and continuing education courses and summer courses is through the Division's office, Zero Marlborough Street, or by mail.

Academic advising and a catalogue are available. Call 578-8615 for more information.

Youtheatre. Each summer, the Division of Performing Arts and the Division of Continuing Education sponsor a unique opportunity for study and training in the theatre arts for students of ages 12-20. The Emerson College Youtheatre offers courses in performance and production as well as the presentation of one of several original plays and fresh interpretations of classic plays.

The Emerson College Program Corporation. The Division of Continuing Education, through the Emerson College Program Corporation, sponsors a variety of conferences, seminars and institutes. Programs offered on a regular basis include national and international conferences on Television and Ethics, Language Learning Disabilities, and various other programs. These feature both nationally and internationally acclaimed artists, scholars and practitioners.

Specially tailored programs are also offered to the academic and business communities. These are presented on the campus or are available on-site to businesses.

Division of Graduate Studies

Graduate study at Emerson College provides students with the opportunity for advanced work on the theoretical and practical aspects of the fields of communication. Graduate programs lead to the Master of Arts, Master of Science in Speech and the Master of Fine Arts in the Divisions of Communication Disorders, Communication Studies, Mass Communication, Performing Arts, and Writing, Literature and Publishing. Advanced undergraduates are able to take some graduate courses with the permission of the instructor. The Division of Communication Disorders offers a special five-year combined Bachelor's and Master's program. Part-time evening and weekend graduate degree programs are available in some subject areas.

For more information on specific programs and subject–matter concentrations of graduate study, write to the Office of Graduate Admissions, Emerson College, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116.

Office of Alumni Relations

The Office of Alumni Relations sponsors and coordinates programs designed to benefit students on campus as well as alumni nationwide. Alumni involvement begins within the Emerson community with students: our alumni-in-residence. The office sponsors and coordinates programs with the Alumni Association, the Student Alumni Relations Association, alumni clubs in various cities, and Emerson's Career Services Office. These activities both continue Emerson's life-long affiliation with its graduates by helping alumni pursue their professional careers and personal growth, and provide current students with close contact with successful alumni. For information, call 578-8535.

Alumni Association. Membership in the Emerson College Alumni Association is extended to any person who has attended Emerson College for two or more years. Association members receive The Emerson Beacon, and may participate in Association activities, including election to the National Board of Directors that governs the activities of the Association. Alumni also are encouraged to participate in club activities in Los Angeles, New York, and Boston, and in informal groups in Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., San Francisco, and Miami.

Student Alumni Relations Association (SARA). All students are invited to become members of SARA. Student members create ways for students on campus to interact with alumni, thus improving the Emerson experience from a student's perspective. Additional ways in which students have offered alumni opportunities to remain involved include: hosting social activities, helping with career and networking events, coordinating Alumni Weekend, Commencement activities, and other special events including the annual New York connection.

Communication Disorders

Professors Klim, Lahey, Chair, Luterman, and Maxwell; Associate Professor Bennett; Assistant Professor Bartlett; Clinical Instructors Townsend, Thau, and Rubin.

The undergraduate program in Communication Disorders provides preprofessional academic preparation for professional study at the graduate level. The purpose of the undergraduate program is to provide students with an intensive academic preparation of study in the basic communication processes. This preparation includes courses related to normal aspects of speech, language and hearing, the anatomical structures and scientific bases of speech production, and course instruction in scientific principles and the basic disorders of speech, language, and hearing.

It is the philosophy of the Division to have students also understand the role and function of speech-language pathologists and audiologists in order to relate to the fundamental information provided in course work, and also to assist them in making decisions covering the future course of graduate study. Thus, the undergraduate program is designed to provide preparation for eventual graduate study in speech-language pathology or audiology.

The faculty of the Division of Communication Disorders is committed to the following goals:

- To provide students with those courses that meet the needs of study in the basic communication processes.
- To provide students with basic courses in disorders of speech and hearing which can be used as a background for graduate study in either speech-language pathology or in audiology.

- To provide students with the opportunity to obtain observations of speech, language and hearing service activity, and to obtain the documented hours of observation required prior to clinical practicum at the graduate level of study in the profession.
- To allow students to participate in clinical service activity as apprentices to graduate students; to screen the hearing of children and adults in community centers or Head Start programs; and thereby demonstrate under supervision their ability to use basic skills related to their level of academic preparation of pre-professional training.
- To provide scientific orientation to the study of communication as requirements or electives for the General Education Science requirement for the bachelor's degree, as general electives, or as an interdisciplinary field of study related to other Divisions of the College.

Programs

Students majoring in Communication Disorders are advised to become candidates for the Bachelor of Science in Speech degree, or the Bachelor of Science degree. Those desiring the Bachelor of Arts degree should review the general requirements for this degree.

The Division operates the Naomi Stroh Institute for Speech and Hearing, the Robbins Speech and Hearing Center, and the Thayer Lindsley Parent-Centered Pre-School Nursery for the Hearing Impaired. These facilities provide speech, language, and hearing services to Boston and surrounding communities. Services are also open to students in the College who may be in need of assistance. The Division also participates in screening programs with nearby Head Start and community centers.

The Center and Pre-School Nursery are used to provide experience for students in the Division. Students observe clinical and nursery activities as related to their course work. Upper level students may participate more actively in training activities, and observe and assist children and adults in service programs in off-campus facilities such as nurseries, schools, and community centers. Students design internships in consultation with their advisor. These programs acquaint students with the problems of the communicatively impaired and the types of services provided through various agencies. Students will have assignments for observations and related experiences within certain courses. Transfer students entering Emerson later than the first semester of the junior year should expect to enroll for an additional term or summer session to meet degree requirements.

TEACHER EDUCATION/CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

Students at Emerson who are interested in obtaining a Teaching Certificate in Speech-Language Pathology from the Massachusetts Department of Education should be aware that graduate education is necessary. The requirements for the Certificate are available from the Division office. For general information please see the Teacher Education/Certification section of this catalogue.

FIVE AND A HALF YEAR
BACHELOR'S/MASTER'S DEGREE PROGRAM

The five and a half year bachelor's/master's program is an accelerated course of study in which certain credits earned are applied toward the completion of requirements for both the undergraduate and graduate degrees. Students will take courses in the normal processes of speech and language, such as Communication Science, Anatomy and Physiology of the Speech and Hearing Mechanism, and Language Acquisition. They also will have courses in the scientific principles of communication disorders, and in the basic disorders of speech, language, and hearing. Graduate work will begin in the senior year and will provide a number of hours of supervised clinical practice by the time the bachelor's degree is earned. This accelerated program will involve approximately five and a half years of study including summers. Only students who have completed formal application procedures through the Admissions office may be considered for this program.

High school seniors applying to the bachelor's/master's program in Communication Disorders must present evidence of exceptionally strong academic preparation and a letter of reference from a high school teacher that specifically supports their ability to an accelerated college program. In addition, an interview with a faculty member in the Division of Communication Disorders is required. Interviews may be scheduled through the Admissions Office. Students who are admitted to the five and a half year program as freshmen are required to maintain 3.0 overall GPA and grades of no less than B in all courses required in the major. Students' progress will be reviewed annually for retention.

Students who are not admitted freshmen year and all other interested students may be considered for the bachelor's/master's program at the end of the Sophmore year. Students wishing to apply at this level should do so through the Graduate Admissions Office. To complete their application, students must submit an Emerson College transcript with a minimum overall gradepoint average of 3.0 and three letters of reference from Emerson faculty members. It is desirable to submit at least one letter of reference written by a faculty member in the Division of Communication Disorders. In addition, applicants must schedule an interview with Dr. Suzanne Bennett, Coordinator of Graduate Study in the Division. Students formally admitted at this level also must maintain the academic standards noted above and performance will be reviewed annually.

Degree Requirements

The major in Communication Disorders is 40 credit hours and consists of:

CD	153	Images of the Handicapped
CD	162	Introduction to Deafness and Sign Language
CD	193	Speech, Language & Hearing Field Experience
CD	233	General Phonetics
SC	234	Anatomy and Physiology of the Speech and Hearing Mechanism
CD	312	Disorders of Communication and Lab
PS	333	Developmental Psychology
CD	367	Principles and Procedures in Audiology and Lab
CD	401	Language Acquisition and Lab
CD	403	Communication Science

Students must also complete one of the following Science courses: SC 199 Science of Communication or SC 270 The Brain and Human Communication.

Sequence of Courses for Undergraduate CD Major

CD	153	Images of the Handicapped
CD	162	Introduction to Deafness and Sign Language

Sophomore Year

CD	233	General Phonetics
SC	234	Anatomy and Physiology of the Speech and Hearing Mechanism
SC	199	Science of Communication or
SC	270	The Brain and Human Communication

Junior Year

CD	312	Disorders of Communication and Lab
CD	367	Principles and Procedures in Audiology and Lab

Senior Year

CD	403	Communication Science

Communication Disorders Courses

CD 153 Images of the Handicapped 4 credits
A study of how the handicapped are portrayed in film, theatre, and literature contrasted with the realities of current day society. (Fall Semester)

CD 162 Introduction to Deafness and Sign Language 2 credits
Overview of information concerning issues affecting the deaf child and adult. Students will be taught to have some facility in the use of manual communication. (Fall or Spring Semester)

CD 193 Speech, Language & Hearing Field Experience 2 credits
Presentations by faculty and guests pertinent to roles of professionals in our field. Opportunity to visit and observe professionals in different service facilities outside of the College. (Spring Semester)

CD 208 Intermediate Sign Language 2 credits
Conversational sign language for students who have completed a basic sign course. Course designed to enhance receptive and expressive skills in American Sign Language and in signed English. (Spring Semester)

CD 233 General Phonetics 4 credits
Study of articulatory possibilities in humans, general phonetic theory, description of sounds, transcription of sounds, discrimination of sounds, and the production of sounds. (Fall Semester)

CD 312 Disorders of Communication and Lab 4 credits
An introduction to various language, speech, and communicative disorders with study of principles of diagnostic and clinical procedures. Students are required to observe diagnostic and therapy sessions under the instructor's supervision, and to submit written reports of the observations. (Fall Semester)

CD 367 Principles and Procedures in Audiology and Lab 4 credits
Detailed anatomy of the ear, with an overview of the physics of sound, and current medical and surgical correction of hearing loss. The course covers pure tone audiometry and audiogram interpretation essential to hearing testing along with special testing, a brief review of hearing aid design and test procedures. Students will engage in practicum and guided observation of testing procedures. (Spring Semester)

CD 401 Language Acquisition and Lab 4 credits
A study of the language learning process and its relation to other aspects of cognitive and social development. The course includes discussion of communicative and language learning processes used by children from birth through adolescence. A practicum allows students to evaluate the acquisition of language in normally developing children. (Fall Semester)

CD 403 Communication Science 4 credits
An integrative treatment of concepts in the physics of sound, acoustic and articulatory phonetics, and speech perception. Students have direct experience in the use of laboratory instrumentation for displaying and analyzing speech signals. (Spring Semester)

CD 459 Methods in Aural Rehabilitation and Lab 4 credits
A review of the educational theories underlying deaf education and rehabilitation procedures for the hearing impaired child and adult. Students will be expected to participate in guided observation of therapy. (Only offered to selected undergraduate students who have permission of the instructor). (Spring Semester)

CD 495 Practicum in Speech, Language or Hearing 2 credits
Practicum experience designed with the Coordinator of Clinical Training, including completion of 25 observation hours. Students elect to train as a clinical apprentice in the Robbins Speech and Hearing Center or participate in a nursery program for speech/language impaired or hearing impaired children. A limited number of clinical hours may be applied toward ASHA practicum requirements. Senior level course. Prerequisites: CD 312 and CD 367 and permission of instructor.

CD 498 Directed Study in Communication Disorders 2 credits
Individual study in communication disorders. An honors section of this course is open to students with appropriate academic credentials and permission of advisor. Permission of instructor and Division Chair.

CD 499 Internship in Speech Language and Hearing 2 credits
Internship experience in a variety of settings including special programs for handicapped children. Five to ten hour commitment per week. Open to students at junior level and above with permission of the advisor. (Fall or Spring Semester)

Science Courses

SC 199 Science of Communication 4 credits
An introduction to the scientific study of language, speech, and communication.

Topics include prerequisites for language learning, the evolution of language and speech, and the components of grammar as they relate to communication. Using laboratory instruments , students evaluate evidence pertaining to contemporary models of speech perception and production. Basic processes that operate in the communication of nonhumans are compared with those in humans. (Fall Semester)

SC 202 The Human Body 4 credits
An introduction to the morphology and physiology of cells, tissues, organs, and systems. Emphasis is placed on interrelationships among major body systems, including musculoskeletal, respiratory, digestive, cardiovascular, endocrine, and reproductive. Students learn about the methodology used by scientists who study human physiology. (Fall or Spring Semester)

SC 205 The Environment and Mankind 4 credits
A contemporary examination of biological principles and their relationship to air and water pollution, food resources and hunger, overpopulation, renewable and non-renewable energy resources, and land use. Emphasis is placed on evaluating evidence regarding environmental issues and on the impact of scientific and technological developments on society. (Fall or Spring Semester)

SC 231 Physics for the Media 4 credits
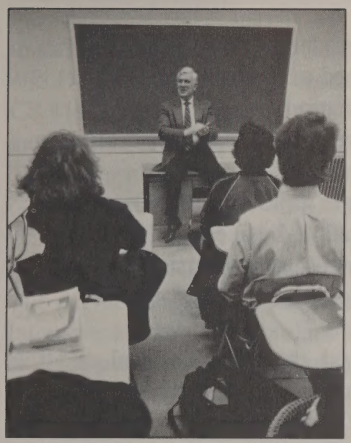
An introduction to the physics of light and sound waves, electromagnetic theory, acoustics, and optics. Explanation of the principles and designs of radio, television, and film devices. Includes laboratory demonstrations and exercises. (Spring Semester)

SC 234 Anatomy and Physiology of the Speech and Hearing Mechanisms 4 credits
Study of the structure and function of the biological systems that underlie speech and language, with emphasis on the processes of respiration, phonation, and articulation and their neural control. Contemporary models of speech production will be evaluated using evidence from anatomy, physiology, and acoustics. (Spring Semester)

SC 270 The Brain and Human Communication 4 credits
This course is concerned with the biological structure of human experience and the neural basis for its expression and regulation. Topics include gross anatomy of the nervous system, neural cells as biological units of behavior, special sensory systems, mechanisms of movement, memory and the storage of information, speech and language centers of the brain, emotion and self regulation, and altered states of consciousness. Students learn about the methodology used by scientists who study human physiology. Structures and several dimensions of consciousness that underlie human communication abilities. (Fall or Spring Semester)



Communication Studies

Professors Crannell, LaShoto, and Silvestri; Associate Professors Brenders, Hollingworth, Littlefield, Marlier, Payne, Chair, Rancer, Sherard, and Young; Assistant Professors Anderson, Brown, Fabj, and Weiler; Instructor Roidoulis.

The Communication Studies Division provides academic background and preparation for graduate study and/or careers in communication related fields such as Communication, Politics and Law; Advertising and Public Relations; Business and Organizational Communication; Speech Communication Studies; and Speech Education. Each concentration is designed from the perspective of communication, with a strong faculty commitment to the critical development of the student's skills in speaking, listening, reasoning, and research. Students select a course of study that addresses an understanding of the ethical function of communication in society and develops the abilities to articulate clearly a point of view to discriminate among values, and to employ cogent reasoning in their deliberations.

Furthermore, the Division of Communication Studies strives to provide the highest level of instruction in oral communication skills for all students at Emerson College.

The faculty of the Division of Communication Studies is committed to the following goals:

- To provide, through a program of required basic courses, a foundation of oral competency for all Emerson College students.

- To offer concentrations specifically designed to meet the needs of students preparing for careers in communication.
- To develop qualitative and quantitative research skills for application to various communication concentrations.
- To prepare students for graduate programs in various areas of communication studies, such as political communication, business and organizational communication, marketing communication, advertising and public relations, speech communication studies, legal studies, and speech education.
- To provide an understanding of the historical, theoretical, ethical, and critical bases of the communication process.

Programs

Students majoring in Communication Studies will receive a Bachelor of Science in Speech degree, a Bachelor of Literary Interpretation degree, or a Bachelor of Arts degree. For details on any of the four programs or concentrations described below, please contact the Chair of the Division of Communication Studies. Each concentration requires 40 credit hours. Students are encouraged to explore the educational opportunities that are offered through internships and study in Los Angeles and Europe.

COMMUNICATION, POLITICS AND LAW

The Communication, Politics and Law concentration is specifically designed to prepare interested students for further study in graduate or law school; careers in government or foreign service; or careers in private businesses concerned with governmental activity or foreign affairs. The program is offered in conjunction with the Division of Humanities and Social Sciences, and is grounded in an ethical appreciation of rhetoric and its role in society.

Emerson College does not have a formal prelaw curriculum, but finds that students who are able to establish an impressive academic record can successfully compete for admission to law school. Students in this program pursue coursework that increases their ability to think critically, to synthesize information, to express themselves clearly, and to exercise sound judgement, and thus provides them with the comprehensive education necessary for admission to law school.

Requirements include two courses in oral communication skills in addition to those needed to fulfill the General Education Curriculum. Beginning with the Class of 1993, students are required to take one additional course in communication skills. Students are expected to complete CS 450 Political Communication; SO 240 Introduction to Communication, Politics and Law; SO 333 The Law and Communication; and CS 499 Internships in Communication Studies. Students must select one of the following theory courses: CS 343 Rhetorical Theory: Audience Analysis or CS 320 Communication Theory. In addition, students must choose either SO 430 Seminar in Communication, Politics and Law or CS 485 Directed Study. Eight credit hours must be selected from such electives as CS 419 Speechwriting; HI 231 Personality, Power and Politics; CS 270 Propaganda and Public Opinion; SO 228 Political Thought; SO 410 Communication, Technology and Politics; SO 203 Principles of Economics; and CS 456 Rhetoric of Minority Movements in America.

ADVERTISING AND PUBLIC RELATIONS

The Advertising and Public Relations Program prepares students by offering an intensive academic curriculum which incorporates theoretical structures and skills application. Students are grounded in fundamental principles and techniques of advertising campaigns and public relations as marketing communication tools.

The guiding philosophy of this program is the recognition that effective professional communicators must appreciate the dynamic workings of advertising and public relations within a mass media environment, and within a societal, political and economic context.

Requirements include two courses in oral communication skills in addition to those needed to meet the General Education Curriculum. Beginning with the Class of 1993, students are required to take one additional course in communication skills. The General Education Mathematics requirement, must be selected from either MA 207 Statistics or CP 301 Computer Applications to Communication Research. Beginning with the class of 1993, only MA 207 Statistics fulfills this requirement. Students are expected to complete CS 255 Advertising I: Principles and Practices; CS 305 Advertising II: Campaign and Media Planning; and CS 351 Introduction to Public Relations. Students must select one of the following theory courses: CS 343 Rhetorical Theory: Audience Analysis or CS 320 Communication Theory. Sixteen credit hours must be selected from such electives as CS 455 Seminar in Strategic Marketing; CS 454 Writing for Public Relations; CS 493 Marketing Management; and CS 304 Political Advertising.

BUSINESS AND ORGANIZATIONAL COMMUNICATION

The Business and Organizational Communication concentration is designed for the student interested in communication analysis in the Business and Organization setting. This concentration prepares students for careers in organizational communication, training and development, personnel, management and labor in profit and nonprofit organizations as well as for further study at the graduate level. An essential part of the program is proficiency in oral and written communication.

Requirements include two courses in oral communication skills in addition to those needed to meet the General Education Curriculum. Beginning with the Class of 1993, students are required to take one additional course in communication skills. Students majoring in Business and Organizational Communication must enroll in CS 435 Business and Organizational Communication and CS 490

Organizational Behavior. Students must select one of the following theory courses: CS 343 Rhetorical Theory: Audience Analysis or CS 320 Communication Theory. Students must take either CS 491 Organizational Communication: Analysis and Development, or CP 301 Computer Application to Communication Research. Sixteen credit hours must be selected from such electives as CS 430 Introduction to Management, CS 421 Training Methods in Organizational Communication, CS 493 Marketing and Sales: Communication Research, and CS 499 Internship in Communication Studies.

SPEECH COMMUNICATION STUDIES

The Speech Communication Studies concentration is designed for students interested in a diverse academic experience within the Communication Studies as preparation for specific careers, for further study at the graduate level and for future teachers in speech education. A major objective of this major is furthering the understanding, appreciation and practice of the skills required for artistic and critical effectiveness in oral and written communication.

Requirements include two courses in oral communication skills in addition to those needed to fulfill the General Education Curriculum. Beginning with the Class of 1993, students are required to take one additional course in communication skills. Each student, with the Chair of Communication Studies, must design a 28 credit hour individual plan of study. Students must select one course from the following theory courses: CS 343 Rhetorical Theory: Audience Analysis or CS 320 Communication Theory.

TEACHER EDUCATION/CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

Students at Emerson who are interested in obtaining a teaching certificate as Teacher of Speech: Secondary Education should contact the Division of Communication Studies for the specific requirements. The program includes oral communication skills application and theory as well as educational philosophy and practicum requirements. For general information, please see the Teacher Education/Certification section of this catalogue.

Communication Studies Courses

CS 101 Introduction to Communication Theories and Studies 2 credits

This introduction to the study of human communication will consider theories and models of communication, and examine communication from a cognitive, social, sensory, and psychological perspective. Students will examine Aristotle's view of persuasion as well as Charles W. Emerson's theory of expression. This course will integrate strategic learning approaches including classroom performance skills, critical reading/critical thinking, textbook approaches, writing research papers, and library research. For students in the Alternative Freshman Year Program only.

CS 104 Voice and Articulation 4 credits
Develops in the student's voice a wide range of controls in pitch, volume, and quality to meet the voice and speech needs of courses in mass communication, public speaking, interpretation, platform art, teaching, and theatre. Includes ear discrimination training and an introduction to phonetics. Limited absences.

CS 108 Public Speaking 4 credits
Develops competence in public speaking through the performance and analysis of various informative, evocative and persuasive speeches. Emphasis on audience analysis, listening, rhetorical structure of messages, ethics, presentation, and critical analysis of speeches. Includes an introduction to rhetorical theory.

CS 201 Fundamentals of Oral Interpretation 4 credits
Develops the expressive powers of the student through practice in the oral interpretation of literature, prose, poetry, and drama. Focus is on analyzing an author's meaning, responding to it, and communicating that meaning to an audience. Correlation of oral interpretation with other arts. Attendance required at selected performances. Specific sections will address topics such as Oral Interpretation of Afro-American Literature and Oral Reading for Mass Media. Prerequisite: CS 104. Limited absences.

CS 212 Forensic Tournament Performance 1 non-tuition credit
Performance in inter-collegiate forensic tournaments and related activities. One credit per semester. May be repeated up to four credits. Course offered Pass/Fail. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor.

CS 220 Methods of Advocacy and Argument 4 credits
Presents the theoretical foundations of and provides training in the analysis, research and debating of contemporary political, ethical, and legal issues. Different sections may emphasize different argumentative formats such as two-person or four-person debate and mock trial. For students wishing to develop analytical, oral and research skills useful in any area where controversial issues arise.

CS 221 Forensic Workshop 2 credits
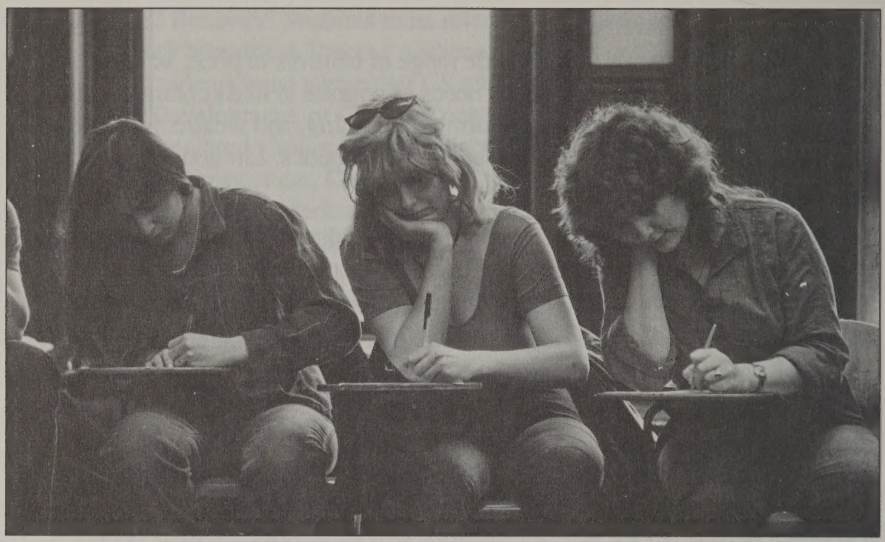
Meets the performance requirement for the student interested in experiencing communication beyond the classroom. Emphasis is placed on developing competencies in various aspects of communication performance. Students develop communication skills which are then demonstrated in forensic competition on weekends, in Marderosian Forum presentations on campus and in related activities sponsored by Communication, Politics and Law. May be repeated up to four credit hours.

CS 251 Introduction to Public Relations 4 credits
(formerly CS 451)
A study of public relations, current practices and problems, types of communication, and communication strategies.



CS 255 Advertising I: Principles and Practices 4 credits
Introduction to structural and behavioral components of the advertising industry, with particular emphasis on the practical application of theoretical concepts appropriate to the planning, development and execution of advertising messages.

CS 260 Interpersonal Communication 4 credits
An experience-based introduction to the concepts and skills of interpersonal communication which include listening, feedback, self-disclosure, and relational communication as well as communication within groups and group behavior theories. The focus is on dyadic and small group communication processes and adjustments, problem solving, and decision making.

CS 270 Propaganda and Public Opinion 4 credits
An introduction to theoretical, historical and contemporary issues related to mass media, public opinion, propaganda and audience analysis. Classical and modern conceptions of the public and the functions of public opinion are surveyed. Definitions and theories of propaganda are compared. Case studies of twentieth century propaganda are examined. (Fall Semester)

CS 303 Polling and Survey Techniques 4 credits
The theory, concepts, and procedures of assessing attitudes as they relate to social and public policy, including a review of sampling methods and data analysis techniques are studied in this course. (Spring Semester)

CS 304 Political Advertising 4 credits
Focuses on the examination of political advertising, roles of political consultants, development of campaign commercials, time buying procedures, and general strategies of adapting messages for national, state, and local elections. (Fall Semester)

CS 305 Advertising II: Campaign and Media Planning 4 credits
The practical application of basic advertising principles used in the development of an advertising campaign for a "real" product or service. This course builds upon the concept of target audience identification in designing appropriate advertising objectives and media strategies. Prerequisite: CS 255.

CS 313 Advanced Voice and Articulation 4 credits
Advanced study of the basic techniques outlined in CS 104. The emphasis is on articulation for the professional performer, with rigorous drill work in vocal production. Offered for students concentrating in Performing Arts acting. Limited absences. Prerequisite: CS 104. (Spring Semester)

CS 320 Communication Theory 4 credits
Investigation of contemporary approaches to building communication theory. Examination of current research and literature on communication in several contexts: interpersonal, organizational, intercultural, health, political, and group. Discussion of theory-building options in communication.

CS 343 Rhetorical Theory: Audience Analysis 4 credits
An overview of theories of rhetoric from Greek antiquity to the present emphasizing how rhetoricians from the Sophists, Plato and Aristotle to I.A. Richards and Kenneth Burke have explained and evaluated the intended and actual effects of persuasive discourse on audiences. From these theories are derived critical standards for describing and judging contemporary public discourse.

CS 407 Oral Interpretation of Drama 4 credits
Detailed study of the structure of drama for oral interpretation. Recommended for Performing Arts majors. Prerequisites: CS 104 and CS 201. (Spring Semester)

CS 415 Directing Forensic Activities 2-4 credits
Designed for future teachers of speech and communication, this course includes experience in coaching, directing, judging, organizing, and administrating a forensic program. Prerequisites: CS 220 and permission of instructor.

CS 416 Dialects 4 credits
Analysis of and practice in the use of American and foreign dialects, particularly Cockney, Southern, British, Scottish, Irish, German, French and Russian. Recommended for Performing Arts majors. Limited enrollment. (Spring Semester)

CS 417 Advanced Interpersonal Communication Theory
This course provides a comprehensive examination of the theoretical concepts and constructs comprising interpersonal communication. It includes the examination of experimental and descriptive research on interpersonal attraction, empathy, self–disclosure, trust, relationship development and deterioration. A theoretical paper or data based project is required. (Fall Semester)

CS 419 Speechwriting 4 credits
Course involves writing persuasive, informative, and special occasion speeches for audiences in business, politics and government. The course is a hands–on introduction to speechwriting with an emphasis on ethics, audience analysis, context, message development and the importance of the mass media in message formulation and delivery. Students will write and critique speeches as well as become familiar with speechwriting preparation for mass mediated debates, speaking events and press conferences. (Fall Semester)

CS 421 Training Methods in Organizational Communication 4 credits
Methods and practices used in developing training units in communication for managerial, supervisory, and general personnel in organizations. The class will examine instructional packages and their practical application. (Fall Semester)

CS 423 Entrepreneurship and Creative Problem Solving 4 credits
Study of concepts and characteristics of entrepreneurship, successful and unsuccessful entrepreneurs alone, and in organizations, national and international. Special emphasis on cases, speakers, and future trends. Creative communication, thinking and judgmental communication will be emphasized. Exploration of problem analysis and solution options, PERT, and MBO. (Spring Semester)

CS 430 Introduction to Management 4 credits
Modern concepts of management. Focus on the communication process, organizational systems, and dynamics of leadership. (Fall Semester)

CS 435 Business and Organizational Communication 4 credits
A study of organizational communication patterns. Application of theory and methods of communication problems. Course includes tours, guest speakers, and projects. (Spring Semester)

CS 437 Business Law 4 credits
A survey of basic legal concepts and theories relating to situations which might be encountered by the citizen and particularly the citizen who is engaged in "professional" life. The course includes legal history, criminal law, tort law, and contract law. (Fall Semester)

CS 438 Readers' and Chamber Theatre 4 credits
The principles, styles, and techniques of readers' theatre and chamber theatre are examined. Aesthetic principles are applied to group interpretation of literature and special concentration is on the dramatic approach to the presentation of prose fiction. Recommended for Performing Arts majors. Prerequisites: CS 104 and CS 201. (Spring Semester)

CS 444 American Public Address 4 credits
A rhetorical examination of major American speakers and social movements from the colonial to the contemporary periods. Special topics include the development of free speech, the women's rights movement, the labor movement, Black protest, and the student protest movement. Special speakers studied:

Abraham Lincoln, Lucy Stone. Emma Goldman, Eugene V. Debs, Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy, Malcolm X, and Ronald Reagan. (Fall Semester)

CS 450 Political Communication 4 credits
An examination of the relationship of communication and the exercise of political power. Topics covered include the ethics of electoral politics, political ideologies, and the role of mass media as a source and form of political communication. The focus is on the ways in which communication strategies may be used either to strengthen or undermine popular consent to political dominations.

CS 454 Writing for Public Relations 4 credits
A survey of writing techniques for public relations. Writing assignments such as news releases, brochures, speeches, visual presentations, company publications and public relations, advertising copywriting, and public service radio and television spots. Prerequisite: CS 451.

CS 455 ISM Seminar in Strategic Marketing 4 credits
An examination of communication strategies used to solve problems in the arts and entertainment industries. Special emphasis is placed on the proper balance of advertising, public relations and direct marketing in the strategic plan. (Fall Semester)

CS 456 Rhetoric of Minority Movements in America 4 credits
Exploration of the major political and social issues and rhetorical responses to the dominating controversial themes that characterize minority rhetoric in America, i.e., Blacks, Women, Hispanics, student protest, etc. Special attention will focus on rhetoric of agitation and control from a historical movement perspective. Emphasis will be given to the theories of collective behavior that contribute to an understanding of the rhetorical practices employed in minority movements throughout American history. (Spring Semester)

CS 459 Copywriting 4 credits
The principles of persuasion applied to product marketing through writing of effective advertising and public relations. Use of product and audience analysis to test and refine copy. (Fall Semester)

CS 460 Intercultural Communication 4 credits
Analysis of readings in intercultural communication. The course focuses on verbal and nonverbal customs of various cultures as information from both a cultural and language perspective. Each semester focuses on specific topics or cultures. Background in other cultures helpful, but not essential. Course may be repeated once under a different topic. (Fall Semester)

CS 461 Oral Interpretation of Poetry 4 credits
A study of the poetic form of oral presentation. Recommended for Performing Arts majors. Prerequisite: CS 201 or equivalent. (Fall Semester)

CS 463 Oral Interpretation of Prose 4 credits
A study of the structure and literary analysis of prose for oral presentation. Recommended for Performing Arts majors. Prerequisite: CS 201 or equivalent. (Spring Semester)

CS 464 Oral Interpretation of Shakespeare 4 credits
Half of the course is a study of Shakespeare's comedies from the oral interpretation viewpoint. The other half consists of a study of Shakespeare's tragedies. Emphasis is on analysis and performance. Recommended for Performing Arts majors. Prerequisite: CS 201 or equivalent. (As Needed)

CS 470 Mediation, Negotiation and Conflict Management 4 credits
Theory and techniques of negotiation and third–party conflict resolution, union–management settings, conflict management, verbal and non–verbal behavior, and conflict orientation. Case studies, role play simulations, readings, group exercises, and mock negotiations. Topics vary by semester. (As Needed)

CS 471 Seminar in Communication Studies 4 credits
Special topics in speech communication studies. Specific topics such as social movements, campaign persuasion analysis, rhetoric of protest, American public address, interpersonal compendium in oral interpretation, ethics and docudrama will be announced each semester. (As Needed)

CS 480 Propaganda, Politics and the Mass Media 4 credits
Propagandists' use of various media such as theories of theatre as a teaching platform, photojournalism as an instrument of change and the propaganda of omission. Principles of print, television, film, and radio propaganda. (Spring Semester)

CS 484 Advertising: Account Management 4 credits
Topics include methods of managing advertising and the advertising account, client/agency relations, problem solving from a management perspective, global advertising and the selling of the advertising campaign to both existing and new clients. (Fall Semester)

CS 486 Political News Study Group Research Practicum 4 credits
Involvement in the planning and coordination of a quantitative or a qualitative research project with faculty members involved in the Political News Study Group. Projects examine the contemporary political environment and are concerned with assessing the formation, impact, and effect of political communication throughout the globe. In addition to assuming a major responsibility in the project, students will frequently present such findings to the media, special conferences and symposia.

CS 490 Organizational Behavior 4 credits
Study of communication research and its application to industrial and organizational systems. This course analyzes the forces which impact upon people's behavior in the work force.

CS 491 Organizational Communication: Analysis and Development 4 credits
Surveys and applied research methods and intervention techniques appropriate to organizational development through the diagnosis and treatment of organizational communication problems. Case studies and participation in the design and/or implementation of actual research projects are included. Prerequisite: CS 435. (As Needed)

CS 493 Marketing and Management 4 credits
This course is intended to serve as an overview of the critical aspects of marketing management, exposing the student to both marketing theory and practice. The course focuses on analysis, planning, implementation and control of marketing programs.

CS 495 Interviewing 4 credits
An investigation of effective interviewing techniques in the workplace. The course includes the analysis of the employment interview, and the traditional counseling interview. A project is required. (Spring Semester)

CS 498 Directed Study in Communication Studies 2-4 credits
Individual projects are planned in collaboration with the instructor to meet students' specific academic area or professional interests. Students must prepare a proposal for study, including justification, design of instruction, and bibliography before a directed study is approved. Prerequisites: Permission of instructor and Division Chair.

CS 499 Internship in Communication Studies 2-8 credits
Field work in the following areas of communication studies: 401A Communication, Politics and Law; 401B Business and Organizations; 401C Advertising and Public Relations; 401D Speech Communication Studies. Course is offered Pass/Fail.

Computer Applications and Mathematics

Professor Amato, Chair; Assistant Professors Gilligan and Satake.

The Division of Computer Applications and Mathematics is committed to providing students with an academic foundation in the theory and practice of its disciplines and to support and enhance the study of communication. The curriculum of the Division includes courses designed to fulfill the General Education Curriculum as well as courses related to specific programs in other Divisions.

The Emerson Academic Computer Center provides computing services in support of the curriculum in computer applications, computer-related curricula in other Divisions, and student, faculty, and staff research. The Center utilizes a MicroVAX 3400 minicomputer in a time-sharing mode. In addition, the Center has a number of Apple, Digital, and IBM/compatible microcomputer systems. The center is located at 100 Beacon Street.

The faculty of the Division of Computer Applications and Mathematics is committed to the following goals:

- To provide theoretical foundations and skills in computers and mathematics.
- To offer a broad curriculum that can assist students to develop computer literacy and competencies pertinent to the communication disciplines.
- To provide technical assistance and computer related support services to students, faculty, and staff engaged in communication research.

Programs

The Division offers two minor programs: a general program in computer studies and a specific program related to computer applications in communication. Both programs require a minimum of 16 credits in computer related courses. The specific design of the minor will be developed by the student and the faculty in the Division.

GENERAL COMPUTER STUDIES

This minor is designed to provide interested students with an opportunity to advance their knowledge, understanding, and skills in computer science and application. Students are required to complete CP 150 Introduction to Computers and CP 151 Introduction to Programming. Students may also elect eight credit hours from the following courses: CP 225 Computer Graphics, CP 320 Data Base Systems and Management, CP 250 The Personal Computer, and CP 270 Desktop Publishing.

COMPUTER APPLICATIONS IN COMMUNICATION

This minor is designed to provide interested students with a core of courses in the use of computers as tools in communication study and research. Students are required to complete CP 150 Introduction to Computers and CP 301 Computer Application to Communication Research or CP 255 Computer Application to Theatre. Students may also choose eight credit hours from the following elective courses: CP 270 Desk Top Publishing, CP 320 Data Base Systems and Management, CP 350 Spreadsheet Design and Application, and MA 207 Statistics.

Computer Courses

CP 150 Introduction to Computers 4 credits

The course examines the basic architecture and concepts of computers and data processing. It surveys hardware and operating systems of computers and how they process information. Through lectures, readings, and lab activities, students are introduced to word processing, data base management, computer graphics, and programming.

CP 151 Introduction to Programming 4 credits

This course focuses on the development of programming skills using the BASIC language, including writing and editing programs. Topics include program design, output formatting, debugging, interactive programming, use of microcomputers, and microcomputer system designs.

CP 225 Computer Graphics 4 credits

The basic concepts and principles of computer graphics, examining both hardware (including digitizers and plotters) and software systems. Students use microcomputers to design and create monochromatic and color displays.

CP 250 The Personal Computer 4 credits
This course surveys microcomputer hardware and software, including various operating systems, disk drives, printers, monitors, and programming languages. Applications include word processing, data base management, spreadsheet analysis, and graphics exercises.

CP 255 Computer Application to Theatre 4 credits
A survey of programs and software designed or adaptable for use in design, technical, and management aspects of theatre, including: scenic and lighting design; technical production; box office operations; and related activities such as publicity, scheduling, and management. Practice in the application of several packages on microcomputer systems. (As Needed.)

CP 270 Desktop Publishing 4 credits
This course focuses on the growing field of Desktop Publishing, which is a synthesis of word processing, graphic design and layout, computer programming, and electronic communications technology. A detailed examination of Pagemaker software package, text editing software, graphic design software, and communications software for the Macintosh microcomputer and the VAX minicomputer will be included. The Postscript page design language and type fonts, standards for most laser printers, are also included as topics of study.

CP 301 Computer Application to Communication Research 4 credits
The course focuses on the use of statistical software packages in communication research. A detailed examination of the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (SPSS) and lab exercises are included in the course structure. Students design and conduct a pilot research study on a communication topic and utilize the SPSS package in data analysis and report generation. Discussion of requirements and conditions for appropriate use of various statistics. Knowledge of basic statistics is required. (As Needed)

CP 320 Data Base Systems and Management 4 credits
This course is a study of data base concepts, systems, and management techniques for mainframe and microcomputer systems. Examination of query languages, data definition and manipulation techniques, including relational, hierarchical and network approaches to data base management systems. A survey of available software and public and commercial data base services and practice in the application of microcomputer packages is included. (As Needed)

Mathematics Courses

MA 100 Essentials of Mathematics 2 credits
This course is designed to help students strengthen their mathematics background in preparation for the general education mathematics requirement. Topics include arithmetic operations with signed numbers, fractions, decimals and percents, systems of numeration, measurement, estimation, basic algebra and applications. Recommended for students who have not passed the Mathematics Placement Exam.

MA 101 Special Topics in Mathematics 4 credits
The course provides a foundation to mathematical reasoning and quantitative skills frequently required in decision making processes. Topics include an examination of general problem-solving strategies, numeric and algebraic methods, estimation, an introduction to logic, the language of sets and elementary set operations, introductory probability, and elementary descriptive statistics.

MA 102 College Mathematics 4 credits
This course provides students with a thorough but careful study of college–level mathematics concepts and principles. The course starts with a brief review of algebra, succeeded by the study of the following topics: sequences and series, number theory, probability, statistics and logic. This course fulfills the General Education Mathematics requirement beginning with the class of 1993. Prerequisite: Successful completion of Mathematics Placement Exam. SAT math score 500 and above.

MA 200 College Algebra 4 credits
This course provides a thorough but careful treatment of the concepts of algebra. It includes a review of fundamental topics, such as factoring, inequalities, functions and graphs, and systems of linear equations; followed by consideration of the standard material on first and second degree equations and selected topics such as matrix algebra and sequences series. This course fulfills the General Education Mathematics requirement beginning with the class of 1993. Prerequisite: Successful completion of Mathematics Placement Exam.

MA 207 Statistics 4 credits
An introduction to statistics with application to communication, social and behavioral sciences. Topics include the nature of statistical methods, descriptive statistics, probability distribution and the normal curve, correlation, hypothesis testing, and basic parametric and nonparametric tests. This course fulfills the General Education Mathematics requirement beginning with the class of 1993. Prerequisite: Successful completion of Mathematics Placement Exam. SAT math score 500 and above.

MA 300 Accounting Methods 4 credits
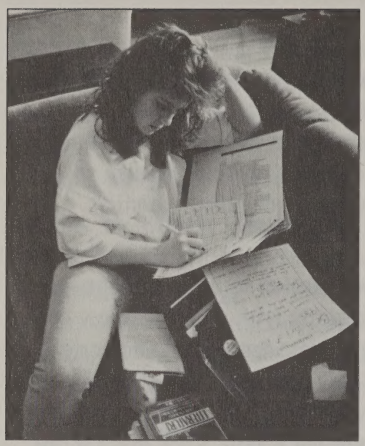
Introductory concepts and methods of analyzing and reporting business records and financial data for managerial decision making are examined. (As Needed)



Humanities and Social Sciences

Professors Corea, Dahill, De Luca, Chair, Romberg, Stonie, Ursul, and Ward; Associate Professors Brigham, Coffee, Malatesta, Shaw, and Shipps; Assistant Professors Brown, Clemmer, Gonzalez, Linden-Ward, Roberts, and Sussman.

The Division of Humanities and Social Sciences emphasizes the importance of students developing their critical and analytical skills, enhancing their capacity for problem-solving, and increasing their ability to synthesize information. Throughout their undergraduate training students are challenged intellectually by examining the issues and experiences that define society and culture. The Division offers a curriculum in which students study their historical past; governmental systems; other languages and cultures; the theory and application of political thought and debate; the dynamics of psychology, sociology, economics, religion, and philosophy; and the principles and aesthetics of the fine arts. The intent of this educational process is to provide a foundation upon which personal enrichment and careers in communication can be built. The Division makes a significant contribution to the general education of Emerson College students.

The faculty of the Division of Humanities and Social Sciences is committed to the following goals:

- To provide courses to fulfill General Education requirements in art, history, music, political science, philosophy, psychology, religion, sociology, economics, and foreign languages.

- To maintain and develop with other Divisions three interdisciplinary majors: American Culture and Communication; Communication, Politics and Law; and European Studies.
- To provide minor concentrations which highlight the interconnectedness of learning and knowledge in the areas of American Studies; Communication, Politics and Law; Ethics and Media; European Studies and Civilization; Music Programming; Political Science; Psychology of Mass Media; Women's Studies; and Visual Studies and the Arts.
- To provide students with instruction that enables them to communicate effectively in a foreign language. This skill will enhance career opportunities in the various fields of communication and bring personal satisfaction through increased access to other cultures and perspectives.

Programs

American Culture and Communication. American Culture and Communication is an interdisciplinary major that uses the historical and cultural approach to the study of communication. As an American Studies program, it seeks to explore the relationships between the theories and methods of communication and the institutions and cultural traditions of American society. American Culture and Communication is an interdivisional program which integrates courses in the areas of communication – literature, the visual and performing arts, as well as mass media – with related courses in the humanities and social sciences.

A major in American Culture and Communication is a natural synthesis of the study of communication and the media with liberal arts. An appreciation of American culture and communication is vital not only to understand and improve American society, but also to comprehend how the United States is perceived by the rest of the world. Students planning to enter the fields of government, education, business, and the arts need to understand the cultural foundations of communication. This interdisciplinary major of arts, media, and ideas in American studies provides additional focus to the communication specialization of Emerson.

In accordance with the general policy of Emerson College, students majoring in American Culture and Communication are required to complete a minimum of 128 credits of course work, including the General Education Curriculum. Majors must complete a minimum of 24 credits (six courses) in the American Culture and Communication core, including the introductory AC 201 and AC 202, two AC courses at the 300-level, and two semesters of senior seminars. Students planning to major in the program should complete AC 201 and AC 202 in the sophomore year. In addition to the core courses, a minimum of 16 credits (four courses) must be completed in an area of concentration such as History, Legal Studies, Literature, Media and Communication, Minority Studies, Political Communication, Popular Entertainment, Visual Arts, or Women's Studies. Lists of courses acceptable for each of the areas are available from the Division. Majors receive a Bachelor of Science degree or, after completion of the foreign language requirement, a Bachelor of Arts degree.

Students majoring in American Culture and Communication have a considerable amount of flexibility in arranging their programs of study to reflect their particular goals and intellectual interests. To ensure depth as well as breadth in the individualized concentrations, each major's program must be designed in consultation with a faculty advisor and be approved by the faculty committee.

European Studies. The European Studies major is intended to provide students with a special opportunity to study the life and culture of Europe, combining a program of traditional values on the Emerson College campus with a travel component in Europe and an emphasis on foreign languages. The major is interdisciplinary, providing students with exposure to the basic ideas and concepts of the liberal arts as a means to understanding European culture and practicing the principles and techniques of international communication. Accordingly, the curriculum, which is based on the comparative method of study, will emphasize international and intercultural studies: history, geography, economics, the arts, theatre, politics, education, and the communication arts and sciences. Majors receive a Bachelor of Arts degree.

An indispensable component in the major is the study of foreign languages as communication skills to help students understand and respect the common goals, problems, and needs of diverse national and ethnic groups. Most Americans are monolingual; they are linguistically and culturally isolated. The major will educate students to be well informed about world events through the resources opened up by intensive language training. This training will enable them to read and understand articles in newspapers, magazines and journals, talk to people, conduct interviews, listen to and watch media presentations, and do an internship in a business or radio station. Access to the culture in any foreign country is severely limited without knowledge of the language, inasmuch as there are few translations of television programs, radio broadcasts, films, and newspapers. Person-to-person communication is the most effective means for understanding cultural differences and similarities, business and communication practices, and political viewpoints and strategies. The European Studies major also will be open to foreign students who may find special value in living, studying, and working alongside their American counterparts.

The European Studies major requires 36 credits. This is in addition to 16 credits of foreign language specified by the College's general Bachelor of Arts degree requirements. Included in the 36 credit hours are:

1. ES 201 Introduction to European Studies (4 credits)
2. Two courses in European literature, either in the original language or in translation (8 credits)
3. Either:
   - Completion of a one semester travel-study course in Europe, entitled Cities in Europe (16 credits).

- Enrollment at an approved European institution of higher education (16 credits).
- A concentration, on the Emerson campus, in one of the following four fields: Drama and Performance; History, Politics and Government; Literature and the Arts;

4. A Senior Seminar (4 credits) and a Senior Thesis or Project based on scholarly research and writing (4 credits).

Communication, Politics and Law. The major in Communication, Politics and Law is designed for students interested in careers in politics or law, or an allied profession. This interdisciplinary concentration is offered in conjunction with the Division of Communication Studies.

Students are expected to complete CS 450 Political Communication; SO 240 Introduction to Communication, Politics and Law; SO 333 The Law and Communication; and CS 401 Internship in Communication Studies. One course must be selected from the following theory courses: CS 443 Audience Analysis: Theory and Criticism; CS 488 Seminar in the Rhetorical Tradition; or CS 320 Communication Theory. Students must choose either SO 430 Seminar in Communication, Politics and Law or CS 485 Directed Study. To complete the major students must choose eight credit hours of elective courses such as HI 231 Personality, Power and Politics; CS 270 Propaganda and Public Opinion; SO 228 Political Thought; CS 419 Speech Writing; and SO 203 Principles of Economics. Requirements include two courses in oral communication skills in addition to those needed to fulfill the General Education Curriculum. Beginning with the Class of 1993, students are required to take one additional course in communication skills.

Minor Programs. The Division offers several minor programs that are complementary to the major programs offered throughout the College. All minors require a minimum of 16 credits in the content area and must be developed in conjunction with a faculty member in the Division. Interested students should contact the office of the Division of Humanities and Social Sciences as early as possible to obtain the specific requirements for each minor.

American Studies. This minor provides the student with a broad exposure to the historical, literary, and cultural experiences which collectively have shaped the American character. The minor is based upon a survey of United States history and an introduction to the interdisciplinary American Studies methodology. Elective courses in different disciplines complement the history and American Studies core by enabling students to concentrate on aspects of American life that suit their specific interests.

The American Studies minor will take one of the introductory courses from the American Culture and Communication core (either AC 201 or AC 202), one of the AC 300-level colloquia, and two elective courses from diverse selections such as United States History, History of Cartoons in America, Colonial and Revolutionary America, History of the American City, American Philosophy, History of American Music, Afro-American History, American Constitutional History, The First Amendment, American Women in Literature, Nineteenth-Century American Literature, or History of American Theatre. The program of each student electing this minor must be designed in consultation with and with the approval of a faculty advisor from the American Culture and Communication Committee.

Communication, Politics and Law. This minor provides the student in Communication Studies or Mass Communication, particularly majors in print and broadcast journalism, with an interdisciplinary background in communication, politics, and law. Courses pertinent to this minor include Introduction to Communication, Politics and Law; Law and Communication; Methods of Advocacy and Argument: Civil Rights; Business Law; Women and the Law; Political Communication; Political Thought; and Public Opinion, Media and Politics.

Ethics and Mass Media. This minor provides the student with an introduction to the significant ethical issues that surround society's use of the communications media. This relatively new academic area of study will be explored from a multi-disciplinary point of view, using the resources of several of the College's Divisions: Communication Studies, Humanities and Social Sciences, and Mass Communication. Both descriptive/scientific studies and normative/philosophical considerations are included within this program of courses. The required academic core of the minor consists of two basic courses in ethics. In regard to the other components of the minor, the student may elect specific courses for eight credits from an approved list of possible curricular choices.

European Studies & Civilization. This minor provides the student with an introduction to the political, social, cultural, and intellectual influences that have shaped European civilization. It includes specific courses in national history with a significant cross-offering of electives from within the other disciplines of the Humanities, as well as courses from the Division of Writing, Literature and Publishing and the College's Liberal Arts offerings.

The European Studies and Civilization minor consists of 16 credits from the following courses: The World Since 1914; Modern European History; the History of Greece and Rome; The History of England; the History of Russia; Personality, Power and Politics; Aesthetics and Art; Paris in the Twenties; History of Art I; History of Art II; Modern Art; History of Opera; History of Western Philosophy; Seminar in Philosophy; Renaissance and Reformation Thought; Survey of Hispanic Literature and Culture; Survey of French Literature and Culture; and The English Novel.

Music Programming. This minor provides the student with a background in those research skills that will assist in the programming of diverse styles of music for radio and television. The minor is recommended for the Mass Communication major who is interested in acquiring knowledge about certain theoretical and historical developments in music as well as specific knowledge of the available bibliographical and research sources for music programming.

The Music Programming minor will consist of 16 credits, in addition to the General Education Curriculum in Music/Fine Arts, from the following courses: History of Jazz, History of Opera, History of Music: European, History of Music: American, and Music Programming.

Political Science. This minor provides the student in Communication Studies and Mass Communication, particularly majors in print and broadcast journalism, with a background in politics and government at the national and international levels. Courses pertinent to this minor are Political Thought; Introduction to Political Science; American Government and Politics; International Politics; Civil Rights; Introduction to Communication Politics, and Law; Personality, Power and Politics; Political Analysis; and Seminar in Political Science.

Psychology of Mass Media. This minor provides the student in Mass Communication or Communication Studies with background and insights into the behavioral and social aspects of media. Professional applications of this area will be most useful for students interested in media production, promotion, and analysis. Courses pertinent to this minor are Psychology of Mass Media, Visual Perception, Social Psychology, and Psychology of Children's Television.

Visual Studies and the Arts. This minor provides the student with an analysis of visual statements in the arts, film, photography and other media. A survey course in traditional art history is required to provide a chronological basis. A choice of courses exploring philosophical, thematic, and analytical approaches to meaning broaden the student's awareness and approach to the subject matter. Electives that emphasize specific periods of work and survey a variety of media also give the student an opportunity to analyze visual materials in both a limited and a general context.

The Visual Studies and the Arts minor will consist of 16 credits, in addition to the General Education Requirements in the Arts, from the following courses: History of Art II, Seminar in Art, Modern Art, The Artist and the Making of Meaning, Aesthetics and Art, Myth and Symbol, Drama and the Visual Imagination, History of Photography, Art Since 1945, Dada and Surrealism: Art and Film, and film studies courses in Mass Communication.

Women's Studies. This minor provides the student with an interdisciplinary program focusing on the study of women's experiences in an historical and cultural perspective. The minor is open to both men and women. The program consists of 16 credits, of which AC 303 Women in the American Experience, is required. Three other courses will be elected.

American Culture Courses

AC 201 Introduction to American Culture I 4 credits
An introduction of various interdisciplinary, theoretical, methodological perspectives on American culture such as sociology, anthropology, history, literature, theology, art, material culture, and politics with focus on definition of culture and its changing manifestations from the colonial period to the present. Particular attention will be given to questions of national character and mission and to the analysis of communication forms as transmitters of national myths and values. This course fulfills the General Education History requirement. (Fall Semester)

AC 202 Introduction to American Culture II 4 credits
A chronological survey of American life and culture from first settlements to the present with an emphasis on major themes such as individualism, family, community, nationalism, religion, work, slavery, urbanization, industrialization, intellectual life, and the interplay of these themes with historical events. (Spring Semester)

AC 302 American Humor 4 credits
The study of humor as a reflection of and influence on American customs, values, and social institutions. Works by leading humorists, from Artemus Ward and Dan Rice to Johnny Carson and Woody Allen, will be examined for treatment of social, moral, and political concerns. Readings and class discussions will explore various sources of humor — literature, theatre, film, television, humor columns, comic strips, and cartoons — and will focus on themes and techniques as well as on theories of humor. Particular attention to the development of archetypes and stereotypes, to the humorist's attitude toward such issues as class conflict, politics, technology, family and gender roles, race and ethnicity, and to humor as a device for articulating socially approved and disapproved behavior and belief. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 303 Women and the American Experience 4 credits
An examination of the changing public and private roles of women in American society in historical perspective with focus on the tensions between ideals and reality. The course surveys changing images of women in literature, arts, media, and material culture from the colonial period to the present. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 304 American Popular Arts and Culture 4 credits
A study of the development of popular arts and modes of entertainment in the United States with particular focus on film, stage, radio, music, television, and reading material including mass magazines, comic strips, and the genre of the popular novel. The course will include an investigation of the impact technology had on the popular arts and how the nation adapted to these changes socially, artistically, and culturally in light of the socio-economic conditions. As part of the course selected audio and visual documents will serve to develop an overview of the trends reflecting the nation's popular arts. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 307 The Cultural History of New England 4 credits
A study of those factors which influenced the cultural evolution of New England from colonial days to the 20th century. Changes in taste and artistic expression will be considered against an historic and sociological background, with special reference to architecture, art, furniture, and painting. Opportunities are provided for students to visit museums and neighboring communities for on-site inspection of cultural objects. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 309 Religion in America 4 credits
A study of religion as it has influenced the development of American civilization, and how the American experience has affected religion. Focus will be on historical trends in Puritanism, Transcendentalism, Fundamentalism, Adventist and Revival movements, as well as Catholicism, Judaism, and the rise of a common "American Religion". (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 310 American Places 4 credits
A survey of the historical, built environment and cultural geography of America from the colonial period to the present. Major areas of study include town forms, plantations, farms, the grid, mills and factories, cemeteries, parks, resorts, sacred spaces, canals, railroads, the automobile landscape and other vernacular and designed ordering of space that reflects developments in American cultural and social history. Emphasis will be placed on maps, art, architecture, literature, and technology as documentation of physical changes made upon the land. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 312 The Twenties and the Thirties 4 credits
An interdisciplinary inquiry into American history and culture in the 1920s and 1930s with emphasis on documentary expression, trends in art, urbanization, the social impact of new inventions and forms of communication, and the Depression. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 313 The Fifties and Sixties 4 credits
An interdisciplinary inquiry into American history and culture in the quarter century following World War II with emphasis on political trends, the Cold War, changes in everyday life, various presidential administrations, the Vietnam War, popular culture, and counter-culture. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 314 Selected Topics in Afro-American Culture 4 credits
An in depth, interdisciplinary analysis of selected topics in Afro-American history and culture from the seventeenth century to the present. The class format will be divided into lecture, discussions, and films. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 401 Senior Seminar I 4 credits
Students will select individual research topics or projects through exposure to a commonly defined core of issues in American culture. Emphasis will be placed on the definition of the research thesis or project, research methods, and the preparation and presentation of final materials that evidence academic accomplishment at an advanced level of undergraduate study. Students will also engage in preliminary research activities such as the compilation of bibliographical materials, the identification of appropriate reference sources, and the location of resource information. Prerequisites: Completion of core courses on the 200- and 300-level or permission of the instructor. Open only to majors. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 402 Senior Seminar II 4 credits
Continuation of AC 401. Students will complete a senior thesis or project. Emphasis will be placed on the development of original insights into and/or creative approaches to the interdisciplinary study of American culture. Students will also be required to make a substantive oral presentation on the content of their topic, the research methods employed, and the conclusions they intend to draw upon completion of their assignment. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 403 Field Experience in American Studies 2-4 credits
With approval and supervision of the faculty advisor for the major, a student may arrange for an internship in a cultural or historical institution such as but not limited to the Kennedy Presidential Library, The Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, The Charles River Museum of Industry, the Old South Church. The student will be responsible for maintaining regular contact with the advisor about the progress of the internship, with the fulfillment of all scheduled hours or work, and submitting any required written work. No more than eight credits of internship may be applied towards the degree.

AC 411 Oral History and Performance 4 credits
This course will be team taught in the American Culture Program and the Division of Performing Arts. It will focus on a specific topic determined by the professors. Students use historical materials including oral history as the basis for composing a play or other theatre piece by collaborative effort. (Fall or Spring Semester)

AC 498 Directed Study in American Culture 2-4 credits
With the instructor's approval, students select an area of special interest, prepare a bibliography and program of study, make arrangements for regular meetings with the instructor and adequate submissions of papers or other indications of progress. Prerequisites: Open only to American Culture majors or minors who have completed either AC 201 or AC 202, approval of the advisor, and the Division Chair.

European Studies Courses

ES 201 Introduction to European Studies 4 credits
A comparative study of the cultures of Europe with emphasis on the modern period. Elements covered will include history and politics, language and literature, national and international communications, the fine arts, theatre, and film. Of special significance will be an analysis of those social, economic, and philosophical developments that have contributed to the formation of a European identity. Required for all European Studies majors, but open to other students with consent of the instructor. Prerequisite: HI 102 or equivalent. (Fall Semester)

ES 401 Senior Seminar 4 credits
Students will select research topics or projects during exposure to a commonly defined core of issues in European Studies. Emphasis will be placed on the definition of a research thesis or project, research methods, and the preparation of final materials that evidence academic accomplishment at an advanced level of undergraduate study. Students also will engage in preliminary research activities such as the compilation of bibliographic materials, the identification of appropriate reference sources, and the location of resources. Open only to majors. (Fall or Spring Semester)

ES 402 Senior Thesis/Project 4 credits
Continuation of ES 401. Students will complete a senior thesis or project, with emphasis placed on the development of original insights based upon each student's specialized research on a topic in European Studies. Students also will be required to make a substantial oral presentation on the content of their topic, the research techniques employed, and the conclusions and implications they expect to be able to draw following completion of their assignments.

ES 498 Directed Study in European Studies 2-4 credits
Individual projects planned in collaboration with the instructor to meet students' specific interests within European Studies. Prerequisites: Permission of instructor and Division Chair.

Fine Arts Courses

FA 101 Introduction to Visual Arts 4 credits
This course is an approach to the visual language of communication shared in common among all of the visual arts. The course emphasizes visual analysis, understanding of materials, the history of style and techniques, and the functions and meanings of art in its varied manifestations. Slide lectures, museum visits, readings, discussions, papers, and critiques constitute a basis upon which to develop further studies in the visual arts. This course fulfills the General Education Arts requirement.

FA 201 History of Art I: Ancient and Medieval 4 credits
A survey of the major art forms from pre-history through the Ancient Near East, Egypt, the Aegean, Greek, Etruscan, Roman, Early Christian, Byzantine, and Early Medieval periods. Lectures and museum visits. This course fulfills the General Education Arts requirement. (Fall Semester)

FA 202 History of Art II: Renaissance and Baroque 4 credits
A survey of the major art forms from late Medieval Europe through the Italian Renaissance, Northern Renaissance, Baroque and Rococo of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, England and America in the eighteenth century, and the movements leading to the mid-nineteenth century development of Realism. Lectures and museum visits. This course fulfills the General Education Arts requirement. (Spring Semester)

FA 203 History of Art III: Modern 4 credits
A history of Modern Art beginning with French Realism of the 1860s, proceeding through Impressionism and Post-Impressionism of the following three decades, and culminating in the dramatic polarities of Expressionism and Cubism in the first two decades of the twentieth century. The course concludes with a study of the Bauhaus and its influence throughout the arts as practiced in Continental Europe and subsequently in the United States. Lectures include examples from painting, sculpture, prints, and architecture. Trips to museums and cultural institutions in Boston are included. This course fulfills the General Education Arts requirement. (Fall Semester)

FA 204 History of Art IV: Post World War II 4 credits
A survey of American post-war art beginning with abstract expressionism and pop art of the sixties, followed by mammonism, primary structures, conceptual art, environmental art, and recent trends in mixed-media/performance art. The course includes slide lectures, field trips to Boston galleries and museums, projects, papers, and critiques. This course fulfills the General Education Arts requirement. (Spring Semester)

FA 210 Oriental Art 4 credits
From an introduction to the arts produced in the Indus valley, Bronze–Age China, and prehistoric Japan, this course will survey the major works of architecture, painting, sculpture and ceramics that were inspired by the spread of religion from India to China, Japan and Southeast Asia. Of particular interest will be a study of the arts, both religious and secular, which reflect the unique culture of each area and which have over time served to influence the development of Western art forms. This course fulfills the General Education Arts and Non–Western requirement. (Fall or Spring Semester)

FA 211 Afro-American Art 4 credits
A survey of the work of Black artists from the mid-nineteenth century to the present with special emphasis on their contribution to the painting and graphic art of the United States. The course includes lectures, demonstrations, and field trips.

FA 215 Introduction to Design 4 credits
Basic design theory. Students will be guided in developing a sense of visual discrimination and originality through an increased understanding of design principles. Topics will include visual perception, symbolism, abstraction, composition, color, and contrasts. Assigned projects and readings.

FA 216 Graphic Design 4 credits
Design for print media. Students will develop an understanding of the relation between the constraints of the medium and the resulting design product. The course will cover the history of graphic design and design principles such as color, composition, typography and the interrelationship of word and image.

Students will become familiar with the tools and materials of design, and will be exposed to the technology of print production. Design projects will be assigned.

FA 217 Drawing Techniques 4 credits
A studio course with emphasis on form. A variety of techniques and tools are used to explore the problems of pictorial space. Students provide the proper materials and equipment. (Fall or Spring Semester)

FA 219 Painting 4 credits
An introduction to the fundamentals of painting. Working in acrylics, students will paint still life and landscapes as they study color, light composition, and painting techniques. Experimental approaches will be stressed, and students will be encouraged to develop their own style. Beginners and students with some experience are welcome.

FA 221 Photography I 4 credits
An introduction to photography. Emphasis is on darkroom procedures, from developing film to printing. The student must have the use of a camera with adjustable speed and aperture.

FA 222 Photography II 4 credits
Continuation of FA 221. Problems assigned involve greater attention to concept at all levels of execution. Introduction to variable development and advanced techniques. The student must have access to a camera with adjustable speed and aperture. Prerequisite: FA 221 or equivalent.

FA 231 The Artist and the Making of Meaning 4 credits

Mass Communication

Professors Gordon, Chair, Hilliard, Kittross, Lyons, Paraschos, and Quenzel; Associate Professors Cooper, Della-Giustina, Fry, Levin, and Picard; Assistant Professors Andrade-Watkins, Berger, Cronin, Hoyt, O'Neill, Oppenheim, Outwin, Selig, and Shattuc; Visiting Assistant Professor Chatterjee.

Recognizing that print and telecommunications media are powerful forces for affecting the minds and emotions of humankind, the Division of Mass Communication acknowledges its responsibility to educate informed and ethical leaders, to develop creative and aesthetically disciplined practitioners, and to encourage learning based on all areas of thought and concern for society.

The program, as a major curricular component within the interdisciplinary communication education provided by Emerson College, stresses the importance of broad-based learning and emphasizes that any field of knowledge may utilize the tools of telecommunications for the greater good of civilization.

While learning how to present ideas using the media either creatively through writing and planning, or organizationally through management, production or technical activities, students are exposed to a balance of theory and practice. Students should first understand the implications of the mass media of communication, so that in working with them they have already an understanding of those principles that lead to reasoned and humanistic results. The traditional tools of academic preparation, such as research and analysis, are integral to the Mass Communication program. The development of professional career paths with multiple options is of equal importance. Finally, the basic fields of mass communication — audio (with particular emphasis on radio), television, film, and journalism — are taught with the recognition that new technologies are emerging now and more will emerge in the twenty-first century as today's students become tomorrow's leaders in mass communication.

The faculty of the Division of Mass Communication is committed to the following goals:

- To provide a central curriculum that exposes all students majoring in the Division to an overall view of the theories and applications of mass media and emerging technologies.
- To relate students' media concentrations to all fields of knowledge, thus enabling them to understand the impact of mass media on society and thereby to apply their professional competencies with humanistic understanding and concern.
- To provide students the opportunity to develop hands-on production skills in media and to achieve aesthetic and technical proficiency as producers, directors, writers, performers, reporters and editors/news directors.
- To develop students' understanding and perception of how the theories and applications of mass communication may apply to related careers in business and the professions, both public and private.
- To encourage students to view mass communication as an interdisciplinary field of study by advising them to take courses in the humanities, social sciences, theatre, communication studies, business, creative writing, communication disorders, and the sciences.

Programs

The Division of Mass Communication offers a curriculum designed to prepare students for the goals described above and to focus upon careers in mass media. Graduates of the programs are employed in a variety of positions in television, radio, journalism, and film. Many graduates also are found in business and in public organizations where the uses of writing for a mass audience, knowledge of media, and new information technologies are increasingly important.

The Division offers concentrations in the areas of electronic media, journalism, and film. Students may further concentrate on either television or audio under "electronic media," or broadcast or print under "journalism." Students also are encouraged to combine elements of study from several of these areas in order to broaden their knowledge and adaptability for future professional work. Students should keep in contact with the Division for information pertaining to its requirements.

The following degree requirements pertain to Bachelor of Arts (BA) and Bachelor of Science (BS) majors in Mass Communication. (Candidates for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree should see the description of BFA requirements under the "Film Concentration" heading on page 130, and should consult with their advisors regarding the specialized requirements for this program.)

1. Forty credits in Mass Communication are required, at least half of them in courses taken at Emerson College.
2. The following core courses are required of all students:
   - MC 101 Introduction to Mass Communication.
   - Four credits in criticism to be fulfilled by taking either MC 330 Aesthetics and Media Criticism or one of the following (choice to be determined by the student's concentration): MC 312 Film Theory and Criticism; MC 342 Journalism: International Role; MC 343 Journalism: National Role.

• Four credits in history to be fulfilled by taking one of the following (choice to be determined by the student's concentration): MC 203 News: History, Analysis, and Research; MC 251 History of Broadcasting; MC 262 or 263 Film History and Analysis I or II.

• Four credits in media writing, to be fulfilled by taking MC 261 Writing for the Media or by one of the following (choice to be determined by the student's concentration): MC 220 Film Composition; MC 253 Broadcast Journalism I; or MC 254 Print Journalism I.

• MC 421 Seminar in Mass Communication (MC 421 not required of BFA candidates). This course must be taken at Emerson College; credit for it may not be transferred.

3. Freshmen are limited to one Mass Communication course per term. Sophomores also are limited to one Mass Communication course per term except that sophomores may petition through the appropriate area head to take a maximum of 12 credit hours during their sophomore year. BFA candidates and declared broadcast journalism students should consult their Divisional advisors or the appropriate area head.
4. Courses from other Mass Communication areas may be applied toward a concentration in Mass Communication with written permission of the student's advisor.
5. While many Mass Communication majors select a concentration, and fulfill the requirements of that concentration as listed below, many others opt for a more general individualized degree program, prepared in consultation with their advisors. The generalist is required to select courses from more than one concentration.
6. Transfer course equivalents to prerequisites are determined by the appropriate area head.
7. At least 20 credits of all Mass Communication credits counted toward a student's major must be taken at the 300–level or the 400–level, and at least eight of these credits must be in 400–level courses. Internships and non–tuition credits do not count toward fulfilling this requirement.

In each concentration a wide spectrum of subjects is taught, including production, writing, theory, research, management and policy. All qualified students may participate in the College's Internship Program which makes use of professional organizations in all media fields in Boston and beyond. Students should select their concentration, and notify the Registrar of their selection early enough to permit taking the appropriate courses in the proper sequence. Any petition for waiver of catalogue specifications must be directed to the Division Chair, in writing.

Opportunities exist to take Mass Communication courses at both the European Center and in the College's Los Angeles program. Further information on the offerings in any specific semester is available from the Division of Continuing Education. Note, however, that Mass Communication students may receive no more than 16 Mass Communication credits in either of these programs, and credits must be for courses taken in a single semester in that program. In addition, Mass Communication internships in either program shall be for no more than four credits.

Note the policy of the Division of Mass Communication, regarding class attendance in the first five days of the semester, listed in full on page 62.

GENERALIST PROGRAM

The Mass Communication Generalist Program is designed to provide students with both breadth and depth, permitting the student to explore a variety of mass media. In addition to courses fulfilling the Mass Communication core requirements, students in the Generalist Program must take at least two of the following introductory courses: MC 201, 250, 252 and either 253 or 254; at least one second level Mass Communication production course; and at least two non-production Mass Communication courses in such areas as theory, business, law or effects. Such courses currently include:

MC 312	Film Theory and Criticism (if not used to satisfy the Division's criticism requirement)
MC 373	Media Sales
MC 422	Communication Law and National Policy
MC 423	Control and Regulation of Broadcasting
MC 424	Introduction to Media Management
MC 426	The Business of Independent Production
MC 427	Radio as a Business
MC 428	Radio Programming and Marketing
MC 440	Cable TV and New Technologies
MC 441	International Communication
MC 443	Corporate Media
MC 460	Children's Television
MC 469	Political Analysis
MC 471	American Film Genres
MC 491	WECB/WERS Management

With advance approval, certain "Topics" courses (MC 403-406) may also satisfy this requirement.

TELEVISION CONCENTRATION

The Television Concentration is designed to provide students with comprehensive theory and hands-on experience in television. In preparation for television station, network, and media-related careers, students proceed through a sequence of four courses: MC 250 Television I, MC 261 Writing for the Media, MC 300 Television II, and MC 350 Television III . A capstone production course, MC 481 Television Practicum, is available to selected seniors whose proposals for a major project are approved by the faculty.

Each course in the sequence advances the student's expertise in the techniques of television production and encourages creative expression, critical thinking and analysis. Students are encouraged to take related courses in audio, print or broadcast journalism, sales, film, and business communication. Students gain practical experience by working in EIV, the student-oriented television operation, and by working with professionals in the field during internships.

AUDIO CONCENTRATION

The aim of the Audio Concentration is to introduce students to the audio and radio industries, using a combination of practical and theoretical approaches. Students will learn audio production and the many imaginative and practical possibilities of sound. Through such courses as MC 428 Radio Programming and Marketing, MC 427 Radio as a Business, and MC 373 Media Sales students will learn all aspects of the radio industry. Other courses valuable to those students selecting an audio concentration are offerings in advertising, public relations, writing, and journalism. Students are encouraged to become involved in all aspects of the College's two radio stations, WERS and WECB.

JOURNALISM CONCENTRATION

The Journalism Concentration is designed to provide students with a comprehensive education based on a theoretical and practical foundation in the areas of writing, reporting, and research as related to the field of journalism. It is possible to specialize further in either print or broadcast journalism.

Students educated in journalism have found fruitful careers in television and radio news, newspapers, magazines, and working in corporate business communication.

Courses required for this concentration include MC 203 News: History, Analysis and Research; MC 344 Ethics of Reporting; and SO 225 American Government and Politics. Students must take either MC 251 and 304 Print Journalism I and II and MC 451 Senior Print Journalism Lab, or MC 253 and 303 Broadcast Journalism I and II.

FILM CONCENTRATION

Candidates for the BS, BA or BFA degrees in Mass Communication may concentrate in Film. With a commitment to a balance between theory and application, the Film curriculum offers coursework in film studies, screenwriting and film production. The BFA degree is a more intensive course of study than the BS or BA, and culminates in a major film production project. Admission to the BFA degree program is selective. (Note: No film major may receive Divisional and concentration credit for both MC 220 Film Composition (required) and MC 261 Writing for Media.)

BS/BA

In addition to the Division's BS/BA degree requirements of MC 101 Introduction to Mass Communication, MC 330 Aesthetics and Media Criticism or MC 312 Film Theory and Criticism, and MC 421 Seminar in Mass Communication, students selecting the BS or BA film concentration must take:

MC 201 Film I;
MC 220 Film Composition, which satisfies the Division's media writing requirement;
MC 262 Film History and Analysis I, which satisfies the Division's history requirement;
MC 263 Film History and Analysis II
and three additional 4 credit courses in film.

The BS/BA programs require 40 credits in film and Divisional course work.

BFA

In addition to the Divisional BFA degree requirements of MC 101 Introduction to Mass Communication and MC 330 Aesthetics and Media Criticism or MC 312 Film Theory and Criticism, students selecting the BFA film concentration must take these additional film courses:

MC 201 Film I;
MC 220 Film Composition, which satisfies the Division's media writing requirement;
MC 262 Film History and Analysis I, which satisfies the Division's history requirement;
MC 263 Film History and Analysis II;
MC 305 Film II; and
MC 351 Film III.

The BFA candidate must also complete eight credits of film and allied arts studies chosen from:

MC 406 Topics in Film Studies;
MC 471 American Film Genres;
MC 473 Third World Cinema;
MC 475 Cinematic Image and Painting; and LI 313 Novel into Film.

SC 231 Physics for the Media (if not taken for General Education credit);
MC 300 Television II;
MC 320 Dramatic Screen Writing;
MC 321 Animation I;
MC 412 Animation II;

MC 425 Documentation Pre-Production;
MC 426 The Business of Independent Production;
FA 222 Photography II;
PA 242 Fundamentals of Stage Lighting;
PA 245 Scene Design I;
PA 247 Lighting Design I;
PA 349 Make-Up II: Film and Television:
WP 305 Advanced Creative Writing I:
WP 305 Advanced Creative Writing II: and WP 439 Seminar Workshop in Script Writing I.

Finally, the BFA candidate must complete either MC 320 Dramatic Screenwriting, MC 425 Documentary Pre–Production, or MC 412 Animation II before taking eight credits of MC 482 Film Practicum. Note that this BFA program requires 60 credits, leaving limited opportunity for electives in other areas unless careful planning is done.

It is strongly advised that students consult with the faculty for detailed information on course sequences, since not all courses are offered each term. Students should expect to incur additional costs in fulfilling production course requirements.

Mass Communication Courses

MC 101 Introduction to Mass Communication 4 credits

A survey of the theories, history, economics, content, audience, and regulations of the major forms of mass media, including newspapers, magazines, radio, television, new electronic telecommunications, and motion pictures. Students develop a basic understanding of the roles and effects of mass communication on society and the individual.

Basic financial strategies will be studied, particularly as they interact with legal, public, and political policies and considerations. (Spring Semester)

MC 425 Documentary of Pre-Production 4 credits
Analysis and planning of practical and creative elements necessary for the design of documentaries for film or television, with particular emphasis on documentary research methods, proposal writing, and production planning. Utilizing appropriate film and video examples, the historical and theoretical development of the form will be examined. Prerequisites: MC 300 or MC 305 or equivalent. (Fall Semester)

MC 426 The Business of Independent Production 4 credits
Business, legal, and financial aspects of independent film and video production, including contracts, copyright, taxes, budgeting, distribution, and exhibition. The course investigates pre-production, production, and post-production business issues faced by the independent producer. (Spring Semester)

MC 427 Radio as a Business 4 credits
A non-production course dealing with all aspects of the radio business including ownership, engineering, programming, accounting, promotion, personnel issues, and the role of the advertiser. Includes field trips. Prerequisite: MC 203 or MC 251.

MC 428 Radio Programming and Marketing 4 credits
An introduction with an historical perspective to contemporary programming, marketing, and promotion techniques in commercial radio, with a focus on management and decision-making, not operations and production. Prerequisite: MC 203 or MC 251.

MC 429 TV Newsroom Management 4 credits
Students will learn how a news director analyzes the competition and develops a winning plan of action which includes a variety of the most advanced organizational and administrative systems, methods, and techniques in every area of newsroom activity. Includes operations; personnel recruiting, training and evaluation; development of basic newsroom skills; budget control; planning, implementation and control; and the use of new technologies. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (Spring Semester)

MC 440 Cable TV and New Technologies 4 credits
A survey of the technical developments and political, economic, and social implications of the applications of such technologies as cable television, telecommunications, telematics, space satellite communications (including DBS), fibre optics and the like.

MC 441 International Communication 4 credits
A comprehensive analysis of media in other countries is provided. Includes studies of international organizations and trans-border information flow and communication. (Spring Semester)

MC 442 Public Affairs Broadcasting 4 credits
The student examines public affairs broadcasting from the level of the national network to the level of community access cable. The interrelations between public affairs programming content, the needs of society, and financial, legal, and political considerations will be explored. (As Needed)

MC 443 Corporate Media 4 credits
Introduction to the private and corporate media, including services provided by media departments in businesses, educational institutions, libraries, medical facilities, museums, and government departments. The course covers how to establish a corporate media department and prepare audio-visual or print media materials.

MC 450 The Magazine 4 credits
A critical examination of the magazine as a journalistic form, including analysis of editorial decisions, layout, published stories, and circulation. Prerequisite: MC 254 or equivalent.

MC 451 Senior Print Journalism Laboratory 4 credits
This course is the capstone experience for print journalism majors. It offers intensive writing, copy editing, and layout production work. Prerequisite: MC 304. (Spring Semester)

MC 452 Review and Editorial Writing 4 credits
An intensive writing course that includes a critical study of the content and style of expository writing and the writing of editorials, reviews and criticism. Prerequisite: MC 254 or equivalent. (As Needed)

MC 460 Children's Television 4 credits
The content and production approaches of major children's programming are discussed in the context of child development theories. Review of theory and research on television's impact on children's behavior. Prerequisite: MC 312 or MC 330 or MC 342 or MC 343.

MC 469 Political Analysis 4 credits
The study of principles and techniques of political analysis as a function of the journalist, emphasizing media coverage of issues of political significance. (As Needed)

MC 471 American Film Genres 4 credits
An historical approach to an investigation of the ideological and aesthetic issues involved in the study of American genre films. Prerequisite: MC 262 or equivalent. (Spring Semester)

CS 471A Seminar in Human Communication: Docudrama 4 credits
Special topics in the areas of communication theory, rhetoric, and public address are studied. CS 471A The Docudrama is the only CS 471 section approved by the Mass Communication faculty for credit toward the Mass Communication major.

MC 473 Third World Cinema 4 credits
This course provides a broad frame of reference for the development of cinema in the Third World. It traces the historical and socio-political evolution of that process through a case study of cinema in sub-Saharan Africa from the colonial era to the present. Prerequisite: Mass Communication history and writing requirements. (Fall Semester)

MC 475 Cinematic Image and Painting 4 credits
The relation between painting and film is investigated. The extent to which principles and traditions of painting have formed some of the elements of the language of film, and the extent to which film has influenced modern art are discussed. Prerequisites: Background courses in film and a survey of painting required. Also, Mass Communication history and writing requirements. (As Needed)

MC 481 Television Practicum 4 credits
A special intensive course in television production in which a student carries through a major television project from planning and writing to production, post-production, and evaluation. Project ideas must be submitted prior to admittance to the course, and proposals will be considered in terms of creativity, practicality, and the demonstrated competence of the student. Students work directly with a given faculty member on this capstone of the television concentration. Prerequisite: MC 350 and permission of the television faculty. (Spring Semester)

MC 482 Film Practicum 8 credits BFA (2 or 4 credits non-BFA)
This is the capstone activity for BFA candidates in film. The student will take a major film project from pre-production to completion. This course usually requires two consecutive semesters of work, four credits per semester. BFA candidates must submit portfolios, transcripts, and practicum proposals prior to registration; admission is selective. Non-BFA students may apply for entrance into this course either to produce a mini-practicum film project or to serve as a crew member or staff on a practicum film. Non-BFA students may not enroll for more than four credits. Prerequisite: MC 351 and permission of the film faculty after review.

MC 483 Journalism Practicum 4 credits
An opportunity at an advanced level for journalism students to do independent work on special projects of publishable or broadcast quality. Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor. (Spring Semester)

MC 484 Radio Practicum 4 credits
An advanced course in which qualified students will take a project through concept, script, production, and post-production. Prerequisites: MC 302, permission of instructor, and demonstration tape. (Spring Semester)

MC 491 WECB/WERS Management 4 credits
This course is available only to students appointed to manage either WECB-(AM) or WERS-(FM). Includes critiques and discussions of, and practical solutions to, problems in management. Student station managers must take this course each semester they are in a management position. Prerequisite: Nomination to the position of student station manager.

MC 498 Directed Study 2 to 6 credits
Special learning opportunities designed to allow a student to work closely with a faculty member on a scholarly project. A total of six hours may be earned in directed studies, and no more than 12 credits of any combination of directed study and internship that may be counted toward graduation. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor and Division Chair.

MC 499 Internship 4 credits

Students work in organizations such as a broadcast station, advertising agency, film production company, video production company, sound laboratory, or instruction media center under the direct supervision of an approved, full-time employee, and an assigned faculty member. No more than 12 credits from any combination of internship and directed study may be counted toward graduation. Although internships are normally for four credits, students may petition to take MC 490 for less than four credits, but will be expected to work 15 hours per week throughout the entire term, regardless of the number of credits taken. Prerequisites: Junior standing, a grade point average of 2.7 or above, and permission of the instructor. The various sections of MC 490 have specific prerequisites, and the student should obtain details from the Division office. Course is offered Pass/Fail.

Performing Arts

Professors Conner, Chair, Nickole, and Sharp; Associate Professors Coiner, Colby, Korty, Jenkins, and Shea; Assistant Professors Adams, Craft, Jozwick, Patrick, Swift, and Wheeler.

The art of theatre is one of collaboration. The root of this collaboration is the written word of dramatists. Individual artists, artisans, and craftsmen strive to give form to the written word in order to reach the ultimate collaboration between the audience and the players. Dramatic theatre grows from a body of dramatic literature that is intended to be communicated verbally to an audience in the form of an action. It shares the dynamic qualities of music and dance, but fills a space as does kinetic sculpture and conveys a sense of time as does the art of the narrative storyteller. From the dramatic point of view, music, dance, and design are traditional, contributing qualities to the action of the play, and must be an intrinsic part of a performing arts program.

Training in the arts and skills of theatre requires not only intensive studio/laboratory experiences and practical application through performance, but also classroom instruction and theory. All three phases of training — classroom, studio, and production — involve the interaction of students with faculty and professional staff.

The faculty of the Division of Performing Arts is committed to the following goals:

- To provide a curriculum that emphasizes how culture affects the creative process and how, in turn, the creative process contributes to the evolution of culture.
- To provide a theoretical and historical understanding of the theatre and the conventional standards by which it is judged through scripts, knowledge of the physical theatre and production techniques, and the philosophies of the major historical periods of drama.

- To provide an applied and experimental understanding of theatre and to develop basic skills in the performance, design, technical, and production aspects of the art.
- To allow students to recognize their own potential and to develop their own interests through a balanced curriculum and a variety of opportunities which can translate into many careers, as well as to prepare students to enter the traditional fields of performance and production of both the professional and the educational theatre.

Production Opportunities

The Division's major performance space is the newly-renovated Emerson Majestic Theatre. Located in the heart of Boston's theatre district, the Majestic is an almost century old, 850 seat proscineum house. Emerson Stage, the Division's production program, presents many events annually from every major theatrical genre. Students are exposed to an almost unlimited range of performance and production opportunities.

During the academic year, several major productions are fully mounted, and new works by professional playwrights as staged readings. Many other student-produced plays are presented to and for a variety of audiences. The Loft Season utilizes the skills of advanced student directors and designers. Actor-training projects focus on the artistic relationship between faculty directors and student actors. The Mini-Musicals feature the work of musical theatre students as directors and performers. Dance concerts offer innovative work by faculty and student choreographers. The Circle Studio series, coordinated by undergraduate students, provides ample opportunity to work experimentally in drama and dance.

Programs

The Bachelor of Arts (BA) and the Bachelor of Science (BS) degree programs offer students the flexibility to build a solid foundation in the many areas of theatre, such as design, directing and performance. A secondary teaching certification program in theatre and a children's theatre concentration also are offered through these degree options.

The Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) degree program is for specialized students who have already identified a particular talent and career plan. The BFA offers more concentrated studies in acting, dance, musical theatre, or design/technology. Eligibility for the BFA degree is determined by audition or portfolio review and evidence of commitment and academic discipline by the end of the sophomore year. Of the total credits needed for graduation, one-half must be taken in the Division of Performing Arts.

Detailed course requirements for these degree programs should be obtained through the administrative office of the Division of Performing Arts. For freshmen who are entering with firm professional performance or design/technical goals, it is strongly recommended they prepare an audition or portfolio for evaluation prior to registration; however, this is not mandatory. During the course of the first two years of study, further intensive auditions and/or reviews will occur and, with the assistance of a faculty advisor, the student will be guided into the appropriate degree program.

In addition to the course requirements, all students, regardless of degree program or area of specialization, will be required to participate in technical production work. The intention is to provide all students with a broad-based theatre education and to this end special assignments will be made with the assistance of the faculty advisor. All students majoring in the Division of Performing Arts must take two 2-credit Production Projects to fulfill their technical theatre requirement. Students who need to complete this requirement for education certification should check with the certification supervisor to make arrangements.

PERFORMING ARTS CORE

Beginning with the Class of 1993, all degree candidates in Performing Arts must take the following core curriculum. To this core students then add those particular courses required by their degree program or concentration/major.

TEACHER EDUCATION/CERTIFICATION PROGRAMS

For detailed information about the regulations of the State Bureau of Certification, students should see the Teacher Education/Certification section of this catalogue and consult with the Program Director of Teacher Education before the end of their sophomore year. All students must fulfill the student teaching practicum at Emerson.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR LEVEL ACTING PROGRAM

The last two years of the acting program are designed to be both flexible and challenging. Acting students are auditioned at the end of their sophomore year, and a program of study is developed from the curriculum to meet their specific needs. Studio courses and Production Projects are offered each semester.

The intention is to direct students to those studios that will best suit their individual needs with respect to the development of their craft. In addition to the studios, Production Projects will be selected to develop the skills of the students involved. These are auditioned, rehearsed, and performed for an audience.

Performing Arts Courses

PA 100 Appreciation of Theatre Arts 4 credits

This course introduces students to a wide range of theatrical performances, including drama, musical theatre, opera, dance, and avant-garde performance. Students will see theatrical performances both on and off the Emerson campus and will be exposed to a wide range of performance styles. Lectures and demonstrations will take students "behind the scenes" revealing how performances are mounted. Guest lecturers will include performers, directors, choreographers, designers, composers, and critics. Readings will include play and some historical material as well as readings in performance theory and critical analysis. Special attention will be given to students written response to theatrical art. This course fulfills the General Education Arts requirement.

PA 101 Orientation to the Performing Arts 4 credits

This introductory course offers students a perspective on the various aspects of the performing arts. The aim of the course is to provide an understanding of the basic concepts of performance and production whether the form is spoken, sung, danced, or crafted. Throughout the course, the emphasis is on the interaction of the collaborative artists as they create a total theatre experience. The class meets three times per week with each session devoted to one of the three aspects of performing arts: the nature of the art, the structure of the script, and the production of the script. As part of the course, students are required to read selected plays for analysis, attend recommended theatre performances, as well as participate in a hands-on production experience by completing a series of crew hours on Divisional productions. Required of all Performing Arts majors.

PA 121 Movement/Acting I 4 credits

This introductory course explores the actor's instrument, function, and responsibilities. The student learns to work from a point of concentration, to develop relaxation, and to pursue an objective through physical and psychological actions. There is an emphasis on receiving and sending an intention clearly and spontaneously. Improvisational and scripted material is used. The course also focuses on body strengthening and limbering for alignment correction and for energy and breath centering. It introduces students to the principles of warming up, image work, the exploration of space, time and force, and elementary falls and rolls.

PA 122 Movement/Acting II 4 credits

In this laboratory course student actors seek to control tensions and awaken the five senses. Students learn to interact with the environment and create an atmosphere. Beginning skills define and solve acting problems and develop the actor's imagination. Detailed movement studies are made and basic stage combat and mime are taught. The course continues work on the voice and body, culminating in projects combining speech with vigorous movement. Prerequisite: Audition or PA 121. (Spring Semester)

PA 140 Stagecraft 4 credits
This course offers experience in standard technical practice for the theatre. Students will have the opportunity to study the fundamental techniques in a variety of areas including, but not limited to, scenery construction and handling; rigging; scenery painting; sculpture for the stage; costume construction; special materials fabrication; electricity and lighting; sound recording, editing and reinforcement. In addition to classwork, this course also have a laboratory requirement in which the student will concentrate on production related projects.

PA 151 Chorus 1 non-tuition credit
The Emerson All-College Chorus performs concerts and participates annually in various college functions. A wide range of choral literature is covered including classical works, show music, folk music, and many first performances of new music. Credits without tuition charge are awarded upon the director's recommendation. Course may be repeated. Prerequisite: Audition.

PA 152 Musicianship I 2 credits
This course provides an introduction to music notation as it relates to performance and requires no previous music background. Rhythm, melody, and harmony are studied through class work and written assignments. The course is recommended for musical theatre and dance majors.

PA 201 World Drama in Its Context I 4 credits
A survey of theatre and drama from the Greeks through the Renaissance, with a focus on the major periods of Western theatre and dramatic literature: the Greeks, Roman theatre and drama, Medieval theatre, the Elizabethan English, and Italian, French, and English neo-classicism. In addition, a survey of Eastern classical theatre and drama with a particular emphasis on the Sanskrit theatre, the Chinese drama and the Peking Opera, and the classical theatre of Japan, including Kubuki, No, and the puppet theatre. Selected readings of plays in their historical context with particular attention paid to theatrical styles of plays and production. (Fall Semester)

PA 202 World Drama in Its Context II 4 credits
A survey of theatre and drama from the late seventeenth century to the present, with a focus on the major periods of Western theatre and dramatic literature: the English Restoration, European Romanticism, nineteenth-century melodrama, and the modern movement in Europe and America. In addition, an exploration of Non-Western dramatic styles and techniques as they are used in the modern theatre and drama of both the East and West, with an emphasis on the drama and theatre of Africa, the Far East, the Caribbean, and Latin America. Non-Western styles and techniques used in the modern European and American theatres will also be explored with particular emphasis on Brecht, Artaud, and the Avant-Garde movements. Selected readings of plays in their historical context, with particular attention paid to theatrical styles of plays and production. (Spring Semester)

PA 221 Acting III 4 credits

Actors learn to channel the strong physical and emotional freedom and energy developed in Movement/Acting I and II into work with textual material. This course will examine and strengthen the vital connection between body/voice and the text as it introduces various approaches to the rigors and demands of scripted material. Prerequisite: Audition or PA 122. (Fall Semester)

PA 222 Acting IV 4 credits

Utilizing the skill acquired in Acting III, actors explore more complex texts, rehearsing and presenting material ranging from monologues to one-act plays. Prerequisite: Audition or PA 221. (Spring Semester)

PA 240 Graphics I: Drafting 4 credits

Through weekly projects, students learn graphic techniques in drafting for theatrical production. Focus is on conventional symbolization, development of ground plans, sections, elevations, orthographics, isometrics, and perspective drawings. Stage lighting graphics will also be presented. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. (Fall Semester)

PA 242 Fundamentals of Stage Lighting 4 credits
Basic principles of stage lighting are introduced, including the mechanics and optics of lighting instruments, electrical theory and practices, control systems, and color theory. Controllable qualities of light are investigated and demonstrated through the student's participation on a lighting crew for a Divisional production. Beginning design techniques are presented. (Spring Semester)

PA 245 Scene Design I 4 credits
The course covers script analysis, design metaphors, ground plans and terminology. It also explores the director-designer relationship and the elements of design as they relate to theatrical space. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. (Fall Semester)

PA 247 Lighting Design I 4 credits
This course presents approaches to lighting design and poses specific design problems for the student to solve. Projects include development of complete lighting designs from concept through final presentation of the design package. Attention is also given to the practical aspects of taking the lighting design from the shop and into the theatre. Students will produce several paper projects and may produce a fully-mounted design with the permission of the instructor. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. Prerequisites: PA 240 and PA 242 or permission of instructor. (Fall Semester)

PA 248 Costume Design I 4 credits
Students develop an understanding of the basic principles of costume design used to create accurate statements about a play and its characters. Lectures and class discussions prepare students to confront specific problems in design projects. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. (Fall Semester)

PA 252 Musicianship II 2 credits
As a continuation of PA 152, this course explores rhythm, phrasing, and harmony in a variety of musical contexts. Prerequisite: PA 152 or permission of instructor.

PA 313 Black Drama 4 credits
Black drama and theatre in Africa and America are studied from their origins in African ritual and in early nineteenth century America to the present. Lectures and discussions focus on traditional and modern drama and theatre, as well as significant periods of dramatic activity such as the Harlem Renaissance, the Federal Theatre Project, and the Black Arts Movement, and on representative works by major contemporary African and Afro-American dramatists.

PA 320 Acting for the Musical Theatre 4 credits
This laboratory course is designed for the performer who wants to work in musical theatre. Included are scenes which start with dialogue and culminate in a song. The student deals with acting and singing problems with some attention given to movement with music. Prerequisite: PA 121. (Spring Semester)

PA 331 Dance Composition I: Improvisation 4 credits
This course guides students in the discovery, development, and exploration of their own movement and imagery. The stimuli for dances include personal experiences, abstract ideas, relationships, emotions, and a variety of real or imagined materials. (As Needed)

PA 332 Movement Specialties 2 or 4 credits
Focusing on such specialized areas of stage movement as fencing, mime, stage combat, clowning/circus techniques, and character movement, the sections of this course are designed to further develop the actors' skills, agility, poise and strength to meet the demands of performance. Different subject areas are offered each semester. Course number may be repeated up to six credits. Prerequisite: PA 121 and PA 122. (As Needed)

PA 333 Ballet 2 credits
Training in the classical dance form as derived from the Russian and Italian schools follows the traditional structure, including exercises for barre, center, adagio and allegro. Beginners concentrate on body placement, working alignment and the development of strength, agility and a sense of classical line. The advanced students concentrate on the development of speed, control, movement quality, dance phrasing, pirouette, and the classical line. This course number may be repeated. Prerequisite: Students are placed in the appropriate section through audition by the dance faculty.

PA 334 Modern Dance 2 credits
Training in the concert form exemplified in the styles of Graham, Limon, and Cunningham focuses on the development of technique, including floor work, center and traveling components, with emphasis on developing a strong center and a wide range of axial and spacial movement. Beginners concentrate on placement, flexibility, control, and developing a concept of dance as a performing art. Advanced students concentrate on movement quality, dance phrasing, and a strong and focused dance style. This course number may be repeated. Prerequisite: Students are placed in the appropriate section through audition by the dance faculty. (Only PA 334 ABC may substitute for the Movement portion of PA 121.)

PA 335 Tap 2 credits
This studio course provides training in basic tap technique. Students will begin with a basic warm up, move to a tap barre, and then work across the floor. The latter part of the class concentrates on center floor combinations. The emphasis of this course will be on body placement and clarity. Each student will be required to present a research presentation on a related topic. (As Needed)

PA 337 Jazz Dance 2 credits
Training in American Jazz Dance integrates a number of jazz styles, including

Luigi, Fosse and Afro-Cuban, which are performed today in the musical theatre and in concert. Students work to develop control, strength and speed, with an emphasis on movement isolation and a clear jazz style. This course may fulfill the Musical Theatre Dance requirement. This course number may be repeated. Prerequisite: Students are placed in the appropriate section through audition by the dance faculty.

PA 339 The History of Theatrical Dance 4 credits
This course offers students an historical and philosophical study of the history of theatrical dance. Areas of study include: the history of ballet, and theatrical dance of the 20th century. Major emphasis is on the history of African dance and its influence on American modern dance, jazz dance and other theatrical dance forms. (As Needed)

PA 340 Graphic II: Rendering 4 credits
More advanced techniques in perspective drawing and drafting are acquired, including color and texture in a variety of media and the representation of objects in stage space. Students provide appropriate materials. Prerequisite: PA 240. (As Needed)

PA 348 Make-Up: Theatre 2 credits
This course presents a comprehensive study of the art of traditional make-up for the stage. Through the use of cosmetics and prosthetics, students learn to execute corrective, character and age make-up. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed.

PA 349 Make-Up II: Film and Television 2 credits
A foundation study in the art of film and television make-up, this course includes the use of refined cosmetics and prosthetic techniques to execute character, age, and extreme stylistic character make-up. Students are expected to provide the appropriate materials as needed.

PA 352 Musicianship III 2 credits
Students will be introduced to part-writing, musical structure, and intermediate harmony. There will be continued work on practical musical skills, including independent student projects often related to theatrical production. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: PA 252 or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 353 Applied Music: Voice 1–2 credits
This is an individual course offered to students for whom vocal training is relevant to their professional goals. Students have weekly individual lessons. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: PA 152 or permission of instructor.

PA 354 Applied Music: Piano 1–2 credits
This is an individual course offered to students for whom the study of piano is relevant to their professional goals. Students have weekly individual lessons. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Audition for placement.

PA 381 Directing I: Fundamentals of Directing 4 credits
Major principles of play directing are studied. Through comprehensive script analysis, students become familiar with the structure of a play as a basis on which the various elements of theatre can be organized to achieve dramatic unity. Laboratory application of directing practices introduce students to the techniques employed by a director to communicate with actors and audience, including principles of composition, movement, stage business, and rhythm. Prerequisite: Completion of Performing Arts Core, or permission of instructor. (Fall Semester)

PA 382 Directing II: Theory and Practice 4 credits
An extension of the skills developed in Directing I, this course emphasizes the application and unification of stage directing techniques and theories leading to a concept of production. Through selected scenes and projects for class presentation, students continue the exploration of materials and methods of communicating the dramatic content of a script to an audience. Prerequisite: PA 381. (Spring Semester)

PA 403 History of the American Musical 4 credits
The development of American musical theatre from the early minstrel shows to the works of Stephen Sondheim is studied with a critical examination of representative musicals. Slides and recordings of Broadway productions will supplement the lectures. Prerequisite: Completion of Performing Arts Core or permission of instructor. (Spring Semester)

PA 404 History of the American Theatre 4 credits
This course is an historical survey of the origins and developments of the American theatre and drama from the pre-Revolutionary period to the turn of the century (The Contrast to The Scarecrow). The course emphasizes the socio-cultural aspects influencing the emergence of the American theatrical profession. Prerequisite: PA 201 and PA 202 or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 405 Musical Theatre Seminar 4 credits
A topic in the area of musical theatre is examined in a seminar. A style, period or specific artist is studied in depth. Songs, scenes and librettos are analyzed, with opportunities for performance for the interested student.

PA 410 Survey of European Dramatic Literature: Semester Abroad 4 credits
Selected plays from Greek to modern times will be studied against the richly textured background of European art and culture with special emphasis on the Roman, Medieval, and Elizabethan periods. The classical core will focus on the works of Sophocles, Plautus, Shakespeare, and Moliere; while the writings of Stoppard, Pinter, and Aychborn will provide a contemporary view of this evolving art form. Where possible, performances will be attended to further enrich the student's experience.

PA 411 Seminar in Dramatic Literature 4 credits
This seminar explores selected periods and topics in dramatic literature. Subject can change each semester. Prerequisite: Junior standing; PA 110, PA 201 and PA 202; or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 413 Dramatic Literature: Greek and Roman 4 credits
This course examines selected plays of Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides and Aristophanes, as well as Roman dramatists, as they were produced in their own periods and as they might be produced in ours. Attention is given to the meaning of these plays as reflected in their structure. Prerequisite: Junior standing; PA 101, PA 201 and PA 202; or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 414 Dramatic Literature: Comedy, Politics and Satire 4 credits
A seminar examining comic writing as a blueprint for performances that reflect the values of the community for which it is performed. The course will begin with an overview of comedy from Aristophanes through the commedia dell' arte to modern stand–up style comedy. Students will take an in–depth study of a comic style, writer, or performer of their choice. Course readings will be supplemented by films and videos of comic performances. (Spring Semester)

PA 415 Dramatic Literature: Shakespeare 4 credits
This course will look at selected plays from Shakespeare, his comedies, his tragedies, his dark comedies and his romances. Emphasis will be not only on their meaning, but also on how meaning might be translated to the Shakespearean stage, as well as our own. Prerequisites: Prerequisite: Junior standing; PA 101, PA 201 and PA 202; or permission of instructor. (Spring Semester)

PA 416 Dramatic Literature: Restoration and 18th Century 4 credits
A study of the comedy of manners from Etherege to Sheridan with close attention to the radical change in the 18th Century. Prerequisite: Junior standing; PA 101, PA 201 and PA 202; or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 417 Dramatic Literature: Modern European 4 credits
The realist revolution in dramatic literature is studied through Chekov, Strindberg, Shaw and Pinter, with some attention given to such playwrights as Pirandello, Brecht and Lorca, who tried to revolt against it. Prerequisite: Junior standing; PA 110, PA 201 and PA 202; or permission of instructor. (Fall Semester)

PA 418 Dramatic Literature: Modern American 4 credits
This course is a study of the work of American playwrights from the turn of the century to the sixties (O'Neill to Albee) with emphasis on the new stagecraft as it influenced and shaped the modern American theatre. Students investigate the relation of drama to the work of various theatre artists; actors, directors, designers, and producers, who have significantly contributed to the styles and concept of our present theatre. Prerequisite: Junior standing and PA 110, PA 201 and PA 202, or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 421 Advanced Acting 4 credits

Topics are offered on a rotating schedule, drawn from the following curriculum. Each requires an audition or permission of the Acting Program Coordinator.

A. Acting Shakespeare and the Greeks: Emphasis in the plays of Aeschylus, Euripides, and Shakespeare, with some attention given to Shakespeare's immediate contemporaries. Although primarily scene work, material may include larger segments of plays to understand how the structure works as a whole.
B. Advanced Scene Study: The focus is on the methods by which professional actors determine and control their own work in the creation of roles. Challenging texts from world theatre are explored in depth with emphasis on creating and developing a "score" for the role.
C. Acting Styles: Scenes from non-realistic plays are studied, including Medieval and Restoration texts, and the work of Brecht and the expressionists.
D. Performing Comedy: Techniques of comic performance are studied using material from stand-up comedy (including self-scripted material) to Shakespeare.
E. Acting for the Media: The specific techniques for performing dramatic roles on camera are studied.
F. Advanced Acting for the Musical Theatre: An investigation of problems of integrating voice, movement, and ensemble awareness, as well as the interrelation of spoken text and lyrics.
G. Special Topics in Acting: Topics chosen as needs are identified.

PA 422 Actor–Training Project 4 credits

Each semester, two projects centered on specific areas of actor training will be offered. These projects are rehearsed and performed before an audience with minimal technical support. The nature of the material chosen is intended to complement the production program and expand the areas of training available to upper level students. Prerequisites: Junior/senior standing and an audition. (As Needed)

PA 423 Musical Theatre Performance Workshop 2-4 credits

An intensive five week session designed to offer students a unique opportunity to expand their experience in the artistic and technical aspects of a touring musical theatre production. The main activity of the workshop is the preparation and presentation of a full-length musical.

PA 424 Audition Workshop 2 credits

This course deals with the very specific skills and requirements involved in auditioning. Students will learn what is involved professionally and emotionally in this inescapable part of their future acting career. Students will be coached in the selection and preparation of audition material, and will be asked to develop a minimum of three contrasting audition pieces which will showcase their talent and skill. Professional quality headshots and resumes will be discussed and required of every student. The course will include sessions with professional

PA 430 Dance Repertory 2 credits
This course offers students the opportunity to work with a choreographer in the creation and staging of a concert dance, musical theatre or dance theatre piece. Conducted by faculty or guest artists, students have an opportunity to work in a broad range of choreographic styles. In addition to developing the performance and physical skills necessary for the work, students are expected to engage in research and/or study materials necessary to the performance. This course culminates in a public performance of the work. Additional rehearsal time may be required just prior to performance. This course may be repeated. Prerequisite: Audition. (Spring Semester)

PA 431 Dance Composition II 4 credits
This course concentrates on the theory and practice of dance choreography. Basic choreography structure, analysis and practical application of dance elements (solo, duet and group forms), performance style, and the interrelationship of dance with other theatrical elements will be studied. Though primarily for students interested in dance choreography, this course will also benefit students majoring in Directing or Musical Theatre. Prerequisite: PA 331 or approval of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 432 Dance Composition III 2 credits
This course is a study of dance choreography at the advanced level. Students are expected to already have a working knowledge of choreographic forms. This course will examine the choreographic styles and philosophies of major twentieth century modern dance choreographers. Students will be guided in the development of their own choreographic style as well as developing a better understanding of the choreographic process. Students are expected to create and produce a concert dance piece at the end of this course. Prerequisite: PA 431.

PA 440 Technical Theatre Laboratory 2 or 4 credits
Changing workshops are structured to introduce students to a broad range of technical experience. The subject matter for these workshops will include:

- Scenic and costume property construction for the stage
- Design and fabrication techniques for television and film
- Exhibit and trade show design
- Model building
- Advanced scene construction techniques and special effects
- Audio design for performing arts
- Advanced lighting techniques and special effects.

PA 442 Lighting Design II 4 credits
This course continues the study of the narrative and evocative properties of the art. Emphasis is on the comparative treatments of different theatrical, industrial, and architectural applications. Students will be expected to produce both paper projects and actual lighting designs in the Division's theatres. Students will be expected to provide appropriate materials as necessary. Prerequisites: PA 247 or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 444 Costume Construction 4 credits
The course introduces the student to basic costume patterning and construction methods. The student will not only study draping, drafting, and flat-patterning, but will also learn terminology, equipment usage, and the skills necessary to the entire costuming process. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. (As Needed)

PA 445 Scene Design II 4 credits
Students apply previously learned elements of scenic design to various production spaces and styles. Projects consist of elementary plans, sketches, renderings and models prepared for proscenium, thrust, arena, and environmental staging. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 446 Scene Painting 4 credits
This class explores various theatrical painting techniques. Students are exposed to the applications of a variety of color media and painting surfaces used to depict natural forms, as well as architectural detail. Students are expected to supply appropriate materials as needed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 447 Scene Design and Construction for Television 4 credits
Problems and techniques in designing and constructing settings for studio television production will be explored. Projects consist of color and black-and-white, with concern for design format, aspect ratio and multi-position viewing as depicted through the use of floor plans and perspective drawings. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 448 Costume Design II 4 credits
Students explore the costume design principles used to create a non-realistic production. Projects emphasize research techniques, color application and silhouette distortions. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 449 History of Fashion and Decor 4 credits
This course surveys the development of styles of architecture, furniture, ornamentation, and clothing from the Egyptians through the nineteenth century, including their psychological and sociological implications. Field study to the Museum of Fine Arts, stained glass studios, and other related areas of interest may be required. Students will be asked to prepared research folios and make classroom presentations. (As Needed)

PA 454 Voice Repertoire 2 credits
Voice performance workshop designed to develop the singer's skills and techniques through weekly individual performing in class with an end-of-term recital. Development of correct vocal technique, including song interpretation, character development, and communicating with the audience. Vocal literature covering various styles and periods of American Musical Theatre. Prerequisite: previous private voice training or audition. May be repeated for a total of 4 credits. May fulfill PA Music Theatre major PA 320 requirement.

PA 460 Drama as a Learning Medium I 4 credits
The philosophical foundation of drama as an educational tool is examined. Students explore the uses of creative drama/improvisation in both formal and informal learning environments. Students learn to assess learning needs, develop appropriate educational goals and objectives, and design and implement teaching strategies. Participation in laboratory teaching sessions is required. This course is necessary for students seeking state teacher certification on the secondary level and for students pursuing a Theatre Education concentration.

PA 461 Drama as a Learning Medium II 4 credits
This course focuses on the application of the principles of educational drama and the teaching of drama as well as surveys various educational resources available to drama teachers. The role of drama within the wider context of the arts in education is discussed. Prerequisite: PA 460.

PA 462 Theatre for Young Audiences 4 credits
Students are introduced to the scope, purposes, and history of theatre experiences for children and adolescents. Topics include play reading and analysis, the examination of formal and participatory theatre and theatre-in-education techniques. Prerequisite: Junior/senior standing or permission of instructor.

PA 463 Practicum: Theatre for Young Audiences 2-4 credits
Students select material, develop and create an appropriate production style, and present a short touring production for young audiences. Prerequisite: PA 462 or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 464 Integrating the Arts in Education 2-4 credits
Students investigate the many relationships of theatre to various art forms and scientific pursuits in modern society. The course includes analysis of the similarities and differences in the elements of form among the visual arts, music, literature, dance, and theatre, and of the various means of expressing ideas, emotions, and images. A study is conducted of the process by which both art forms and scientific disciplines satisfy fundamental cultural needs. Inquiry is made into the educational advantages of various arts in the growth of the individual and development of social groups. Prerequisite: PA 460 or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 465 Puppetry Construction 4 credits
The art of puppetry and the methods of construction, operation and performance of puppets are examined. Emphasis is on the use of puppets as an educational tool. Projects include producing an example of each of the four major types of puppets: shadow, hand, rod, and marionette. Course culminates in construction of puppets for production. Students are expected to provide appropriate materials as needed. (As Needed)

PA 466 Theatre for Special Audiences 4 credits
The unique problems involved in producing theatre for groups with specialized needs, such as the hearing impaired, the handicapped, senior citizens, and hospitalized persons, are studied. Topics include the selection of material, creating production styles appropriate for specific populations and settings, and the practicality of mounting the production. Course culminates in the development of a short production for a specialized audience. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 467 Theatre in Education 4-8 credits
Students act as artists/teachers to bring theatre into the classroom in the service of specific educational objectives. Students will consult with an area school to design a performance and teaching project which will meet the specific educational needs of that group. Techniques from the theatre and creative drama/educational strategies will be employed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 468 Practicum: Educational Drama 4 credits
Practical experience in teaching drama as a subject and/or as a teaching tool is obtained. Students are required to teach a class of children or adolescents on a regular basis during the semester in area schools or recreation programs. Weekly seminars and faculty-student tutorials are required. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 475 Theatre Management 4 credits
This seminar deals with the diversity of challenges and problems administrators in nonprofit and commercial theatre organizations confront. Guest experts participate occasionally. (Fall Semester)

PA 476 Advanced Theatre Management 4 credits
A continuation of PA 475, the course addresses issues pertinent to those students interning at local theatres. Prerequisite: PA 475. (As Needed)

PA 477 Stage Management 2 credits
The theories, practices, and responsibilities of stage management, including the pre-rehearsal, rehearsal and performance periods of a production are covered. (Fall Semester)

PA 479 Survival in the Theatre 2 credits

PA 483 Directing for School and Community 4 credits
Students investigate the special problems and techniques involved in the production of plays for the school and community. Lectures, discussion, practice methods, and materials pertinent to non-professional theatre organizations are addressed. Includes play selection, analysis, casting, and rehearsal procedures. Students are required to direct scenes for class demonstration. This course is especially designed for students interested in teaching on the secondary level and for community theatre workers, as well as for the high school teacher. Prerequisites: PA 381 and/or permission of instructor. (As Needed)

PA 484 Directing the Musical Play 4 credits
The exploration of the conceptual and structural material pertinent to the musical play form with emphasis on developing skills in the staging of the materials through the coordination of music, lyrics, and dialogue. Each student will be required to stage scenes from musicals for class demonstration. Selected students will be assigned to stage mini-musicals for public presentation. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor.

PA 489 Playwriting Workshop 4 credits
This workshop will provide students the opportunity to read selected portions of their current work before submitting it for more detailed critique. It will also help the student to develop an approach to dramatic writing for the stage, including theme, plot, characterization, dialogue, and theatrical conventions. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. (Spring Semester)

PA 498 Directed Study in Performing Arts 2 or 4 credits
Students are provided the opportunity to develop a research paper or creative project on a topic or level of experience not covered in the regular curriculum. Prerequisite: Permission of Division Chair.

PA 499 Internship 2-4 credits
Students work in professional theatrical or educational settings under the direct supervision of an approved, full-time employee and an assigned faculty member. Prerequisites: Permission of the Division Chair prior to the beginning of the internship, and the completion of approved work. Course is offered Pass/Fail.

PA 371-372 Production Project 2-4 credits
PA 471-472 Production Project 2-4 credits
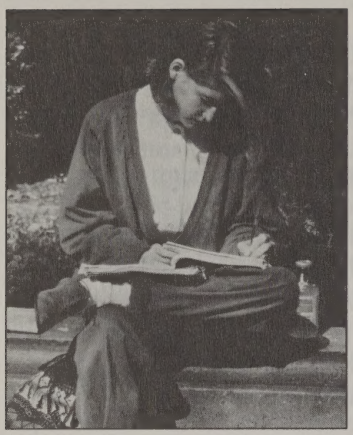
In addition to the courses listed above, the Performing Arts Division has assigned numbers to a series of two-credit production projects for differing levels of skills. Students may enroll, with permission, as performers, directors, or technicians, or managers. The content and production needs are specifically described when plays constituting the Emerson public performance season are chosen. Appropriate advisors will be assigned to supervise these production projects.

A. Performance and Directing: Students enrolled as performers will explore and develop character and/or dance. Students enrolled as director will analyze, prepare, and supervise material for rehearsal. Projects will culminate in a theatrical performance for a public audience.

B. Design and Technical Theatre: Students enrolled will explore and develop planning, and supervise the execution of production needs for a theatrical presentation for a public performance. Fulfills Performing Arts core requirements.
C. Business and Management: Students enrolled will develop and build upon experience in budgeting, scheduling, and logistical planning for a theatrical presentation. The projects will consist of practical work directed towards a given production, with attendant research, correspondence, and documentation as warranted by the production.
D. Education: Students will be responsible for school liaisons, curriculum planning, study guide production, and/or the teaching of workshops in conjunction with selected divisional productions.



Writing, Literature and Publishing

Professors Randall and Williams; Associate Professors Aaron, Duprey, Fast, Henry, Chair, and Weesner; Assistant Professors Gantos, Knott, and Shute; Instructors Hoffman and Shippy; Writers-in-Residence Marshall and Painter.

The ability to write effectively is fundamental to the arts and sciences and is a major foundation for any communications curriculum. Ultimately, writing should be not only a way of communicating what is known, but simultaneously a way of coming to know as well, both a process and a tool of learning.

Through expository writing, students learn to formulate and organize thoughts, elucidate ideas based on information and example, and draw conclusions from reasoning. Through creative writing, students learn to discover truths and explore concepts not always approachable by systematic logic. Through writing and publishing, students learn both to formulate ideas suitable for commercial markets and to fulfill editorial and management roles.

Literature affords a major source of cultural experience, stimulates intellectual activity and imagination, and helps set standards for all written communication.

While the encouragement of effective writing is a responsibility of all Divisions of the College, the special mission of the Division of Writing, Literature and Publishing is to establish cogent criteria for written communication and to provide a curriculum that leads students towards realizing their highest creative and intellectual potential.

The faculty of the Division is committed to the following goals:

- To develop student competency in writing skills.
- To provide all students in the college with instruction in literature in its major forms of poetry, drama, fiction, and non-fiction; to teach critical appreciation through reading and writing; and to provide critical and historical perspectives on a variety of works from different cultures and ages.
- To explore the values and possibilities of literature, to enhance the critical skills of students preparing for further study in all fields, and to help student writers explore and develop their creativity.
- To offer concentrations specifically designed for students preparing for careers in writing and publishing.
- To prepare students for graduate study in literature and writing.
- To encourage students to explore how writing, literature and publishing may serve as bridges to other communications disciplines and fields.

Programs

The Division of Writing, Literature and Publishing offers a curriculum designed to prepare students for a wide range of professional careers and for personal creative development and fulfillment. It also offers programs that have pre-professional value for those intending to pursue graduate education. The degrees granted with a major in Writing, Literature and Publishing are Bachelor of Fine Arts and Bachelor of Arts. Students majoring in other Divisions may choose to minor in Writing, in Literature or in Publishing. They may design a double major or an interdisciplinary major involving writing, literature, or publishing as one of their major subject areas.

BACHELOR OF ARTS IN WRITING, LITERATURE AND PUBLISHING (40 credits in major)

Students enrolled in this program must take 8 credits from the following courses: LI 201 Literary Foundations (Classical Literature, Great Books); LI 202 American Literature; and LI 203 British Literature. In addition, they must complete at least 16 credit hours in writing and publishing courses numbered above 300, and 16 credit hours in literature courses numbered 300 or above (4 credits of which must qualify as either a course in Cultural Diversity or in Non-Western Studies, whichever has not already satisfied a General Education requirement). They must also fulfill the Emerson Bachelor of Arts General Education requirements. Students who wish to concentrate either in Creative Writing or in Writing and Publishing should file their major or change of major at the Advising Center and take a majority of WP courses in the given area of concentration.

BACHELOR OF FINE ARTS IN WRITING, LITERATURE AND PUBLISHING (56 credits in major)
Students enrolled in this program must take 8 credits from the following courses: LI 201 Literary Foundations (Classical Literature; Great Books); LI 202 American Literature; and LI 203 British Literature. In addition, they must complete at least 8 credit hours in writing courses numbered above 200, 12 credit hours in writing courses numbered above 300, and 12 hours in literature courses numbered above 300. Additionally, each student must develop, in accordance with departmental guidelines, a set of electives numbered 200 or above for 12 credits (4 credits of which must qualify as either a course in Cultural Diversity or in Non-Western Studies, whichever has not already satisfied a General Education Requirement), and participate in a 4-credit Senior Writing Project (WP 490) to demonstrate accomplishment in the craft of writing. Students who wish to concentrate in either Creative Writing or in Writing and Publishing should file their major or change of major at the Advising Center and take a majority of courses in the area of concentration.

MINOR IN WRITING
At least 16 credit hours in a sequence of related writing courses approved by the Division and numbered 200 or above.

MINOR IN WRITING AND PUBLISHING
At least 16 credit hours in related writing and publishing courses numbered 200 or above.

MINOR IN LITERATURE
At least 16 credit hours in literature courses numbered 300 or above. These courses should have a planned coherence; they may focus, for example, on a genre, a tradition, or a period.

Writing Courses

WP 100 Introduction to Expository Writing 4 credits
A course, offered Pass/Fail, for incoming students who, in the judgement of the College, need to develop their writing abilities before taking the required Expository Writing sequence, WP 101–WP 121. Exploring methods for choosing topics, starting an essay, organizing, revising and evaluating what they have written, students will write a variety of short essays involving description, narration, interpretation and argument. Class size will be limited to twelve. Students must pass WP 100 to move on to WP 101 (Expository Writing) in the following semester.

WP 101 Expository Writing 4 credits
A writing course introducing students to basic strategies and tactics of persuasive writing. Here students read and discuss works by both professional and student writers and explore techniques of argument and persuasion in writing a series of short essays. The course stresses revision, counts on frequent workshops on student writing, and aims finally to resharpen ones ability to use evidence in a reasonable, convincing way.

WP 120 Freshman Symposium 4 credits
An interdisciplinary seminar, designed to introduce students to the discourse and methodology of a range of academic disciplines, with readings and discussions organized around a central topic. The seminar aims to challenge students to higher levels of intellectual synthesis, to encourage them to explore ideas freely in a small–group setting, and to enhance their writing skills.

WP 121 Approaches to Essay Writing (formerly WP 123) 4 credits
A writing course enabling the student to extend command of the learning and skills gained in WP 101. Discussion of essays by both students and established writers and of selections from at least one other literary genre (fiction, poetry, drama) will heighten the student's awareness of the art of persuasive writing. In addition to writing a series of short essays, the student will write an extended essay relating to his or her particular academic interest. This project requires the considered use of secondary sources and aims to engage the student in the world of discourse that characterizes current thinking on his or her subject. (Spring Semester)

WP 151 Honors English I 4 credits
A course for students who enter with advanced placement or who receive from the Division Chair permission to apply, Honors English I gives students the opportunity to do upper level work in reading and writing about literature. Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

WP 152 Honors English II 4 credits
This course, a continuation of WP 151, encourages students to explore authors and issues leading to a writing project that will result in an extended essay of originality and distinction. Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

WP 205 Introduction to Creative Writing I 4 credits
In this course, students discover whether or not they have a talent for writing. Sections are offered in writing poetry, prose, and children's literature. Students learn elementary forms and techniques. (Fall Semester)

WP 206 Introduction to Creative Writing II 4 credits

A study of the beginnings of the magazine, its philosophy, and how it has affected American life and culture. Analysis of some of the major milestones in magazine history, including the development of photojournalism and popular fiction. Professional Writing Course. (Fall Semester)

WP 481 Magazine Publishing: Rotating Topics 4 credits
(formerly Magazine Editorial Practice)
Editorial stance (the "idea" of a magazine), marketing and business strategies, selection and acquisition of material, and production are studied. Each student seeks to develop the prospectus for a viable new magazine. (Fall and Spring Semesters)

WP 482 Magazine Design and Production 4 credits
Magazine format and composition, placement of editorial and advertising material, color layout, scheduling, working with printers, and distributors are studied. Professional Writing Course. (Fall Semester)

WP 484 Book Publishing: Rotating Topics 4 credits
The course examines the acquisition and editing of the manuscript, its progress into design and production, and the final strategies of promotion and distribution of a finished book.

WP 486 Literary Editing 4 credits
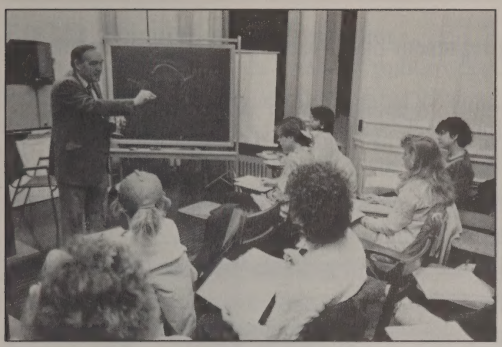
Students are trained as readers and as practical critics, recommending and defending manuscripts by unknown writers for publication in Ploughshares literary magazine. In editorial sessions, each student makes his or her case for a story or poem competing for limited space. The editorial complexions and standards of other literary magazines are also analyzed and compared.



Teacher Education and Certification Program

Professors Klim, Program Director of Communication Disorders and Silvestri, Program Director of Communication Studies; Associate Professor Colby, Program Director of Performing Arts; Assistant Professor Bartlett, Administrative Coordinator.

The Divisions of Communication Disorders, Communication Studies, and Performing Arts offer programs leading to teacher certification. The programs are registered with the Massachusetts Department of Education Bureau of Teacher Preparation, Certification, and Placement. They are competency-based programs in which students are expected to develop the teaching competences specified under each of the Bureau's standards. Students who prefer to teach outside of Massachusetts may need to become aware of (and meet) the certification requirements in that state.

In late 1987 the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education and the Department of Education published proposals for teacher certification in the state which were meant to alter and improve the nature and quality of teacher preparation in the state. These changes are intended to take effect for the class which will be graduated in the Spring of 1994. Thus, students entering in Fall 1990 should be subject to the new regulations. At the time this catalog went to press, not all requirements and procedures had been fully specified. For this reason, students who seek teacher certification are urged to stay in close contact with the Program Director in their Division so that appropriate academic advising may take place as the new regulations evolve in final form.

In general, however, the following represent broad features of the new regulations.

1. Students who are graduated from appropriately recognized Baccalaureate teacher preparation programs will be granted provisional teacher certification.
2. This undergraduate program will consist of either a major in the liberal arts or an appropriate interdisciplinary major.
3. Full certification will be granted to appropriately-educated graduates of recognized Master's degree programs.

Thus the new teacher certification regulations are expected to require a two-tier (undergraduate and graduate) preparation program of which an education major no longer will be a part.

General Procedures and Requirements for Teacher Certification

1. Students must apply for and be accepted into a major program to be considered a degree candidate. Students should contact the Program Director for Teacher Education (see above) in their major area of study as early as possible (or before the end of sophomore year) regarding available programs and requirements.
2. Students transferring to Emerson College above the sophomore level should contact the Program Director in their Division for program requirements and admission procedures.
3. Normally, a minimum of four terms of residency are required prior to student teaching.
4. All students must fulfill the student teaching practicum at Emerson.
5. Students should contact the Teacher Education Program Director in their Division for guidance in selecting the appropriate Education and Psychology courses.

Courses of Study

The following list of courses includes both those offerings which are needed for students who will be certified under the previous regulations and those for individuals who will be prepared under the new ones. Students should seek the advice of the Program Director in their proposed certification area before enrolling in any of these courses.

PS 204 Psychology of Education 4 credits

A study of how human beings learn and how to teach. Special attention is given to cognitive and affective development, the nature, process and theories of learning, problem solving, and creativity, motivation, and evaluation. Prerequisite: PS 101. (Spring Semester)

ED 222 Foundations of Education 4 credits
This course examines the bases of public education and the teaching process from a theoretical and methodological viewpoint. Multiple perspectives will be employed to investigate these issues — including but not limited to — the philosophical, historical, sociological, psychological, economic, and political. Required course for Provisional Certification as a Classroom Teacher. (Fall Semester)

ED 250 Educational Media and Technology 4 credits
An introduction to basic educational media and technology. Examination of the underlying principles of audio and visual communication, including visual and sound projection, single and multi-media systems, and materials development.

PS 333 Developmental Psychology 4 credits
The stage/age-related physical, cognitive, and psychosocial development of children from conception through adolescence. Topics include maturation and sensory-motor development; memory, thinking, and language processes and biological-cognitive-cultural dimensions of personality and social behavior. (Fall or Spring Semester)

ED 350 Principles of Measurement and Evaluation 4 credits
A study of the principles and practice of educational and mental measurements. The course includes an examination of the characteristics and uses of standardized and teacher–made measuring instruments including: validity, reliability, norms, administration, analysis and interpretation of results. The basics of test construction also are covered in the course.

ED 371 Teaching Methodology in Speech and Theatre Education 4 credits
A concentrated course designed to develop teaching competencies in the certification area of speech and theatre established by the Massachusetts Department of Education. Campus-based classes devoted to instructional methods, materials, issues and strategies in secondary education are related to each content area and may include observation and laboratory work in school settings. (Fall Semester)

ED 372 Pre-Practicum in Speech and Theatre Education 1-4 credits
A field–oriented course designed to develop teaching competencies in the certification areas of speech or theatre. Field placement activities progress from basic to more advanced levels of teaching responsibilities. Application must be made during the semester prior to course offering. Prerequisite: Permission of the Program Director in student's major field of study. (Spring Semester)

ED 401 Philosophy of Education 4 credits
Course material addresses systematic philosophies of education and their points of difference, present day major issues inherent in the relationship between school and society, philosophical aspects of the theory of learning, educational values and the nature of the individual pupil. (Spring Semester)

PA 460 Drama as a Learning Medium I 4 credits
The philosophical foundation of drama as an educational tool is examined. Students explore the uses of creative drama/improvisation in both formal and informal learning environments. Students learn to asses learning needs, develop appropriate education goals and objectives, and design and implement teaching strategies. Participation in laboratory teaching sessions is required. This course is necessary for students seeking state teacher certification on the secondary level and for students pursuing a Theatre Education concentration. (Fall Semester)

PA 461 Drama as a Learning Medium II 4 credits
This course focuses on the application of the principles of educational drama and the teaching of drama and surveys various education resources available to drama teachers. The role of drama within the wider context of the arts in education is discussed. Prerequisite: PA 460. (Spring semester)

ED 471 Student Teaching Practicum 8 or 12 credits
Twelve to fourteen week practicum providing supervised activities in school and on–campus seminars. Students are assigned to classrooms and schools for activities permitting them to interact with students and teachers in areas of student instruction and supervision. Open only to students in approved secondary education programs. Requirements and prerequisites may be obtained from the Division Program Director.

Individual Divisions may offer a 4-credit methods course. The course content will reflect the teaching methods which are relevant to each field.

Statement of Non-Discriminatory Policy

Emerson College admits qualified students of any race, color, national and ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the College. It does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national and ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap in the administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, athletic and other College administered programs. Applicants seeking information on these matters should call or write the Affirmative Action Officer, Emerson College, 100 Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02116, (617) 578-8580.

Any student in an educational or vocational training institution, other than a religious or denominational educational or vocational training institution, who is unable, because of his religious beliefs, to attend classes or to participate in any examination, study, or work requirement on a particular day shall be excused from any such examination or study or work requirement, and shall be provided with an opportunity to make up such examination, study, or work requirement which he may have missed because of such absence on any particular day; provided, however, that such makeup examination or work shall not create an unreasonable burden upon such school. No fees of any kind shall be charged by the institution for making available to the said student such opportunity. No adverse or prejudicial effects shall result to any student because of his availing himself of these provisions.

Accreditation

In 1950, the New England Association of Schools and Colleges Inc., the regional accrediting agency for New England, admitted Emerson College to membership as a specialized institution. Since 1950, Emerson has periodically been accredited by NEASC. Membership in one of the six regional accrediting associations in the United States indicates that that school or college has been carefully evaluated and found to meet standards agreed upon by qualified educators. Emerson College is fully accredited by the Association.

Emerson College reserves the right to make corrections or change any provision and requirement in this catalog at any time within the student's term of residence. The College specifically reserves the right to change its tuition rates and other financial charges. The College also reserves the right to rearrange its courses and class hours, to drop courses for which registration falls below the required minimum enrollment, and to change teaching assignments.
